3-state sweep nets $7.9 million in drugs; 15 jailed

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Narcotics agents Saturday raided, among other places, Dr. Timothy Leary's Brotherhood of Eternal Love, seized $7.9 million in drugs and two LSD laboratories and arrested 15 of 29 persons indicted by the Orange County Grand Jury.

Leary, known as the high priest of the drug cult, was among those named in the indictment, but he currently is a fugitive in Switzerland and was not arrested. A warrant for his arrest was issued and bail was set at $5 million.

The pre-dawn sweep in Northern and Southern California, Hawaii and Oregon netted 1.5 million LSD tablets, 30 gallons of hashish oil and 2½ tons of hashish.

The raids took pace at various unspecified locations and agents did not give details regarding the number of suspects or quantities of drugs found in any particular site.

Included in the arrests were two of the leaders of the Brotherhood of Eternal Love, John Charles Gale, arrested in San Diego County, and James Leroy Crittendon, taken into custody in Mariposa County.

Agents said the drug laboratories were located in those two counties. Bail for each man was set at $250,000. They did not directly link the two men to the laboratories.

Orange County Dist. Atty. Cecil Hicks described the Brotherhood of Eternal Love as an alleged international drug ring and devout followers of the 51-year-old former Harvard professor.

The Brotherhood became a legal corporation in California in 1966 and was granted tax exempt status by the state tax board on the ground of its religious nature as set forth in the articles of incorporation.

The Brotherhood's center of operations was a ranch in the San Jacinto Mountains near the town of Idyllwild, and the ranch was a major target of the raids. Agents did not describe the results of their raid there.

The raids followed a year-long investigation by narcotics agents from two dozen federal, state and local law enforcement offices and was one of the largest coordinated police efforts against illegal narcotics trafficking.

Among the agencies involved were the Orange County Narcotics Task Force, U.S. Customs, Department of State, Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, the state's Department of Justice and Bureau of Narcotic Enforcement, the Hawaiian Bureau of Narcotic Enforcement and sheriff's deputies from Riverside, San Diego and Mariposa counties and Josephine County, Ore.

By mid-afternoon Saturday, 12 suspects were in custody and bail had been set in amounts ranging up to $250,000. Three other suspects were nabbed in the Hawaiian Islands.

The organization, Hicks said, was formed before Leary became a fugitive from justice and fled the country for Algeria.

Since that time, Leary, who was an advocate of the drug culture in the United States in the late 1960s, has moved to Switzerland. Swiss officials have issued a deportation order and he was expected to be asked to leave there within the next month.

Hicks said he would not speculate whether the Swiss would extradite Leary to the United States on the basis of the Orange County Grand Jury indictment.

The district attorney said Leary formed the Brotherhood of Eternal Love at Laguna Beach in 1969 as part of the League of Spiritual Discovery (LSD), but later moved it to his ranch near Idyllwild in Riverside County.

Leary's chief aide, who headed the Leary Ranch operations during Leary's absence, was among those indicted but not yet arrested.

Hicks declined to reveal his identity or whereabouts, but insisted that "he will be arrested."

All those named in the 29 indictments are accused of one count of conspiracy to violate narcotics laws and as many as 18 other charges dealing with manufacture, possession, use and sale of the various drugs.

The grand jury indictment accuses the Brotherhood of manufacturing an LSD tablet known as "Orange Sunshine." The document said this form of LSD is the predominant form of the drug available in the U.S.

In January, agents seized 230,000 of the tablets in New Jersey, and in March a 60,000-pill shipment to Australia was seized.

Agents and Thailand police nabbed Thomas Gary Caudill, of Garden Grove, with 500 of the tablets on May 26.

Cons tell their stories to help block crimes

They're called 'Preventers' -- youngsters listen to them

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

"We use an honest, gut-level, tell-it-like-it-is approach.

"We tell about the crimes we've committed and the true price you have to pay in the penitentiary...not the simple legal term of six months to 10 years or five to life. We tell what actually happens in prison—the dehumanizing process...the pressures exerted by other cons ...by the staff.

"We explain to a kid how he can parlay a six month to five year sentence for joy riding into a cell on death row.

"They've heard the same thing before from parents, policemen, preachers, but they don't give the same credence to it that they do when they hear it from a convict. They know the convict has crawled across the ground on his knees and has been there and is telling it like it is..."

Thirty convicts from the California Institute for Men at Chino—murderers, forgers, bank robbers, dopers—are "telling it like it is" to kids throughout Southern California.

Why?

To prevent the kids from making the same mistakes they did.

"There's a great empathy between convicts and predelinquents," says Lyle Kurisaki, a convicted thief and chairman of the institution's "Prison Preventers," program, "and we're trying to capitalize on that empathy—use that bridge to construct a line of communication.

"WE GO OUT and tell it just the way it is. We don't preach to the kids. We don't try to tell them what's morally wrong with what we did or they're doing or thinking of doing.

"We only tell them this is what happens if you do that. If you can pay the price, then shoot your best shot. But we tell them what the price is."

And the price, says the decorated war hero, is too much to pay no matter the gain.

A former federal agent with a masters degree in criminology, the 46 year-old Nisei was convicted of four counts of grand theft and attempting to receive stolen property.

But he admits to more.

"I was a criminal for 20 years. I always had fronts—businesses that occupied my time and kept police from harassing me too much."

The businesses, he says, were successful.

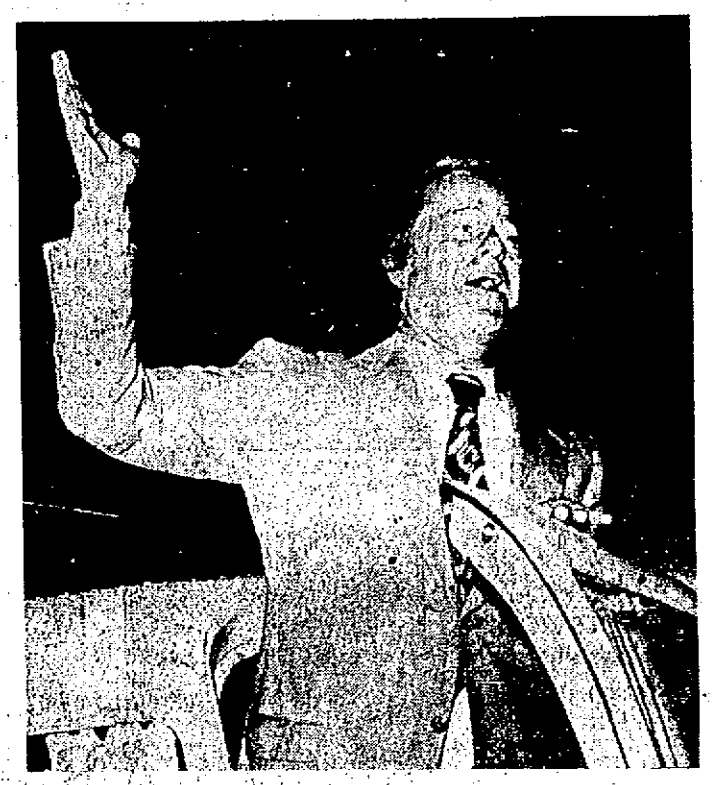

"I always made a profit, but I got no gratification from it. I got a big bang out of violating the law though—doing it right and doing it well. I made crime pay."

That's the story he tells to the thousands of students from San Diego to Ventura who request the prison's "Preventers".

"But that's my story to the kids," Kurisaki says, adding, "but I tell them I didn't know what the price was when you come to the penitentiary.

"No matter how well I made it pay, it wasn't enough. There's no way you can steal enough money, bank enough, save enough to tolerate being treated like a dumb animal every day—to have a man you wouldn't trust to park your automobile on the street tell you how you

High court continues delay of Ellsberg trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Saturday turned down the government and continued a delay in the Pentagon Papers trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, probably at least until October.

The unanimous order, signed by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, means prosecution for the alleged theft of the once-secret study of the Vietnam War will have to await a ruling on a wiretap dispute.

A jury had been seated for the trial in Los Angeles.

The government has acknowledged that an unnamed individual associated with the defense was overheard by government agents. Ellsberg and Russo are seeking the right to examine "bugging" records.

Burger said he had consulted all members of the court before rejecting the government's motion for a special summer session.

Justice William O. Douglas initially suspended the trial last Saturday.

Speaking for the defense, attorney Leonard Weinglass in Los Angeles said "We're delighted, but not surprised.

"The government really gave the Supreme Court no other choice," he said.

Weinglass, chief defense attorney for Russo, said the government's withholding, from the defense that wiretapping had occurred "was a clear attempt to circumvent the court's earlier decisions on wiretapping and that's why the court had no other choice."

Officer killed with own gun

A California highway patrolman was killed in East Los Angeles early Saturday with his own gun while handcuffing a suspect, authorities reported.

His killer, on parole for a murder, was slain seconds later by the officer's partner.

Patrolman Kenneth G. Roediger, 24, was killed when the suspect, later identified as Edward Martinez, 39, grabbed Roediger's gun from its holster and shot him in the chest, sheriff's deputies said, Martinez was then killed by Roediger's partner, Patrolman Norman R. Roy, 24, investigators said.

Sheriff's deputies later disclosed that Martinez had been convicted in a 1958 robbery-homicide of an 89-year-old man which netted $7. Martinez was paroled in 1970.

Authorities said that Roediger and Roy had attempted to stop Martinez on suspicion of drunken driving on North Woods Avenue at First Street in East Los Angeles but that he evaded them first by stopping in the center of the street, then backing up and driving away.

After a chase around the block, authorities said, Martinez stopped in front of 233 N. Woods Ave., ducked down in the front seat and refused to come out of his car.

Detectives said the officers pulled Martinez from the car and, while they were handcuffing him, Martinez grabbed Roediger's gun from its holster and shot him point-blank in the chest

Roy then shot Martinez, killing him instantly.

Sargent Shriver gets McGovern tap for VP

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Sen. George McGovern chose Sargent Shriver as his vice-presidential running mate Saturday after Sen. Edmund S. Muskie had rejected his invitation to join the Democratic ticket.

Shriver, the first director of the Peace Corps under his brother-in-law, President Kennedy, and of the anti-poverty program under President Johnson, will be put in nomination before an expanded 303-member Democratic National Committee meeting here Tuesday night He will succeed Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, who resigned from the race last Monday after disclosing that he had been hospitalized three times in the 1960's for nervous exhaustion and depression.

Muskie, the Democratic vice-presidential nominee in 1968 and the early front runner for the presidential nomination this year, cited family considerations in becoming the sixth man to reject McGovern's offer.

Earlier this week McGovern was turned down by Sens. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin and Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida.

WHILE McGovern prepared to make the formal announcement of Shriver's selection over television Saturday evening from the Capitol, Shriver was on his way to Washington from the Kennedy family's summer compound at Hyannis Port, Mass.

Shriver had been the choice of several factions within the McGovern organization at the Democratic National Convention three weeks ago, and was the staff favorite after Eagleton's candidacy collapsed.

He has political roots in Chicago, where he once managed the Merchandise Mart, the world's largest office building, for Joseph P. Kennedy, and in Maryland, where he considered running for governor in 1970. But he has never been a candidate before — a point that his advocates felt confirms the anti-politics or beyond-politics air which the McGovern campaign began.

Shriver was recommended to McGovern at Miami Beach by the black members of his campaign staff and by Pierre Salinger, the White House press secretary during the Kennedy administration.

But he was also thought to be an attractive figure in most of the Democratic Party — a friend of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, for example and a man warmly endorsed to McGovern last week by Humphrey.

Last week, his backers came to include congressional figures as diverse as Reps. Shirley Chisholm of New York, Wayne L. Hays of Ohio, Sam Gibbons of Florida and Lester Wolff of New York.

"He is attractive, personable and well-liked by a broad cross-section of groups," Mrs. Chisholm wired McGovern last week. "He knows 'the Hill' and is an experienced and respected businessman, but he is equally at home with the poor and minority groups whose affec-

State GOP leaders urge special tax relief session

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California Republicans, characterizing the Legislature as a do-nothing body, urged Gov. Ronald Reagan Saturday to call a special session on taxes and school finance.

GOP leaders, meeting in a state convention, also adopted a broad-based party platform designed to appeal to all Republican factions.

The 140 delegates—primarily nominees for Congress and the Legislature—heard a top Nixon administration official and their state party chairman denounce Sen. George McGovern, but cautioned Republicans not to underrate the Democratic candidate's appeal to voters.

The convention adopted a resolution noting that "no major legislative issue . . . was resolved" by the Democratic-controlled Legislature before it recessed Friday for a three-month vacation.

It urged Reagan to call a special session to deal solely with tax reform, property tax relief and school finance as mandated by the state Supreme Court. The court ruled a year ago that California's school financing system was unconstitutional because it relied too heavily on the property tax.

Although a $1.2-billion property tax relief and school finance bill sponsored by Reagan and Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti was killed Thursday night in the state Senate, the governor said he would not call a special session because it would be a waste of time.

The official party platform steered away from controversies like school busing and the merits of capital punishment and also avoided specifics on such topics as public employe collective bargaining and farm unionization.

The platform:

—Called for "a school finance system which guarantees each child an equal, basic educational opportunity."

—Supported "the concept that the people of California should decide whether or not they need the death penalty for the protection of society." An initiative seeking to restore the death penalty is on the November ballot.

—Pledged to "resist any public employe collective actions which strike against the public interest."

—Promised both to "strive for a balance between the economy and the environment" and "to provide strong legislation to enhance and protect the coast line and create additional coastal recreational areas."

—Denounced "all forms of demeaning social or economic discriminatoin, whether on racial, cultural or other grounds."

—Pledged both "protection for growers against unfair and illegal labor practices and an arbitration process for settling disputes" and to support field hands' "efforts to secure fair and equitable wages, decent working conditions and equal employment opportunities."

Navy shipyard will hire more workers

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

Long Beach Naval Shipyard will begin hiring more employes this month in conjunction with $140 million in new work, Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, announced Saturday.

Hosmer said yard work in the next 10 months includes 15 and possibly 17 ships with the No. 1 job the one-year, $12 million overhaul on the missile cruiser USS Chicago starting Aug. 29.

The 10-term congressman was in Long Beach for the commissioning address for the tank landing ship USS Bristol County—a ship to be based in Long Beach.

Hosmer said there will be "at least 200 and possibly 250" temporary jobs opening this month plus a permanent apprentice class of 125 in all trades.

The shipyard, commanded by Capt. Richard C. Fay, currently employs 6,700 including 350 temporary summer school employes.

Construction is booming at the yard, too. The second phase of the Electric, Electronic Weapons System Building is nearly complete and the Engineering Management Building on Pier E is about one-fourth done.

Hosmer said the yard was caught in the hiring freeze five months ago but Pacific Fleet demands resulted in the Defense Department "taking another look at the Long Beach shipyard— already considered No. 1 by the Ship Systems Command.

"I am glad to be a part of actions like this," Hosmer said. "The stability of the Long Beach naval complex grows stronger and stronger.

"We can figure to have a ship population of around 80 when new construction comes in and some older ships are retired or made available to our allies. A case is the destroyer Everett F. Larson—due for decommissioning later this year and going to the Republic of Korea. We will be getting another destroyer escort and a dock landing ship."

Chess aces challenged

Combined News Services

British hypnotist Ronald Markham has offered to play world chess champion Boris Spassky of Russia and challenger Bobby Fischer jointly for $300,000.

Fred Cramer, vice president of the International Chess Federation (FIDE) and Fischer aide in the current world championship match, said Saturday the challenge had been received in Reykjavik, Iceland, where the world chess championship match is being played. "That's the kind of money we like to talk about."

Markham said in Durban, South Africa, that he was willing to play "blindfolded, with brass bands playing in the background and television cameras two inches from my nose." He said his challenge was prompted by the "prima donna atmosphere of the world championship game."

Meanwhile, Spassky kept to himself Saturday after losing the 10th game — and possibly his crown — to Fischer. In today's 11th game the Russian will be moving first with the white pieces, desperate to win a point. With Friday's victory, Fischer leads 6½ to 3½.

Garbo's Dusenberg

Greta Garbo's Dusenberg will be auctioned off in Auburn, Ind., Sept. 4 as part of the 1972 Midwest Antique and Classic Car Auction. The car was custom-made for the retired actress in 1933 at a cost of $24,000.

It currently is owned by Lew Lazarus, Forreston, Ill., who reportedly paid $85,000 for the car and hopes the bidding will exceed $100,000.

Maddox over the top

Georgia Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox suffered minor injuries Saturday when he tumbled over the handlebars of a bicycle he was riding in a parade. A doctor in the emergency room at Hall County Hospital in Gainesville said Maddox was treated for minor abrasions and released.

Witnesses to Maddox's spill said the lieutenant governor, well known for his stunt bicycle riding, was not performing any tricks when the accident occurred.

Nixon goes boating

President Nixon went boating on choppy, windswept Sinepuxent Bay Saturday as he spent a relaxed weekend with friends at a secluded beachhouse on Maryland's Eastern Shore. The Chief Executive was accompanied by three friends who flew with him Friday by helicopter from the White House — former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Miami banker C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo and New York industrialist Robert Abplanalp.

Before boarding the boat, aides said Nixon had worked in the study of the beachhouse located among sand dunes in a section of Assateague Island National Seashore which remains in private hands.

Girl's pen pal

Roberta Hale of Portland, Ore., asked Vice President Spiro T. Agnew for his autograph two weeks ago when he left a Republican meeting. As Agnew started to sign, the 14-year-old girl's pen ran dry. Agnew apologized and left. But Roberta's powerful political friends — a state senator and a candidate for the state senate — sent Agnew a news picture of him and Roberta. Agnew signed that and sent it to the girl. With the picture, he sent two pens that work.

MICK JAGGER
'America Frightening'

Mick Jagger plans to quit in 4 years

Mick Jagger, leader of the Rolling Stones rock group, said in an interview published Saturday he plans to retire in four years. "When I'm 33, I quit," said Jagger, 29, in an interview with the London Daily Mirror. "That's the time when a man has to do something else. I can't say what it will definitely be."

Jagger, who recently returned from a singing tour of the United States and Canada, said he, his wife, Bianca, and their baby, Jade, will live in England for at least six months of the year. "It's the only place," he said. "Violence in America is frightening. And we can't go back to the south of France yet because it is besieged with tourists at this time of the year."

Nice assignment for charmer

ELEANOR HICKS
'Really Qualified'
—AP Wirephoto

Career American diplomats are jealous, but the French have cheered the choice.

Saturday, France-Soir, the country's largest newspaper, splashed a leggy photo of her over half its front page with the headline: "Nixon names a charm consul to Nice."

The subject of all the excitement is a 29-year-old black woman, Eleanor Hicks, the new U.S. consul in Nice.

Miss Hicks said the local excitement was because she is black and pretty. She acknowledged in an interview that the job may have come to her because she is a minority group triple threat at a time when such credentials could help. "But they also had to ask themselves whether I was really qualified. And there's just no doubt about that," she added. "It's yes."

The qualifications read: a Phi Beta Kappa key at the University of Cincinnati, graduate work in foreign relations at Johns Hopkins, then a start in the foreign service in 1966 with a brief stay in Hamburg before a posting in Bangkok as a political officer. The job in Nice mainly involves public relations work with the French and standard consular functions like issuing passports and shipping American cardiac cases back from Cannes.

Some of her black friends at home have argued that "somebody with your head and energy" should use it in a place where the U.S. American black community will benefit directly.

"I've talked this out many times now," Miss Hicks said, "and every time I've been able to convince them that this is the thing I should do. I enjoy it. Period. Then I think that working inside the system is possible."

Teddy boys 'n' topless at Wembley

LONDON (AP) — A rock 'n' roll nostalgia extravaganza Saturday night had thousands of 1950s-style teddy boys dancing to the thumping rhythm of such American oldsters as Bill Haley and His Comets.

Only a topless go-go dancer broke the spell of the great rock era of two decades ago, and she was told to stop doing it.

In a publicity stunt last week to promote the show, naked girls were taken to the residence of the Prime Minister.

Wembley Stadium, sometimes packed with up to 100,000 soccer fans, peeled back the musical calendar for a rerun of what turned the kids on in the fifties.

Besides Haley, now wearing graying curls, the star lineup from the States included Little Richard and Chuck Berry.

It drew long-memoried enthusiasts, and many others, from all over the United Kingdom and Europe.

TEDDY boys — many of them the sons of those who first wore the Edwardian-style clothes that caused tut-tuts 20 years ago — were out in force with their draped jackets, velvet collars, drainpipe trousers and chunky boots.

Looking somewhat out of place, like characters from photos in an old family album, they rocked away in groups among the kids of the 70s in hippie gear with beads and bangles.

But nostalgia evaporated when Carla England, the 23-year-old go-go dancer, stripped off her bra during the performance of Screaming Lord Sutch, a British rock 'n' roller.

Wembley officials hurried on stage to warn Carla against taking off anything else, not that much was left on. "We'll stop the show if you do," they said.

Miss England obeyed but reluctantly. "I always remove my bra during Screaming Lord Sutch's act," she said. "If they hadn't stopped me the next thing off would have been my g-string."

A week ago, seeking publicity for the rock festival, Sutch deposited a bevy of naked girls from a bus outside No. 10 Downing St., official residence of Prime Minister Edward Heath. The girls were arrested and fined.

Wembley Stadium was far from packed for the concert, but officials said it still would be a financial success with ticket takings of more than $245,000 dollars — plus fees for film and television rights.

Sutch had promised to follow the Downing Street episode by bringing 28 nude girls onto the stage at Wembley, but only Carla showed up.

"I can't see what all the fuss is about," Sutch said. "You get topless dancers in pubs and discotheques, but they didn't seem very happy at Wembley after my act."

Cult raises fuss, but not the dead

HAMLIN, W. Va. (UPI) — State police said Saturday that five members of a religious cult, apparently believing they could resurrect the dead, interrupted a funeral service earlier this week and tried to bring an unidentified woman back to life by lifting her from her casket.

"It was the weirdest situation I've ever encountered in all my 11 years of police work," said state police Cpl. C. N. Cook. "I tried to talk to them. I said, 'Tell me what you're doing, just explain it to me,' but they were in another world."

Although some of the mourners wanted to "handle the situation personally," Cook said it took four officers and two civilians to eject the four women and a man from the funeral home.

The five later received fines ranging from $5 to $150 for interrupting a religious service and the lone man, Charles Jackson, also faced charges of damaging a gun, holster, wristwatch and handcuff case that an officer said were taken from him during a brief scuffle.

Cook said he later learned that the five belonged to a cult, which believed the dead may be resurrected by lifting them above members' heads and speaking to the corpses in an "unknown tongue" mentioned in the Bible.

The trooper said the five walked into the funeral home in this south central West Virginia community during a private service Wednesday and, insisting they could "raise the dead," began chanting and flailing their arms as mourners and the minister looked on in dismay.

Police were called when the five, neatly dressed, then tried to lift the dead woman from her casket. Within 10 minutes after they were pushed from the funeral chapel, Cook said, the cult members became "completely rational."

Marilyn Monroe, dead 10 years, still draws

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A small band of fans made a pilgrimage Saturday to the grave of movie queen Marilyn Monroe, who died by her own hand 10 years ago, ending an era for Hollywood.

The blonde, 36-year-old actress died of a drug overdose Aug. 5, 1962. In the decade since, no film star has emerged with quite her magic.

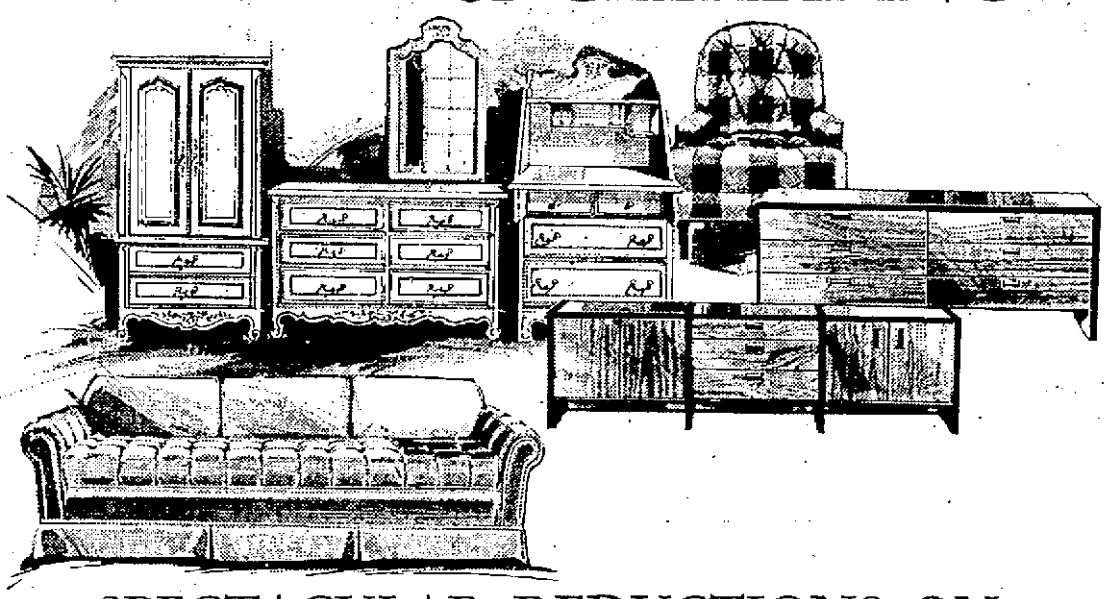

A spokesman at Westwood Village Memorial Cemetery said there were a few more than the usual number of visitors to her grave Friday and Saturday, but the only flowers on the vault were the fresh red roses her second husband, Joe DiMaggio, still sends twice a week.

Filmgoers lined up for an "August belongs to Marilyn" film festival at the Beverly Canon theater in Beverly Hills a few miles from the quiet cemetery.

Spot knows when he's got it good

Make no bones about it, Spot may be a refugee from a North Long Beach trash can, where sanitation crewmen found him shivering one morning about three years ago. But even from these humble beginnings, he's a bark and a lick ahead of most four legged flea biters.

Spot is a black and white 57 varieties with a small amber patch of distinction rackishly coloring his right eye. He's the mascot at the city refuse yard on Willow — at least that's what his City of Long Beach employe identification card says.

The 277 men who work at the refuse yard all play a major role in Spot's well-being. The coffee fund provides him with a dog license, regular veterinary checkups, dog food, and a donut at coffee break with the rest of the guys in the morning.

In fact, after the morning donut ritual, Spot takes a leisurely stroll over to the neighboring animal shelter to check out any new guests.

And while he's not exactly able to jump beildings in a single bound, he can make it up to the top of a mini-sweeper—with a little help from his friend, Willie Bryant, a sanitation crewman.

During the day, he makes the rounds with Willie — that is, if it isn't too hot. Spot doesn't go for these sunshine dog days. And while it's not cool to bite the hand that feeds you — you can at least carry around the glove.

Boyfriend shot dead in argument

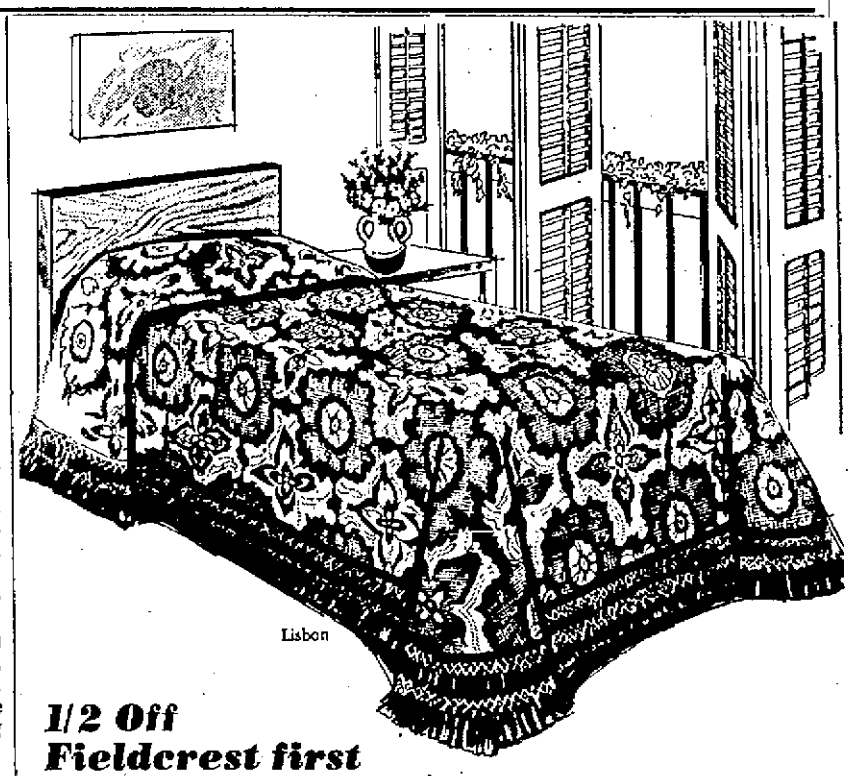

A 30-year-old Long Beach man was shot to death early Saturday at his girl friend's Carmelitos apartment and police have booked the woman's former husband on murder charges.

Police said Michael Brian Daniels, of 41 W. Pleasant St., was shot once in the stomach shortly after 5 a.m. while he was sitting on a couch in the apartment of Shena Neiver, 28, of 1108 Via Wanda.

Police said Fred Charles Teters, 29, of 245 Ellis St., Long Beach was arrested at his home a short time later and taken to Long Beach jail.

POLICE SAID Officer Dick Martinson arrived at the Carmelitos apartment about 5:20 a.m. where he found witnesses administering first aid to the wounded man. The victim was taken to Memorial Hospital where he died about 20 minutes later.

Witnesses told police that Teters had come to his former wife's apartment about an hour before the shooting.

LEGISLATIVE REPLAY IN NOVEMBER

Major issues unresolved

By BOB SCHMIDT
From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — The State Legislature has recessed for the summer after failing to reach agreement on a single major issue in the first seven months of the 1972 session.

Assembly Speaker Robert Moretti, D-Van Nuys, had successfully delayed consideration of the highly volatile issue of reapportionment until November, arguing that the subject deserved the full attention of the Senate and Assembly.

But when the two houses reconvene on Nov. 8, the day after the California general elections, their members will still have facing them every single one of the other major issues which lay before the Legislature last January.

THOSE issues include school finance, property tax reform, automobile insurance, and coastline protection.

In every case except one, Assembly - approved legislation was found wanting by the Senate and died in the upper house.

A no-fault auto insurance bill is awaiting a Senate Finance Committee hearing, but there is little enthusiasm for it.

Technically, all of the bills dealing with the subjects mentioned are capable of being revived, but Friday both Moretti and Senate pro-tem James R. Mills, D-San Diego, agreed that there was little reason to be optimistic that any compromise could be reached.

That was about the only thing the two leaders did agree on during the week, during which a massive

ROBERT MORETTI
"Senate lacks Leadership"

JAMES R. MILLS
"A straight sellout"

combination tax-shift, school-finance program, sponsored by the unlikely team of Moretti and Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan, was torpedoed in a similarly bi-partisan effort in the Senate.

A last-minute Senate effort Friday at pushing through a bill, increasing taxes for the purpose of raising money for schools never really got off the ground.

It seems likely then that assemblymen seeking reelection will campaign this fall on the platform of "I tried, but the Senate wouldn't help," while senators campaigning will say "I helped save Californians from the poor judgment of the Assembly."

Mills and Moretti took turns Thursday and Friday delivering personal attacks on each other, Mills accusing Moretti Thursday of "a straight sellout" for his support of a tax bill acceptable to the governor.

Moretti responded at a Friday press conference that the Senate was lacking in leadership.

All of which will be water long under the bridge in November.

As the legislators tackle the problems again, they will be conscious of a presence looking at their performances in at least two of the controversial areas — school finance and reapportionment.

That presence is the State Supreme Court.

THE COURT has ordered the Legislature to perform its constitutionally mandated function of reapportioning the congressional, Senate, and Assembly districts this year. Or, it said, it would assume the task.

The same court also declared that if it were asked, it would hold the state's present method of financing the operation of its public schools to be unconstitutional. It suggested that the method be restructured, with the present emphasis on the property tax reduced so that youngsters in wealthy districts did not automatically have superior educational opportunities than children in low-wealth districts.

It seems to be the consensus among leaders of both parties in both houses that the Legislature will not be able to put together a compromise reapportionment bill this year, so that the court will have to make good its threat or, perhaps, give the Legislature an early 1973 date by which it must reach agreement.

SINCE Democrats are expected to have increased their present domination of the two houses, particularly the Assembly, by the time the 1973 session starts, the Republicans will be in a precarious position if the court gives the job back to the Legislature. On the other hand, court does handle reapportionment, and draws lines without reference to incumbents or party registrations, Republicans believe the results could be disastrous fro Democrats.

Some of the issues may have been taken out of the Legislature's hands by the time the members come back to the Capitol.

ON THE November ballot are the Watson Amendment, which places strict ceilings on the taxes local government can impose on property owners, and a coastline protection initiative which takes the planning function out of the hands of local government and gives it to the state.

If the Watson Amendment passes, most members of the Reagan administration and the Legislature feel, the state will have to find ways to raise hundreds of millions of dollars to continue the local services which can no longer be funded by property taxes. And that chore will have to be accomplished almost immediately, thereby increasing the pressure in November.

MAKEUP ADDS MORE than a touch of reality to the appearance of a burn victim lying on the runway at San Francisco International Airport during a simulated disaster. In the bottom photo an "injured" person is being helped down a ramp after the mock crash of an airliner Saturday. More than 500 volunteers took part in the drill.

Simulated disaster at S.F. Airport hits real problems

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A simulated disaster at San Francisco International Airport — complete with a crashed DC8 airliner and more than 140 "victims" — ran into some real problems Saturday.

But airport officials who planned the drill to study and improve emergency techniques termed it successful.

More than 500 volunteers from 21 local emergency groups joined in this exercise, the largest of its kind ever held here, airport dircetor James K. Carr said.

THE ENLARGED DC8 four-engine jet was used to simulate a crashed Boeing 747 jumbo jet.

Office workers, hostesses, and Army volunteers were strewn about a two-acre area around the plane as ambulances and fire crews from the airport and nearby communities converged on the "disaster."

"Dazed" and "hysterical" victims put up a lot of realistic moaning, groaning and raving for the benefit of emergency workers, witnesses said.

The plane's passengers were evacuated, treated by medical volunteer teams, and removed to nearby hospitals while fire crews poured water on the "burning" plane. But the operation hit a number of snags.

Communications broke down during the exercise, airport officials admitted later. The city of San Francisco, about 10 miles north of the airport, was not notified of the "disaster" for 20 minutes.

EVACUATION of the "burning" plane took 15 minutes.

At a meeting held after the drill, monitors and firemen pointed out that the regular boarding ramps were standing in front of the plane when the drill started, something that would never happen in an actual emergency.

Coast Guard, Air Force and Army medical evacuation helicopters couldn't get landing clearance from the airport for several minutes — the Coast Guard unit eventually arrived by a car.

Many of the "victims" were left too close to the plane, when they should have been away at least 500 feet. Their proximity to the "wrecked" plane endangered their lives and prevented some fire apparatus from reaching the scene, monitors said.

There was also confusion in the chain of command and in the tagging and identification of victims, the monitors said.

Despite these problems, airport officials termed the drill a success and planned more meetings to iron out the problems it revealed.

Southland firm gets $32 million NASA job

CLEVELAND (UPI) — NASA'S Lewis Research Center in suburban Brook Park announced Saturday the awarding of a $32 million contract to General Dynamics' Convair Aerospace Division in San Diego for purchase of eight Centaur space rockets.

The new contract was a supplemental agreement that provides for five Centaur DIA vehicles and three D1T types. General Dynamics has been NASA'S contractor for previous Centaur rockets.

Included in the contract were ground handling and other equipment for each spacecraft, hardware for mission modifications at launch complex 41 at Cape Kennedy and other accessories.

Facts You Should Know About Diamonds

by Tony Chaparro
Lawson's Jewelers
Downtown Long Beach Only

One of the important factors that influence the value of a diamond is the WEIGHT of the diamond. In simple terms, it is the measurement of the size of the diamond and is expressed by the term: CARAT.

In order to understand the meaning of carat weight, we should define the term.

Diamonds are weighted on a metric carat scale. It must be one of the world's most delicate scales because it takes 141.75 Carats to equal one ounce; it takes 2,267.962 Carats to equal one pound!

So a one carat diamond weighs less than 7/1000ths of an ounce or less than .7% of an ounce!!

A carat is then divided into 100 parts called points. A diamond that weighs 100 points is a ONE CARAT diamond and is less than seven thousandths of an ounce. A diamond that weights 50 points is a One-Half carat diamond and is less than 3.5/1000ths of an ounce. A quarter-carat diamond weights 25 points and so forth.

A diamond that weighs a full carat is of course very rare. Just imagine, it takes over 250 tons of earth to be sifted through in the diamond mines of Africa to discover enough diamonds that alltogether will weigh 100 points or one carat!

Therefore, a diamond scale must be able to weigh within one point or 1/100th of a carat, which is less than seven-one Hundred Thousandths of an ounce!

If you are interested in further information, please come into our store, Lawson's Jewelers, 250 Pine Ave., Downtown Long Beach only, and we will be most happy to answer any of your questions, provide additional information, and show you actual diamonds.

Burial of ashes at sea becomes common in state

SAN RAFAEL (AP) — A foghorn moaned in the distance as the sea burial of Nina Adele Hong began.

"I go with the wind but not down into emptiness," her husband read from Kahlil Gibran's "The Prophet."

Then, standing in the stern of the large white yacht, he scattered his 44-year-old wife's ashes upon the sea.

More poetry and a prayer were recited, and family members threw floral bouquets in the water. The burial was over.

The unusual service was handled by The Seaway, a new firm providing sea-going hearse for burials off the Golden Gate Bridge in the Pacific. Under California law it handes only cremated remains.

It was organized by three semiretired businessmen, two of them former naval officers, who serve as crew aboard the 44-foot yacht.

Alex Coutts, one of the firm's partners, says burials at sea are becoming common in California, but most are done by scattering the ashes from an airplane—an impersonal service because the family and a clergyman are usually not allowed aboard.

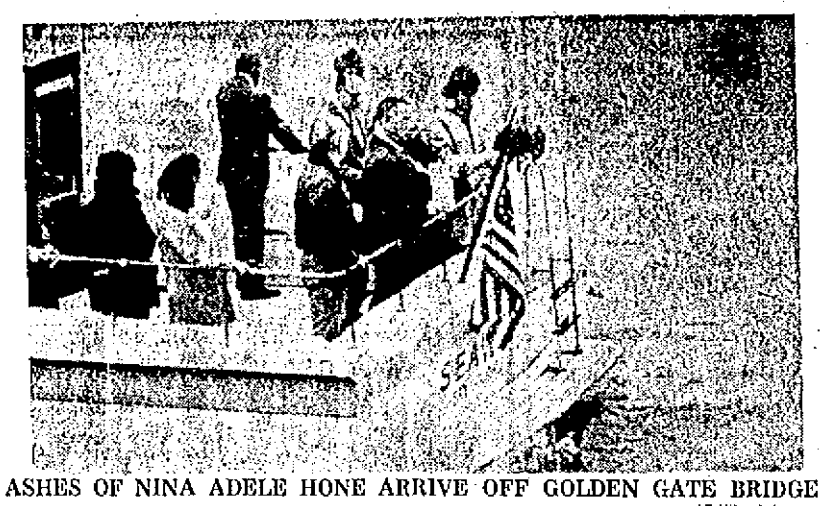

The Seaway transports the cremated remains, members of the family and their minister, if desired, to a point three miles from shore, where a brief service of the family's choosing is held. Then the ashes are scattered.

"Some of those who choose the service come from sea-faring families," says partner James Magee, a former Navy pilot. "But many have just lived lives and want it to be their monument."

"Adele was a girl who loved the sea," says Mrs. Hone's mother-in-law. "Her burial was simple and beautiful. This is what she asked for."

Magee said The Seaway began seven months ago and averages one burial per week.

He says the average funeral in the San Francisco Bay area costs at least $1,500, whereas disposal of cremated remains at sea can cost as little as $600, depending on the mortuary handling the arrangements. Cost of chartering the yacht is $250.

JAPANESE ASSETS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japanese-Americans have asked Congress to remove a legal lock which is keeping up to 2,000 of them from recovering family savings deposited before World War II in a Japanese bank's U.S. branches.

Confiscated assets of the Yokohama Specie Bank, about $4.5 million, remain in Justice Department hands, yet Japanese-Americans "with legitimate claims . . . are barred from recovering their hardearned savings," Rep. Spark M. Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, told the House commerce and finance subcommittee.

Matsunaga's bill to provide relief for certain prewar Japanese bank claimants "is one more step in the long and continuing effort to vindicate the rights of Japanese-Americans in the wake of the tragedy of 1941-1942," said Joseph L. Rauh Jr., representing a group called the Committee of Japanese-American Yen Depositors.

Big Sur fire fighters head home; 4,100 acres blackened

BIG SUR (AP) — Fire fighters headed for home Saturday after conquering the coastal Big Sur region's worst fire in 20 years — a brush and timber blaze that blackened 4,100 acres.

Only 400 men remained of the nearly 1,700 who rushed to the scene Tuesday after an illegal campfire touched off the blaze. Most of the remaining crews were concentrated at the fire's extreme eastern edge three miles inland where the flames had proved hardest to control.

Officials said they expected to withdraw by today all but a handful of men who would remain to "mop up" for another week in the Ventana Wilderness area of Los Padres National Forest.

Three crew members and the pilot of a small helicopter deployed during the fire escaped serious injury when their craft flipped over while making a landing in turbulent weather. One man suffered minor cuts, but the helicopter was extensively damaged, forestry spokesman said.

EIGHT men were reported injured fighting the fire, but only two were seriously hurt. One man broke a leg and another sustained a concussion in a fall down a steep slope.

Nearly all the 2,000 vacationers and residents who fled the popular recreation area when the fire broke out had returned. Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park reopened as did most private campgrounds.

The only properties known lost were a vacant housetrailer and a private garage.

The centuries-old redwoods in the area were able to withstand searing heat from the blaze and were not harmed, officials said.

MEANWHILE, a 1,100-acre brush fire triggered by the crash of a jet fighter plane burned out of control near Avenal Saturday.

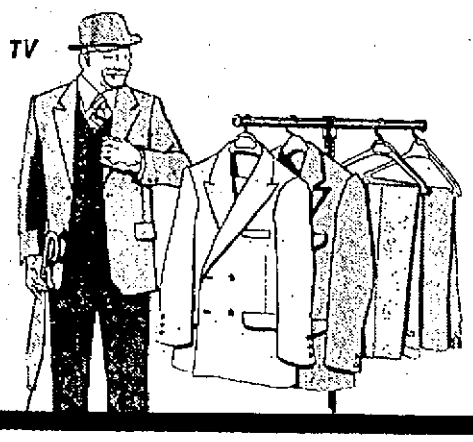

A spokesman for the California Division of Forestry said they hoped the blaze could be contained today, and fully controlled by Monday.

A fire fighter suffered minor injuries Saturday, officials said.

Near 100-degree temperatures and isolated flames that began pushing against firelines delayed a previously announced Saturday evening containment prediction, officials said.

Nixon camp shifts campaign priorities

By GAYLORD SHAW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's campaign committee has cut its radio-television budget by $3.5 million to bolster grass-roots organizing in a move to match Democratic nominee George McGovern's success in enlisting campaign volunteers.

The shift in spending comes as Nixon is stepping up his personal involvement in campaign planning. He now is conferring regularly with his political advisers and appears especially concerned about how he will fare in his home state of California.

From the Oval Office have flowed orders for Republicans to stress issues, not personalities, in the campaign. These orders reportedly apply to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, too, and there are indications Agnew has been urged to cool his rhetoric — at least for the time being.

The new Republican emphasis on precinct organization ties into a secondary GOP goal of giving Nixon "a more tractable Congress" during the second term his campaign chiefs are confident he will win in the election three months from now.

Re-election campaign director Clark MacGregor talked of the budget shuffling as he reported in an interview that more than 300,000 persons have been recruited toward a goal of having one million Republican volunteers in the field by Labor Day.

MacGregor didn't link the changes in campaign focus to McGovern's precinct organization, or to Republican hopes of dislodging anti-administration senators and congressmen.

But Republican strategists were clearly impressed with the Democratic contender's success in lining up local volunteers in the primaries, especially in crucial California.

And they apparently believe strong GOP precinct organizations will have more of a spin-off impact on Senate and congressional races than paid radio and television appearances by the President.

MacGregor said when he took over as campaign chief from John Mitchell on July 1, he found a solid set of campaign plans and a good staff. But he said he decided too much money had been allocated for radio and television advertising and not enough for precinct organizing.

So he ordered the $3.5 million cut in an advertising budget estimated at between $10 million and $12 million and directed the money into accelerated efforts to enlist volunteer workers under the GOP banner.

None of the money contributed to Nixon's re-election effort — an estimated $30 million — is being diverted into congressional races, MacGregor said, because "we think that would be improper."

But Nixon's bulge in the political polls enhance the possibility that he will get "a more tractable Congress" — one that will bring his long-stalled legislative proposals to a vote, MacGregor said.

With a friendlier Congress, MacGregor said, Nixon's "remarkable success in foreign policy could be matched by equally dramatic success" in domestic areas.

If the President maintains his current lead, the campaign director said, "it is inevitable we will have a Congress . . . more responsive in disposing of presidential proposals."

But MacGregor is cautioning about overoptimism in the Nixon camp. He stresses in talks to campaign workers that "what is true the first week of August in not necessarily true the first week in November." And he cites such precedents as 1968, when a large early Nixon lead evaporated and he barely defeated Democratic nominee Hubert H. Humphrey.

The campaign director said he expects "peace and prosperity" to emerge as Nixon's major campaign issues, with stress on progress toward a more peaceful world and progress toward a healthier domestic economy.

McGovern's camp has indicated it will pound at Nixon on such issues as the ITT case, the attempted bugging of Democratic headquarters and the GOP's refusal to list campaign contributions received before the new reporting law took effect.

MacGregor gave an indication of how Republicans will respond to the expected McGovern assault by declaring that the Democratic nominee's focus on such questions "shows how bankrupt his campaign is on the key issues.

Nixon's preoccupation with California has surfaced several ways:

—He has taken pains to stress to campaign lieutenants how important a victory there is, and reportedly told one he expects the fight for the state's 40 electoral votes to be close.

—Since taking over the campaign directorship when Mitchell heeded his wife's demand that he quit full-time politics, MacGregor has made one organizing foray into California—and plans another visit to Los Angeles and San Francisco on Wednesday.

—When Nixon gathered six trusted advisers for a political brainstorming session on the presidential yacht Thursday night, all but two were former Californians—a fact a presidential spokesman described as a coincidence.

GOP hits McGovern talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Robert J. Dole, Republican national chairman, said Saturday the party would demand free television time to respond to Sen. George McGovern's 15-minute broadcast address announcing he had chosen R. Sargent Shriver as his vice presidential running mate.

Dole charged in a statement that McGovern had made an "obvious misuse" of public-service broadcast time because the Shriver announcement accounted for only a small portion of the time used.

As for the selection of Shriver for the second spot on the Democratic ticket, Dole said "a lot remains to be seen about Mr. Shriver's qualifications."

Bad wine imports flood U.S.

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

A glut of inferior foreign wine flooding the American market has prompted an ancient Latin warning: caveat emptor.

The Romans meant "Let the buyer beware."

The same caution, substantiated and augmented by similar admonitions from responsible spokesmen, came from the chief spokesman for California's booming wine industry.

Harry G. Serlis, president of the Wine Institute, said in a press conference at the Bel Air Hotel:

"The soaring demand for wine, its rising popularity in America, has led to an all-time high in imports—imports that are too often improperly labeled, mediocre, or downright bad."

SERLIS CITED statistics showing Italian imports are up 47 per cent, French up 65 per cent, and Spanish up 125 per cent during the first quarter of this year.

The vintners of Europe produced a record four billion gallons of wine last year, according to a recent report from the European Common Market Commission.

This output overflowed the market and drove down price and quality, according to the report which indicated that less than 25 per cent of the production was so-called quality wine, and more than 2 per cent of the total remained unsold.

The commission report indicated that fraud in labeling and the disguising of a wine's origin is frequent. An example discovered by a New York shopper, said Serlis, was a Spanish import labeled "Pouilly Puisse." This is a tiny area west of Macon in France's Burgundy district. The wine is world renowned for its green-gold color, its special bouquet and flinty flavor taste—characteristics particular to no other wine anywhere else in the world.

ANOTHER Spanish import bore a Zinfandel label, according to Serlis. But that varietal wine is a product of grapes grown only in California.

Another example: Beaujolais, a vast vineyard area in South Burgundy, yields a fragrant, distinctly fruity wine with none of the aging qualities of a Bordeaux or a fine Burgundy. Yet today Beaujolais is commonly the most adulterated wine in France, according to recent articles in French and American dailies. Exports from Algeria, Australia and South America often make up more than half the contents of a bottle labeled Beaujolais.

Italian wine growers are viewed with distrust because of recent reports of adulteration, according to a May 28 New York Times story.

"In several recent scandals, Italian wines were said to have been concocted from apples, molasses, synthetic alcohol, dates, figs, and considerable unsanitary material," according to the Times article.

Buyers should beware, however, not just because the wine is misrepresented on a label; they should question paying even a bargain price for a product that could only qualify as rough "vin ordinaire" in Europe.

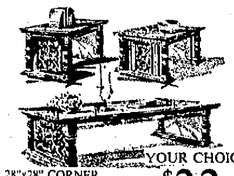

BY CONTRAST—and not by way of sour grapes—Serlis explained that misrepresentation is impossible in California wines.

"Uniformly high quality control and rigid inspections and standards are an ironclad guarantee that what's in the bottle is what's printed on the label," he declared.

"These are standards not imposed on vintners—they have been sought by the industry in its constant drive to achieve and maintain the highest quality control anywhere in the world," Serlis declared.

New wine controls needed

The regulation of California wines includes labels which must be approved by a federal bureau. State and federal field inspectors maintain a mutual exchange of information on most phases of the industry, Serlis explained. Tax people check records of planting and production, state public health officials check quality and varieties, sanitation and safety. The federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has an overall supervision of production, transportation, storage, labeling and advertising, he said.

WITH ALL these controls, however, California has no trouble exporting to the countries which are currently flooding America with their inferior products, Serlis says. This is because the European Common Market countries have consortium regulations designed to exclude wines from outside the market and to give preferential treatment only to inexpensive wines for blending, he says.

The ease of importing an inferior wine was explained by Serlis:

"All that's necessary is to find someone with a license and then pay about six cents a bottle plus shipping. Our government does not enforce restrictions on sanitation, grape content, or size of bottle. Our standard is 25.6 ounces, whereas theirs are usually between 21 and 23.6. In other words, it takes at least 13 of theirs to hold the contents of a standard case of 12 California bottles."

SERLIS IS concerned that a credibility gap may develop among new customers who are a major part of the record high California market.

"The reason wine has become so much a part of American life recently is the uniformly high quality of California wine," he declares.

"Any product that falls below that standard may disillusion the new buyer and reflect on the whole industry — regardless of the fact that it is an import. I think there is still a residual feeling that a wine may be good just because it's imported," he said.

Backup for Serlis' concern with the influx of inferior wine comes from French government officials and top wine men.

M. Pierre Launeho, technical adviser to the French Ministry of Agriculture, declared late last year: "We all know of regions where the wine, even if it is the product of a given area, is not worthy of the appellation." Robert Drouhin, a prominent wine merchant from Burgundy, said recently, "It is deplorable that bad wines are put on the market. I think that if all growers were honest and conscientious there would be no need for regulations. . ."

In the meantime — and until new controls are effective — the Romans have the last word: caveat emptor.

Silence gets man arrested

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Police suspected that Eugene Howell was a little too tight-lipped Friday when they approached his car, so they pried apart his clenched teeth. Officers said they extracted 10 number slips worth $83 that Howell, 61, apparently shoved into his mouth when he spotted the patrolmen.

He was charged with operating a lottery, and a hearing was set for Tuesday.

NEARLY 40 CARS of an Alaska Railroad freight train burn along the new Anchorage - Fairbanks highway after a collision with an empty tank truck. Half of the truck is in the lower left portion of the picture, while the tank part straddles the highway to the right of the train. The truck driver was injured in the crash Saturday.

Cancer scientist discovers chemical avenue for study

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A University of Utah microbiologist said Saturday he has found evidence that there is a chemical difference between cancer cells and normal cells.

Dr. Frank J. O'Neill said the discovery would offer no hope of helping those now suffering from the disease, "but it opens a new avenue of approach in cancer research."

"Previously," he said, "cancer has been extensively studied only biologically and histologically (tissue by tissue) — not biochemically."

O'Neill, who did his research on humans, hamsters and mice at the Salt Lake City Veterans' Hospital, said an unknown control mechanism appears to check a process known as chromosome pulverization in healthy cells, while it allows it to go unchecked in cancerous ones.

Chromosome pulverization is an abnormality associated with blood and glandular cancer, O'Neill said. In cells with two or more nuclei the first one to divide pushes the others, forcing them to divide.

"If they are not ripe for division, their chromosomes become pulverized," he said. Chromosomes are rod-shaped bodies in the nucleus of all living cells which carry genetic information.

By adding a chemical called cytochalasin B, O'Neill and his fellow researchers found that the chromosomes were pulverized when nuclei divided many times in cancer cells, while in normal cells the nuclei divided only once and there was no pulverization.

Cytochalasin B prevents cytoplasmic division but still allows nuclei to split.

"The results suggest that there is a mechanism in normal cells that controls nuclear division," O'Neill said. "If the mechanism can now be isolated, it will give us a molecular basis for determining the precise defect in cancer cells and why they have unlimited growth."

O'Neill, who has been working on the cytochalasin B research for three years, said he now plans to conduct further studies in which tumor viruses will be added to normal cells to see if pulverization can be artifically induced.

"This may shed more light on the viral causation theory of cancer," O'Neill said.

The step after that, he said, will be to fuse a healthy cell with a cancerous one to see which is strongest.

"If the normal nucleus dominates, it will expedite our search for the control mechanism and help us activate it in cancer cells to curtail their growth," he said.

"Chromosomes are often lost in fused cells, so that the hybrid cell contains only one or two chromosomes from the parental cells. If this happens, and the cancer nucleus is dominant, we may be able to pinpoint the cancer-carrying chromosome.

"For instance, if the human chromosome No. 1 contains the cancer carrying information, then only those hybrids with this element will show the defective control mechanism.

"Hybrids with any of the other chromosomes but without No. 1 will appear normal."

Russ want U.S. drug outlets

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. (AP)— A top Russian trade official said Saturday the Soviet Union wants American drug companies to apply for licenses to distribute Russian drugs in the West.

Irina D. Savchenko, a chemical engineer and No. 2 ranking official in the Russian import-export agency Licensintorg, addressed a joint symposium of American and Soviet scientists on the possibility of drug trade.

"Mrs. Savchenko told us how to go about getting an American license for Russian drugs and told us our business was in demand in the Soviet Union," said Richard McDermaid, chief of the Food and Drug Administration's foreign inspection program.

"She said sometimes the licenses could be exchanged for cash, sometimes for royalties, and sometimes for combination of both," said McDermaid.

He is FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards' representative at the first meeting of medical experts from the two superpowers.

Train derails in crash with truck, fuel tanker blows up

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — One of 10 tank cars loaded with aviation fuel "blew sky high" Saturday just seven hours after 36 cars of an Alaska Railroad train were derailed in a collision with a truck 35 miles north of Anchorage.

The blast cut off telephone service north of Houston where the new Anchorage-Fairbanks highway crosses the tracks.

THERE WERE no immediate reports of injuries in the blast. The truck driver was treated in a Palmer hospital for minor injuries sustained in the collision.

A pall of smoke rising upwards of 5,000 feet over the scene was visible in the northern sky from Anchorage.

Diane Nichols, who lives in Houston, drove 10 miles to reach a telephone to call newsman Bill Blessington at radio station KHAR in Anchorage.

"It just went sky high," she reported.

The tank car had been burning since the accident in which the train chopped the truck and its tanker trailer in half.

The train consisted of six locomotives and 96 cars but only 36 of the cars derailed.

Theodore Lesko, the truck driver for Mukluk Freight Lines, was taken to Palmer shortly after the accident at 4 a.m.

THE ORIGINAL collision sent plumes of black smoke a mile high and this brought an Air Force fire fighting helicopter and two bombers operated by the Bureau of Land Management to the scene to guard against possible forest fires.

The three aircraft were at the scene when the tank car blew up.

Delbert Allen, assistant general manager of the railroad, said five tank cars and two box cars carried at least 100,000 pounds of jet fuel, aviation gas, diesel, oil, stove oil and motor gas. Five other tank cars carried fuel oil. The rolling stock was valued at $500,000, he added.

Alcoholism blamed in GI spy trial

TYNDALL AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — M. Sgt. Walter Perkins pleaded innocent on Saturday to attempted espionage, claiming he was temporarily insane because of acute alcoholism.

The civilian attorney for the 20-year Air Force veteran also contended that his client's motive for stealing secret defense documents "was political. It didn't involve monetary concerns."

Perkins, accused of trying to smuggle secret documents to Soviet spies in Mexico City, was unable to "adhere to the right" because of his alcoholism, defense attorney Henry Rothblatt told military Judge Col. Joe Peck.

Rothblatt told newsmen during a recess that Perkins, the ranking noncommissioned intelligence officer at the Air Defense Weapons center here, was troubled by U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia and the plight of American pilots in North Vietnamese prison camps.

PERKINS WAS based in Vietnam from 1964 to 1966.

Rothblatt said he would call medical experts Monday to testify that these political convictions, plus Perkins' acute alcoholism had rendered his client temporarily insane.

Perkins, a balding father of four, sat impassively playing with a legal pad as Rothblatt entered the plea on his behalf.

The plea ended the preliminary phase of the court-martial during which defense attorneys sought unsuccessfully for three days to have the charges dismissed.

Perkins had "a propensity for note taking while looking at secret documents," testified Lt. Col. Frank Droghn, chief of Air Force counterintelligence for the Western Hemisphere.

Droghn, who supervised the investigation that led to Perkins' arrest Oct. 18 at the nearby Panama City Airport, said he had authorized that hidden TV cameras be trained on Perkins at his work area on the base.

Elaborate plans made for return of POWs

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN

EXCLUSIVE
N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — Although neither an end to the Vietnam War nor a release of American prisoners of war seems imminent, the administration has quietly drawn up a detailed program, codenamed Operation Egress Recap, for the eventual return and rehabilitation of the more than 500 Americans believed held captive in Southeast Asia.

"The purpose of Operation Egress Recap is to ensure that everything conceivable is anticipated ahead of time, so that when our men are released, they are treated with dignity, respect, understanding, love and kindness, all the way up and down the line," one State Department official said.

A Defense Department official said, "We want to try to return the men to their families in conditions as close to what they were when they went in."

To coordinate this policy, an administration official disclosed, a special meeting will be held in Hawaii next Thursday, with representatives from the State Department, the Defense Department, the military services, the Pacific and Southeast Asian commands and the U.S. embassies in Saigon and Vientiane, Laos, taking part.

The administration has not publicized the Hawaii meeting because it did not want to stir up unwarranted optimistic speculation about the prospects for ending the war or for securing the release of prisoners, an official said.

"This is just a contingency meeting so that all our ducks are in order, when and if Hanoi lets the POWs' go," he said, adding that planning on Operation Egress Recap began in the last year of the Johnson administration. Its code name was given two years ago. It was unclear what "recap" stood for.

The plans detail what hospitals will be used to treat the returnees, require that personnel officers be on hand when the men are released to brief them individually on any promotions they received on how much money they have in the bank, and calls for tailors to be present so the men can have uniforms that fit as soon as possible.

The planning for the prisoners' release has underscored the sensitivity of the Nixon administration to the prisoner issue.

With growing impatience, many wives and families of the prisoners and of the even larger group of 1,200 men listed as missing in action in the Indochina fighting have complained about the inability of the administration to secure the release of the men.

President Nixon has made the release of the prisoners — and information about the missing men — a principal part of his negotiating position on Vietnam. His administration has also made a political issue of the prisoners, focusing world attention on the refusal of the North Vietnamese to allow the International Red Cross access to their camps.

The administration, moreover, has been troubled by the humanitarian aspects of the anticipated prisoner return. Psychiatric and medical studies have warned that because many of the prisoners have been held captive for long periods of time — today marks the eighth anniversary of the capture of the first pilot over North Vietnam, Navy Lt. (J.G.) Everett Alvarez — there may be difficult periods of adjustments for the men and their families.

Many wives have voiced apprehension about their ability to communicate with their husbands after separations of many years.

Psychiatrists, invited to speak to groups of wives, have warned the women about problems their husbands may have, such as temporary impotency, periods of depression and a tendency to become involved in accidents. But several psychiatrists, according to wives interviewed, have made the point that "your husband will be what you expect him to be."

"If you expect that he will be the same as when he left, he wil probably be that way. If you believe he will be a vegetable, and you indicate that to him, he may end up that way," one doctor said.

Under the guidelines drawn up, the following points emerge:

— Upon their release, prisoners will be flown to nearby United States medical ficilities, such as Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. The men will not be segregated by service, but assigned according to availability of beds. At those Pacific hospitals medical teams will determine when the men can be evacuated to the United States. This will be done by Air Force medical evacuation planes. An earlier Navy plan to use hospital ships was rejected by the administration on the grounds it would be too slow an operation. In the United States, the men will be assigned to hospitals as close to their hometowns as possible, and families will be able to visit them there.

— An effort will be made to avoid big "homecoming" receptions for the returned prisoners, because past studies have shown that most prisoners were too shaken up by the experience to benefit from them. "a repatriated prisoner of war is not emotionally ready to fanfare for some time after release," a psychiatric study found.

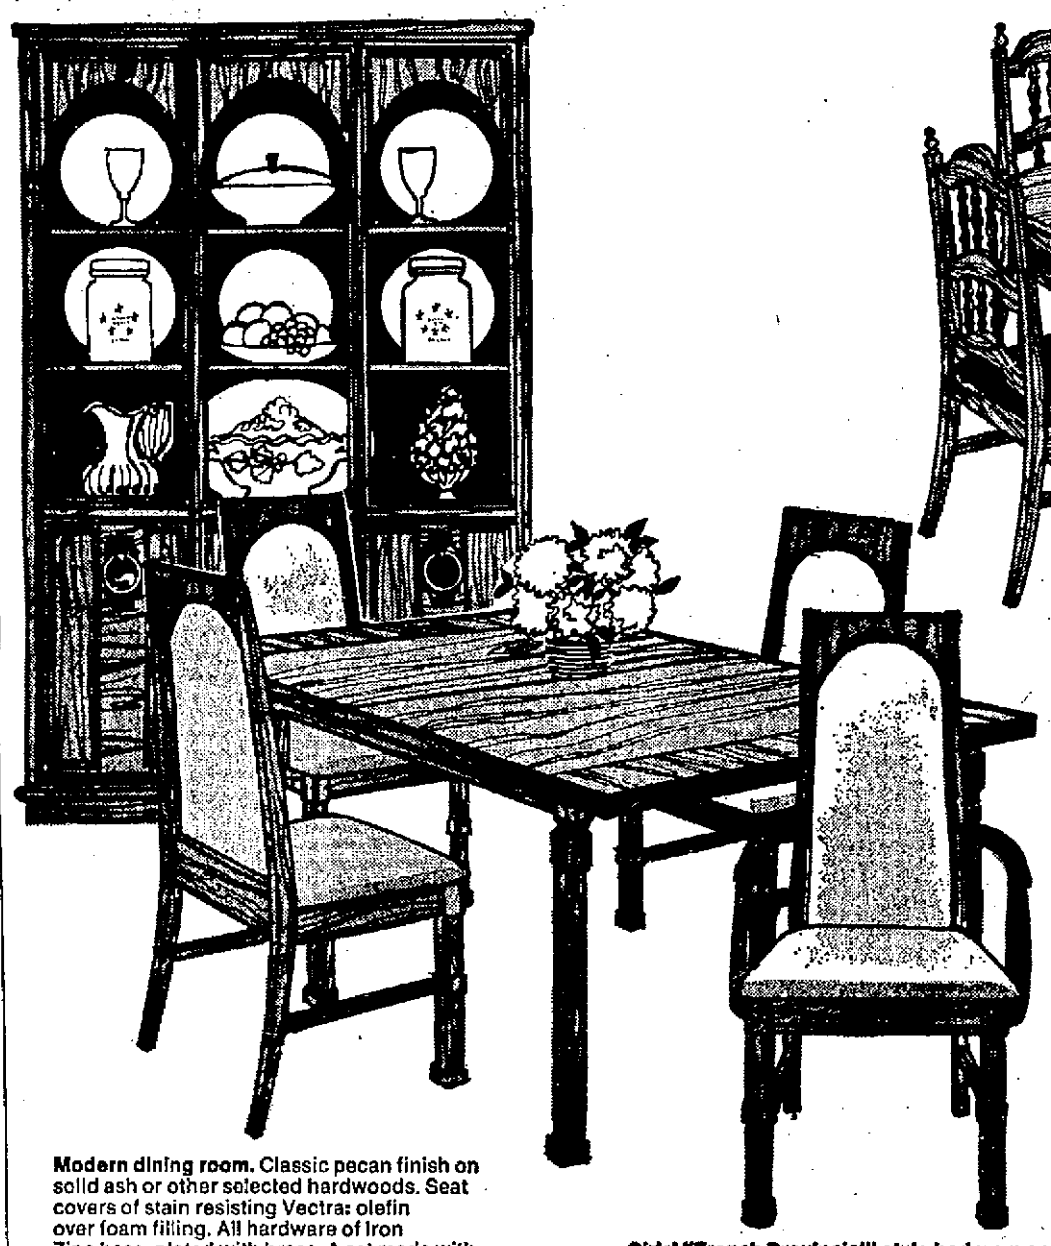

— Special intelligence teams will seek to quiz the returnees about the men listed as missing to clear up the ambiguities caused by discrepancies in lists of prisoners. The Pentagon, as of July 29, counted 1,251 men missing and 518 in captivity. Of those captured, the Pentagon lists 409 in North Vietnam, but Hanoi has acknowledged only 373 prisoners. The North Vietnamese have said an additional 20 Americans died in camps, but the Pentagon has refused to list them as dead, and continues to pay their families regular salaries and other benefits, contending they are not "dead" until Hanoi fills out the authorized Red Cross forms giving causes of death. The Viet Cong have provided no list of prisoners, but did allow 18 Americans to wirte letters last year.

The Pentagon carries 104 men as captured by the Viet Cong. The Pentagon also lists five men captured in Laos, but the Pathet Lao have said nothing about prisoners.

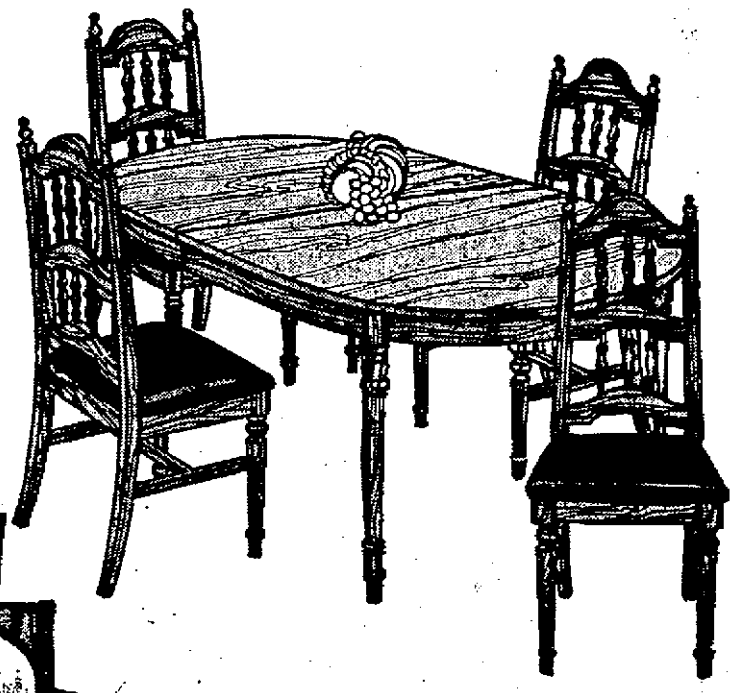

— Except when information indicates that a returned prisoner committed a crime against his comrades, no legal action is contemplated against prisoners who might have made broadcasts or signed antiwar letters. Intelligence officers have been instructed not to make the returnees feel guilty for such actions.

Palos Verdes building delay urged

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

County supervisors should defer action on proposed high-density apartment development in unincorporated peninsula areas pending a vote on establishment of a fourth city on Palos Verdes Peninsula, according to Assemblyman James A. Hayes, R-Long Beach, candidate for supervisor, 4th District.

Superior Court Judge Richard Schauer ruled Thursday in favor of the environmentalist Save Our Coastline organization in ordering further study by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors on applications for two multimillion dollar apartment developments. The ruling specifically ordered consideration of the environmental impact of the developments.

Hayes said, "The peninsula is unique in the Fourth District and its residents feel the area's country-like characteristics should be preserved. They are fearful that just one or two high density developments of the type under question could start an irreversible trend, a trend that might turn the peninsula into just another stretch of city.

"It is for that reason that there is a strong move for local control — home rule. The vote on whether a fourth city should be incorporated will settle the question." Hays has endorsed the November ballot initiative measure that, if passed, would strengthen control of development along the coastline.

Judge Schauer's order sions in cases covering development of about 108 acres north of Point Vincente between the shoreline and Palos Verdes Drive West.

BOND APPOINTS

Bill Bond, Republican nominee for the East Long Beach-Signal Hill 39th Assembly District, announced the appointment of Ralph Blood as his alternate to the 32nd Congressional District Republican Central Committee.

Blood, a native of Long Beach and a World War Navy veteran, has been a member of the Long Beach Lifeguard Service for 29 years. He is an Elk and a director of Los Altos Little League. He lives with his wife and three children at 5760 E. 23rd St.

Bond said Blood, "an untiring worker," deserves much of the credit for Bond's successful Primary campaign.

DEUK SPEECH

State Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, will speak at the 1 p.m. Wednesday meeting of the Long Beach Council of Republican Women in the Lafayette Hotel French Room, after a noon coffee hour.

Deukmejian will discuss the Senior Citizen Property Tas Assistance Program, licensing and regulation of auto repair shops and disclosure of funeral prices and consumer warranties.

GOP HQ HOURS

Republican Headquarters for the Long Beach area 38th and 44th Assembly Districts, 3386 Orange Ave., announced office hours from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. from page houser politics Monday through Aug. 18, with a deputy registrar of voters on duty at all times.

Registration deadline for the Nov. 7 general election is Oct. 8. Registrants must be at least 18 and a resident of the state, county and precinct for 30 days.

Registered voters must reregister if they have had a change of name, change of address, wish to change party affiliation or did not vote in the last general election. Registration also is in order for persons having reached age 18. MRS.

MRS. KLOOS NAMED

Mrs. John A. Kloos, president of the Rossmoor-Los Alamitos Republican Women's Club Federated, has been named city chairman for the Orange County Committee to Reelect the President.

Mrs. Kloos, 11912 Foster Rd., Los Alamitos, will oversee precinct chairmen and other volunteers in Los Alamitos and Rossmoor. Other staffers will be Mrs. Richard Berryman, assistant chairman; Mmes. Gordon Greer and James McClymonds, area chairmen, and James Knowles, registration.

TICKET COMPLETED

2 Birchers head American Party

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The American Party completed its presidential ticket Saturday with the nomination of Tom Anderson, a Tennessee weekly newspaper editor and self-styled "crusader for freedom," as its vice presidential candidate.

That gave the party two members of the John Birch Society at the top of the ticket it hopes to get on the ballot in 40 or more states in the November election.

Rep. John G. Schmitz, a lame duck California congressman, who severed his connections with the Republican Party to become the American Party presidential nominee, is a John Birch member like Anderson.

Anderson was nominated by acclamation after four others whose names had been put before the convention withdrew in Anderson's favor.

THEY WERE Richard B. Kay of Cleveland, Ohio, an unsuccessful candidate for the presidential nomination; Homer Fikes of Texas, Bob Mess of Tennessee, and Clay Smothers, a Dallas, Tex., black newscaster.

Smothers was a candidate for vice president at the Democratic national convention but was defeated.

The 61-year-old vice presidential nominee at one time owned 14 weekly farm magazines in the South, but now has only one, Florida Growers and Ranchers, and publishes a weekly newspaper editorial service.

A graduate of Vanderbilt University, Anderson went into the securities business after he got out of school, then began looking for a weekly newspaper, he said, "to crusade for freedom" and ultimately built it to a chain of 14.

IN RECENT years he has sold all but one.

He also is a farmer and lives at Pigeon Forge, Tenn.

Meanwhile, Schmitz charged that Sen. George McGovern was "set up by a conspiracy group as a patsy" so President Nixon could be re-elected.

Schmitz told newsmen the President also is a tool of the same group.

Schmitz, who was defeated for renomination as a Republican two months ago, said his new party will be on the ballot in 35 to 40 states in November.

He conceded that "our chances are minimal," but compared them to a spark which can grow into a huge fire if it falls on dry leaves.

"The political situation in the country now," he added, "is like dry leaves."

Panther pair held on U.S. charge

DES MOINES (UPI) — The head of the international section of the Black Panther Party and his wife were indicted by a federal grand jury here Friday for alleged passport violations.

U.S. District Attorney Allen Donielson named Felix and Charlotte O'Neal in the indictment, and charged them with making false statements to obtain passports in Des Moines in October, 1970.

Daley resumes spot as delegation votes

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention, including for the first time Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, Saturday elected six of its members as representatives to the party's national committee.

The 170-member Illinois delegation gave Daley a standing ovation when the mayor entered the caucus room to take a seat which he had been denied at the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach.

Delegates to the convention last month voted to seat the 59 so-called Chicago challengers, led by Alderman William Singer and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, instead of Daley and 58 fellow Chicagoans.

The Singer - Jackson group, prevented by a court injunction from taking seats in the caucus, met Friday night to select their own nominees to the national committee and promised to challenge the seating of those chosen in Saturday's party caucus.

Under the chairmanship of State Rep. Clyde Choate, D-Anna, the delegates in two hours nominated and elected six Illinois members to the national committee, the policy-making arm of the party. The national committee will meet Tuesday in Washington to select a vice presidential running mate for Sen. George S. McGovern.

Manatt views Shriver as asset

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

The chairman of the California Democratic Central Committee, meeting Saturday in Anaheim, said the party suffered a blow when Sen. Edmund Muskie rejected the second spot on the ticket, but indicated that Sargent Shriver would be an asset as vice presidential candidate.

Charles Manatt of Los Angeles said Sen. George S. McGovern's selection of Shriver "would probably bring the Kennedy family organization into play."

Asked by newsmen if he thought Shriver would be considered an Establishment man, Manatt said, "I am not sure."

Then he told reporters he would "support Sen. McGovern's judgment.

The California Democratic leader, however, said delays in the selection of McGovern's running mate have been damaging.

But he said Democrats will overwhelm Republicans by the sheer momentum of the party's drive.

Manatt said the goal is to increase Democratic voter strength by one million before the Nov. 7 general election and to "outnumber the Republicans 6 to 4 in California." He said the party will concentrate continuing effort to register members of minority groups.

"It surprised me to learn that, in some minority areas, only one in seven potential voters is registered," Manatt said.

Once they are registered as Democrats, minorities cannot be wooed away by Republicans, Mannet asserted.

He announced formation of a Democrat congressional campaign committee with Congressman Richard T. Hanna of Fullerton as chairman.

The committee will meet today "to kick off its program of helping party nominees," he said.

Manatt also scheduled a session of the state platform committee for Aug. 19.

$7,000 reward for killers of L.B. businessmen heads list

As part of these newspapers' Secret Witness program, summaries of all cases in which rewards are offered are printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Thursday and Sunday. To summarize briefly:

—A $7,000 reward, the largest thus far offered, is guaranteed for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers of Cyril and James Ball on Dec. 26, 1970.

The father-and-son businessmen were shot numerous times in the head in an "execution type" slaying in their Long Beach sporting goods store at 345 Long Beach Blvd. shortly after 4 p.m. The killers took about $1,000 cash and more than 20 handguns before fleeing. Witnesses told police they saw three young men in or around the store at about the same time.

The first suspect was described as between 18 and 21 years old, 5 ft. 7 in. tall, weighing about 145 pounds, "curly and dirty" blond with shoulder-length hair. He wore glasses and had on a buckskin jacket with fringe on the back and blue jeans.

The second suspect was described as 25 to 30 years old, with short, wavy blond hair and "always smiling." He wore a tan coat and dark trousers. The third suspect was described as between 22 and 28 years of age, thin, with long brown straight hair and a full, bushy moustache. He wore dark clothing.

—A $1,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrests and convictions of the members of a Long Beach area auto theft gang who steal cars from throughout the Southland and then, at one of a number of auto repair shops, strips them for parts.

—One thousand dollars are being offered as a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Vicki Lynne Miner, 16, of Buena Park, who was bludgeoned to death in late October or early November of 1970. Her body was found in Coyote Creek about a mile from her home and a mile from her school on Nov. 15 of that year.

—A $1,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the man who killed Gary Wayne Callow, 25, a Fullerton Junior College student, in the all-night Stop N Go Market in Stanton where he was working as a clerk on July 12, 1971. At about 1:40 a.m. Callow was shot once in the back by one of two men seen running from the store. The suspects, both white men in their early 20s, were clean cut in appearance. One was between 6-feet-2 and 6-feet-4 in height, thin of build with light-colored hair, and the other stood between 5-feet-2 and 5-feet-4, was thin, had dark brown or black hair and tattooed arms.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the men who fatally beat, tortured and burned disabled World War II veteran Clarence Huigar, 53, of 1386 Peterson Ave., after breaking into his home at about 10:30 p.m. on Sunday, March 19. Huigar died of his injuries 25 days later, on April 13. The men are described as Negroes in their mid-20s, one 6 ft. tall, weighing about 180 pounds, with a medium-length Afro hair-do, and the other 5 feet 4 inches, weighing about 150 pounds. In connection with the case, Long Beach police are seeking, for questioning only, Sandra Sue Razor, 22, a white woman 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing 140 pounds, with blonde hair and blue eyes. Police said Miss Razor, a known narcotics addict who has been convicted of prostitution, is believed to be in the Long Beach-Los Angeles area. Robbery was the motive.

—A $2,000 reward is in effect for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who bludgeoned to death Lino Campos, 40, and his son, Gavino, 18, both of Baja California, last Feb. 10. Their bodies were found near the trailer in which they slept each time they made a trip to the A and J Wrecking Yard, 22632 S. Alameda St., Carson.

—A $2,000 reward is in force for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Mrs. Marguerite June Makeig, 50, shot in the head and killed when she returned to her home, 10608 Felson St., Bellflower, on the afternoon of Aug. 11, 1971. Mrs. Makeig had been shopping. When she walked into her living room, someone armed with a small-caliber handgun fired once, the bullet striking her in the head.

—Two thousand dollars are being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the men who killed Elliot C. Lawson, 38, during a holdup at the Atlantic Inn, 1854 Atlantic Ave., at about 1:10 a.m. on July 16, 1971. The killer is described as a Negro, about 25 years old, 5-feet-7, 130 pounds, with a two-inch Afro hairdo. The man has a slender face, large eyes, a slender nose, and a smooth, medium complexion. He has a deep voice, is straight in posture and is well-groomed.

—A $2,000 reward is in effect for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who killed Horace William Clark, 19, a Marine corporal stationed at Camp Pendleton, who was stabbed to death in Wilmington last Christmas Day. Clark left the base alone at about 8 a.m. to have Christmas dinner with friends in Wilmington, but never arrived. His body was found the next morning beside a dirt road leading to a junkyard at 831 Sampson Ave.

—A $2,000 reward is in effect for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of cab driver Michael A. Miller, 27, of Downey, who worked the night shift for the Southeast Taxi Co., Compton. Miller was found dead at about 11:20 June 8. He had been shot twice in the back of the head in the 200 block of East Reeve Street.

—A $2,000 reward is in force for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Independent, Press-Telegram pressman Frank M. Schiavone, 41, and his wife, Shirley, 44, who were shot from ambush May 9 upon returning to their home in Westminster after an evening out. Westminster police are seeking to question a man believed to have been the last person to have seen the Schiavones alive. The man was with them in Woody's Bar, Springdale Avenue and Garden Grove Boulevard, Westminster, shortly before they were murdered. He is described as a white man in his mid-20s to early 30s, from 5-feet-10 to 6-feet-1 in height, with wavy, dark brown hair, a medium-dark, olive complexion and a pock-marked square face with high cheekbones.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers of Long Beach auto wholesaler Robert Wilson Cogley, 44, shot to death in the parking lot of the Highway Center Liquor Store, Pacific Coast Highway and California Avenue, at 1:40 a.m. last Aug. 12. Cogley's killers are described as Negroes between 16 and 19 years old, and from 5-feet-7 to 5-feet-10 in height.

—A $2,000 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction of the killer of cab driver Donald Eugene Beard, 44, shot to death Dec. 24 in the 1200 block of Loma Vista Drive at about 4:20 a.m. Prior to his death, Beard told police a car containing five Negro men pulled up to the curb and that the man sitting on the front passenger's seat asked him how to get to Willow Street, aimed a pistol and fired.

How to become Secret Witness

This is how the last page of your "Secret Witness" letter should look after you have typed or printed your information about a crime.

DO NOT SIGN YOUR NAME. Instead, select a code name for yourself ... any name, as long as it's not your own ... and place it and a code number at the bottom of your letter. The code number should combine three letters and three numbers in any combination.

Tear off and keep a corner of the last page, with the same code name and number on it. Mail your letter to "Secret Witness," P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, 90801.

Secret Witness seeks information from the public fugitives and the arrest leading to the capture of and conviction of other criminals. For this purpose, a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal, or the capture of a fugitive, in cases publicized in his column. Rewards also will be paid for information resulting in arrests and convictions in cases not published by Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight weekdays, or from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. Do NOT give us your name. Or, write to Secret Witness at the following address: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

GUNWOMAN CHICKENS OUT ... $1.50 WORTH

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — An overweight woman in a purple dress pulled a gun on an employe at a Tampa restaurant and demanded two bags of fried chicken, police said Saturday.

"She just walked in, pulled a gun from her brassiere and said, 'I want some chicken,' " said Police Lt. Joe Pelkington. "The guy behind the counter filled up two bags and she said, 'Okay, that's enough' and left."

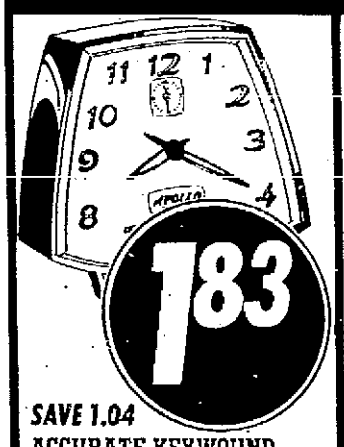

Employes at Sporty Chicken said the six pieces of chicken taken were valued at $1.50.

Low ceiling

Q. I am an artificial kidney patient who must have dialysis treatments three times a week. I am single, with no outstanding financial obligations and Medi-Cal pays my medical bills. I am able to work part time for a weekly gross salary of $68. Under Medi-Cal regulations, I must give the state anything over $178 a month that I earn. This makes it impossible to pay for food, rent and clothing. The local Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services office says there is nothing they can do. Is there any way people like myself can get some help? W.D., Long Beach.

A. No. Until some sort of state welfare legislation is enacted to aid Medi-Cal patients like yourself with catastrophic disease, you will have to continue to reimburse the state from the amount you earn. According to a spokesman for DPSS, the amount you are left with now each month after the state takes its share is the same you'd receive if you quit your job and applied for public assistance. "So, aside from the sense of well-being working must give him, he really is not financially ahead by retaining a job. Hopefully, some changes at the state level in the near future will aid difficult cases like his."

Exclusive society

Q. Recently my neighbor told me he heard about a club called The Jim Smith Society exclusively for persons with that name. I am a Jim Smith and would like to join. Can ACTION LINE get more information? J.S., Long Beach.

A. Any James, Jim or Jimmy Smith, male or female, can join the Jim Smith Society by writing founder and president James H. Smith Jr., 2016 Milltown Road, Camp Hill, Pa. 17011. Lifetime membership dues are $5, president Smith told ACTION LINE. "We are a group of Jim Smiths, wholly dedicated to fun and the dissemination of news about Jim Smiths," he said. "We publish a quarterly newsletter, which is an editor's nightmare. Every item is somehow related to a Jim Smith." The society currently has 340 members, in 40 states and five foreign countries. Three members are female "Jimmys." The group recently held its third annual National Jim Smith Fun Festival at Hamburg, N.Y., near Niagara Falls. "We played softball, with teams of Jim Smiths pitted against one another," Smith said, "and guess who was on first base."

Tax return

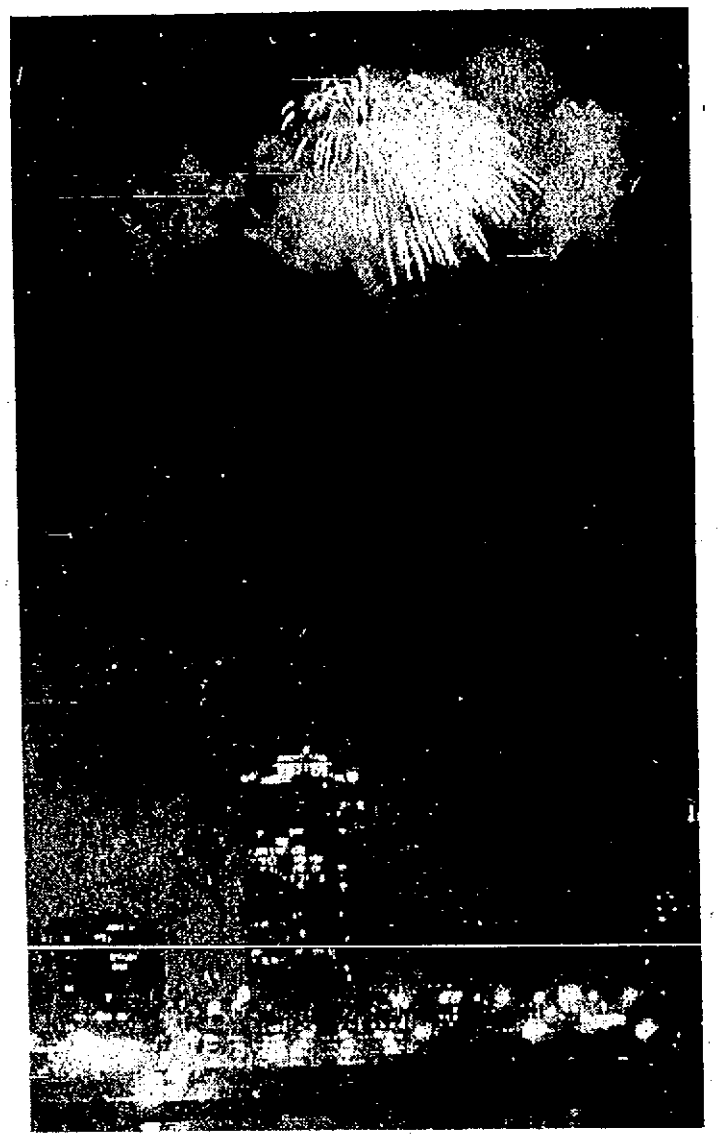

Q. On Sept. 12, 1971 we purchased a car at Cal Worthington's Dodge in South Gate. Their biggest sales pitch was that we'd receive the federal excise tax back. It's been almost a year and we've received nothing, even though we've contacted both Worthington Dodge and Chrysler Corp. numerous times. Can ACTION LINE help get our refund? L.W., Los Angeles

A. Your refund had just been mailed when ACTION LINE called Chrysler's federal excise tax department in Michigan. A spokesman for the department explained that the dealer had failed to include your name and address on the verification forms Chrysler needed before they could sent you a refund. When you receive your check, you should take the proof of refund to Worthington Dodge for a refund of that portion of your state sales tax. The IRS estimates that a total of about $1.2 billion will be refunded to consumers and dealers under the Revenue Act of 1971. Manufacturers have about 1 to 2 per cent or $10-20 million in remaining refunds to return by the Sept. 30 deadline. Possibly half of this will go unclaimed because of the auto dealers' inability to locate the owners, a Treasury Department information officer estimated. Most refunds still unpaid involve application problems.

Free choice

Q. If I do not vote for any of the presidential candidates in the November election will my votes for the other office seekers be counted or will my entire ballot be discarded? R.T.W., Long Beach

A. Your other votes will be counted, said Truman Chaffin, chief deputy, Registrar of Voters in Los Angeles. You aren't required to vote for candidates in all the categories, and if the instructions for a category tell you to vote for five of the following candidates, you can vote for less than five if you wish. However, if you vote for more than the stated number, the votes in the category will not be counted.

FESTIVAL FIREWORKS

This cluster of fireworks burst into a shower of light over the harbor Saturday night to open the seventh annual California International Sea Festival. The event, which will extend through Aug. 20, will include some 14 aquatic, sports and community events this year. Staff photographer Ron Carlson stood aboard the Queen Mary to catch the scene as the fireworks display lighted the Long Beach skyline. He was one of thousands aboard ship and along shore who saw the 45-minute exhibit of aerial pyrotechnics.

First treasure clue

This is the story of a Pirate called Retyah and how he came to bury his treasure here in Long Beach by the Sea!

To help him remember, yet to hinder others from understanding, he wrote the tale of his venture in a mysterious way. Or so he hoped! ! !

We have discovered his story and are going to share it with our readers. Over the next week, see if you can find where the treasure is. Each part of the tale may bring you closer to where the treasure is buried.

Watch closely for clues along the way. The trail is long, but at the end there is a pot of gold! !

And so the story goes ! ! ! !

"I followed the trail of the early California explorer, Junipero Serra. Walking south on his trail, I came upon a great open space overlooking the sea. This land was set aside to honor an early settler in Long Beach.

$7.9 million in drugs seized in 3 state haul

Hicks also said that Brotherhood members were also linked to many health food stores, juice bars, psychedelic shops and surf shops in California. These were used as fronts for sale and distribution of the drugs, the official said.

According to a Narcotics Bureau spokesman, the hashish smuggling operation was financed with funds pooled by members of the Brotherhood and their friends.

Task force officials said their investigation had revealed that the operation had smuggled nearly 1,000 pounds of hashish into the United States each month, much of it from Afghanistan. Acording to estimates, this would bring $4.3 million in illicit street sales.

Agents said that drugs imported by various schemes were "thinned" in the laboratories in Mariposa and San Diego counties.

Hicks said confidently that he thought the arrests and raids would "break the back of the Brotherhood's organized narcotics operations."

Hicks strongly condemned Leary, a one-time Harvard University lecturer who turned to LSD and lost his academic standing.

The drug advocate and his wife, Rosemary, and son, John, were arrested Dec. 26, 1968, in Laguna Beach on assorted narcotics charges and all were convicted.

Leary was sentenced to a prison term but was sent to Texas to be tried a second time for smuggling marijuana. He was convicted but escaped from the California Men's Colony near San Luis Obispo in September, 1970, before he was to start serving a 10-year sentence.

He and his wife fled the country and lived briefly in Algeria before moving to Switzerland.

"Dr. Leary has destroyed more lives than any other man," Hicks declared. "He has destroyed literally hundreds of thousands of persons. And through it all he lives comfortably and goes where he pleases, all without visible means of support."

When Leary was sentenced by Judge Byron K. McMillan in the Santa Ana Superior Court, he was excoriated as "an insidious man" who encouraged young people to try drugs.

Raiders strike huge oil depot

TRIESTE, Italy (AP) — More than seven million barrels of Arab oil destined for central Europe was endangered Saturday by raging flames from explosions that Palestine commandos claimed they set off at Trieste's big trans-Alpine pipeline terminal.

More than 1.45 million barrels of oil blazed as chain explosions shattered five of the terminal's 25 big storage tanks in four hours. Firemen from all over north Italy were rushed here to try to keep the increasing heat from setting off the rest of the oil tanks.

Italian police suspected that a well-drilled foreign commando team might have carried out the sabotage attack.

Even as Interpol was asked to investigate the foreign sabotage angle, the Black September Organization of Palestine saboteurs was quoted in Beirut as announcing the attack.

"A Black September unit of commandos blew up oil storage tanks in Trieste because they feed refineries in West Germany and Austria with Arab oil," the Palestine news agency WAFA reported in Beirut.

The guerrilla group was quoted as saying: "We will continue to hit hard at imperialist, pro-Zionist interests in Europe and the Middle East."

25 KILLED, 100 WOUNDED

Reds maul Quang Tri force

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese forces fighting to hold on to Quang Tri City battered two units of South Vietnamese marines Saturday night outside its walled Citadel, killing at least 25 government troops and wounding more than 100 in two separate battles.

Field officers said North Vietnamese casualties in the fighting were not known.

Both battles, the heaviest since Marines relieved paratroopers besieging the provincial capital 10 days ago, were fought between the Communist defense bastion in the Citadel and a ruined bridge a mile north of the fortress.

South Vietnamese forces launched a campaign five weeks ago to recapture Quang Tri, the country's northernmost provincial capital which was captured by North Vietnamese troops May 1 in the first weeks of the Communist offensive.

The Marines have been fighting through the rubble of the heavily bombarded city "house by house, floor by floor, window by window," as one U.S. adviser put it, since relieving the South Vietnamese paratroops.

Radio Hanoi said in an early Sunday broadcast monitored in Saigon that "many" U.S. warplanes "barbarously attacked many places" in and around the North Vietnamese capital Saturday. The broadcast said the planes shot "many rockets" onto two streets in Hanoi and bombed suburban areas killing several civilians, including at least two children.

The U.S. Command in Saigon does not comment on Radio Hanoi broadcasts, but other military sources siad there were no air strikes in the Hanoi area Saturday.

To the south, the old imperial capital of Hue was shaken Saturday when South Vietnamese forces blew up a North Vietnamese ammunition bunker discovered about 12 miles west of the city. And 50 miles south of Hue, a Communist bomb blew up the government information office in Da Nang, injuring two civilians and one soldier.

Near Saigon, South Vietnamese troops battled Communist forces hiding in tall grass, bunkers and fox holes along Highway 13 outside the long embattled provincial city of An Loc.

High allied officials predicted South Vietnamese forces will retake Quang Tri and the road to An Loc within a week. Both are major symbols of North Vietnamese successes during the spring offensive.

Radio Hanoi, monitored in Saigon, reported two U.S. jets were shot down over Hanoi Saturday — the eighth anniversary of the first loss of American warplanes over North Vietnam. The two jets brought to 3,799 the number of U.S. planes North Vietnam claims to have shot down since the air war began Aug. 4, 1964. The U.S. Command has said only 1,008 planes have been lost over the North.

tion and support he earned during his tenure as head of the Office of Economic Opportunity."

There had been contrary suggestions that the determined views against abortion of Shriver's wife, the former Eunice Kennedy, would be an obstacle to his selection, since McGovern has tried to keep the abortion issue out of the national campaign, saying it was a matter for the states to decide.

I had also been thought that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who discouraged Hubert Humphrey's interest in Shriver as a running mate in 1968, might veto his selection this year.

But Kennedy was reported not to have involved himself in the consideration of Shriver this year. And on the abortion issue, Mrs. Shriver's strong convictions and her independence were considered to have an appeal even to people who disagreed with her.

Some ranking members of the McGovern staff indicated without attribution, that they were delighted with Muskie's refusal and hinted that they had worked purposefully at discouraging him.

Even before Muskie made up his mind, word was circulating here that Frank Mankiewicz, the McGovern campaign's chief strategist, and Henry A. Kimelman, its finance director, had called Shriver on Cape Cod and told him to keep his hopes up and remain available as the next choice.

Stewart Mott, the young General Motors heir who has contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars to the McGovern campaign, commented this afternoon: "I don't know a single member of McGovern's staff that was enthusiastic about Muskie. The offer to Muskie is one of the greatest conundrums of our time. I expected that after the offer to Humphrey, McGovern would give it to Lyndon Johnson or Richard Daley."

Excerpts from McGovern's address Saturday night made no mention of Shriver or the vice presidential selection process.

Reviewing the Eagleton affair, McGovern asserted that although the Missouri senator had triumphed over his illness, "disclosure of psychiatric treatment stirred a powerful sense of uneasiness in many Americans."

In a fresh statement of his purpose, McGovern agreed with President Nixon that the 1972 campaign offered the clearest political choice of a century." He gave briefer attention to the war in Vietnam than in most of his speeches to date, though he said again that ending the war was his first priority.

"The chronicle of America, like some great river, sweeps into the future," he said toward the close of a speech hat was drafted by Richard N. Goodwin, a Kennedy speechwriter. "It cannot be mastered by clinging to threatened banks, but only by those who, unafraid and desiring, set out upon powerful and uncertain currents—transforming shifting dangers and unimaginable change into a trail for a new American journey.

"This time not a journey to a distant coast, but inward toward the most powerful aspirations of the human heart: To make this society—its factories, institutions, government—serve each person's right to extend all the powers of his humanity to the limit of possibility. That is what Thomas Jefferson meant when he claimed for us the pursuit of happiness."

Preventers--30 cons tell terrors of prison

can talk to him, what words you can use."

Bart Choice is another Prison Preventer and feels the same way.

Reared in a New York Italian neighborhood, he claims his first problem with crime began when he returned from the service in 1960. His first crime involved writing a check without sufficient funds to cover it. Since then, he's been an inmate at San Quentin, Vacaville, the California Rehabilitation Center and CIM at Chino. Narcotics, he says, has also been one of his problems: "I've been through every narcotic—except heroin."

But prison, he claims, is just as addicting as anything else.

"You can get hooked on the joint, you have to get by that —you have to get tired of it—to stay out."

A screen writer by profession, the mustached young convict labels prison "psychological genocide."

"The riots, ripoffs and rapes is one thing; how it affects each individual is another, and that's the real story of prison. That's how I relate to young people when I talk to them."

The kids, Choice says, are sincere and frank in the questions they ask, and the answers are the same.

"They want to know how much time you've done...if you've ever stabbed anyone...what your feelings are on capital punishment...if you work an eight hour day like other people...what your living conditions are...they want to know about homosexuality...they want to know about narcotics..pregnancy and abortions..." Choice says, "and we answer them."

"There are certain things we don't initiate," Kurisaki explains, "but we will respond. The only restriction we have on the men is that they speak from their own experiences. It's sincerity and honesty that reaches the kids the most. The reason the program is so successful is that most of the men are not polished speakers. But they speak with sincerity—it comes right from the gut."

Some of the men, Kurisaki says, are more effective speaking to adults. Others are effective with college students or grammar school kids. Often certain groups are interested only in narcotics, so narcotic offenders are the speakers.

"We have a Superior Court judge in here. We have $100,000-a-year attorneys, doctors, all kinds of lawyers—every walk of life comes in here at one time or another, so we can establish rapport at almost any level," Kurisaki says.

And they have, Correctional Sgt. Ray Hawkins, sponsor of the group, admits.

The program began at Chino six years ago, Hawkins says, when five inmates tested the plan at the Youth Training School on the prison grounds.

"The program was terrific," the officer says, "so the five were allowed to go out four times a year."

The group started with invitations from continuation schools, but since have been asked to speak at schools and before groups of all kinds.

"We go to Watts or Beverly Hills. We speak to anyone who invites us out," Hawkins says. "In the past six months we talked to 15,000 people from San Diego to Ventura and are booked almost solid for the next six months."

LYLE KURISAKI
'Made Crime Pay—But . . .'

Hawkins, born in the ghetto district of Los Angeles, claims the Preventers program not only helps the kids, but helps the convicts and helps him.

"I feel I owe a little something because—coming from the area I come from—I could be here (in prison) not in street clothes, but in blues. I feel I'm paying off a debt. We go out on the premise that if we can keep just one person from going to prison—either an adult or a child— the program is worthwhile."

The convicts, too, feel the program is a two-way street.

"The program is mutually benefiting,"says one of the Preventers, "not only do we help the kids we talk to, but we help ourselves." And they cite examples: "When the kids ask me why I became a criminal, it makes me think about it," Kurisaki admits. "Do you realize I didn't even think about it when I came here—I never thought about why."

Hawkins claims the inmates are urged to wonder "why", but rarely do. "We tried to get them to group with the staff, but they wouldn't open up—they'd just play games. Then we tried it on a voluntary basis. We just wanted them to look at themselves and talk it over with someone. It didn't work either."

But those in the Prison Preventers program do look at themselves, Hawkins says, especially when asked questions by youngsters and having to come up with an answer.

Tommy Rose is another example of the two way path of the Preventers program.

Tommy admits he's a "dope fiend whose been in and out of institutions since I was 15."

"Tommy's been a problem to the adult authority for years...he still owes us money for breaking up his cell. We just couldn't get to him," says Hawkins.

What got to Rose, Hawkins claims, was the Preventers program. Looking at the kids, Rose saw himself 10 years back.

"What tore Tommy up was that that kid didn't know where he was going—but Tommy did. There was a tear in Tommy's eye after that session. Now he's a changed guy."

There are others.

A very militant Black Panther—"the last time I saw him he was holding a rag over his face in the prison yard at San Quentin...they were throwing tear gas at him".

"This guy never joined anything, but he joined our group and went out to talk to the kids. The kids hooked him. He saw that the kid was very seriously dependent on the answer he gave. It gave his life direction," Kurisaki says.

"You'd be surprised how many prisoners here have never been in a position to give anything to anybody. Now they can give. That's gratifying.

"We've had fellows that came into the program and walked out so different that prison officials—ones that knew them years ago—can't believe it's the same man."

But despite this benefit to prisoners, the main point of the program, the inmates and officials all agree, is aimed at the kids:

"If we can prevent just one kid from making it to prison, the whole damn thing is worth it."

Housewife shot dead

A Huntington Beach housewife was fatally shot Saturday morning following what police described as a family dispute.

Arlene V. Alden, 37, of 20622 Goshawk Lane, was found dead of gunshot wounds on the floor of her bedroom at 10:39 a.m. by police investigating a complaint of a family dispute.

Her husband, John, 42, had reportedly called police. He was taken into custody, but made no statement at the time of his arrest.

Congress near agreement on water pollution

By AL EISELE
Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — Encouraged by two recent breakthroughs after nearly three months of inconclusive wrangling, House-Senate conferees this week will tackle the biggest remaining obstacle to legislation that would authorize a decade-long drive to clean up the nation's fresh water supply.

If official optimism about the landmark water pollution control legislation proves justified, a compromise version of the multi-billion dollar bill could be ready for Congress to vote on when it returns from the Republican convention recess on Sept. 5.

The basic shape of the massive clean water measure, the most ambitious and expensive piece of environmental legislation ever considered by Congress, will be decided in the next week or two by nine House conferees and seven Senate conferees.

THE CONFEREES, who have met 25 times since their first session on May 11, will meet again Monday to try to resolve the most crucial difference between the House bill that was passed last March and the bill approved by the Senate in November, 1971.

That difference, which the conferees haven't come to grips with yet, involves the basic timetable for requiring an end to industrial pollution.

Although both bills set a polluters to install the "best practicable" pollution abatement equipment, and call for elimination of all pollution by 1985, the more stringent Senate bill stipulates that industrial polluters must utilize the "best available" antipollution technology by 1981.

THE HOUSE, on the other hand, specifies that before either the 1981 or 1985 goals become operative, the National Academy of Sciences must conduct a two-year $15-million study of the social, economic and environmental impact of those goals.

"The key word is 'economic'," says an aide to Rep. Robert Jones, D-Ala., ranking member of the House Public Works Committee and chairman of the House conferees. "We feel we've got to know what the cost of eliminating pollution will be, whether it will mean a loss of jobs or higher prices or what."

The Senate conferees, led by Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, are expected to argue that the National Academy of Sciences study will lead to delaying the clean-up deadlines.

Conservationist lobbying groups led by the environmental policy center and Common Cause have lined up behind the Senate conferees, contending that the House makes the water pollution control program in effect a "non-law" after 1976 because the study would have to be completed before Congress can reenact the 1981 and 1985 deadlines.

The Nixon administration and most major industrial groups have lined up behind the House bill, even though they aren't enthusiastic about it. Many businessmen feel "as if they're sitting outside like convicted criminals, nervously awaiting the sentence Congress will choose for them," the Wall Street journal commented editorially last week, for example.

WHILE THE timetable issue is at the heart of the conferees effort to reach a compromise, there are other important differences between the $24.6-billion House bill and the $20-billion Senate bill.

Two of those differences were resolved last week as the conferees achieved their first real breakthrough after months of unfruitful and at times acrimonious negotiations.

The two issues resolved were the question of federal versus state control of discharge permit programs and regulation of dumping dredge spoils in U.S. coastal and interior waters.

Committee aides would not disclose any details of what kind of a compromise was reached on either issue except to say that "an acceptable compromise has been worked out that is going to accommodate all."

An aide to Jones predicted that the timetable issue will be settled by next week and added, "that's the biggest one. Once we get by that, the rest will go quickly."

The aide said there is "an outside chance" that the conference committee will complete its work before Congress recesses on Aug. 18 for the Republican National Convention, and that the measure will be ready for a vote by both houses of Congress in early September.

However, committee staffers noted two developments that they said could delay the conference committee's progress, in addition to any delays resulting from irreconcilable differences among the conferees.

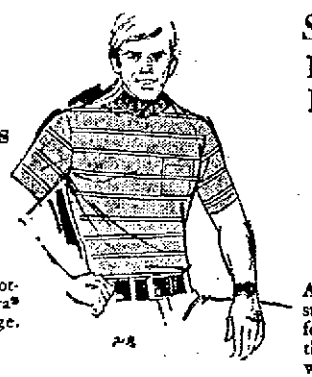

First, they pointed out that the committee's progress in recent weeks came about largely because of the fact that Muskie has been able to devote full time to the conference after his presidential campaign ended.

A second and possibly even more serious problem could be the White House attitude toward the bill. Presidential aide John Erlichman recently told reporters that the water pollution control bill might be vetoed by President Nixon because of the huge costs involved.

Even so, some people close to the situation feel that the threat of a presidential veto might encourage the conferees to settle their differences in order to place the bill before the President before the November elections, when he might be less likely to veto a politically explosive measure.

RICH, LEGENDARY AND READY

'Red' Adair gets his kicks from oil field emergencies

Editor's Note: Red Adair is scarred and rich. He no longer has to accept the challenge of a roaring wild oil well — but he does. Now he's taking aim at the problems of off-shore wells gone wild.

By BILL CRIDER

MORGAN CITY, La. (UPI) — Paul N. "Red" Adair has been crushed, blown up, burned, broken. But it pays well.

He got into the specialized business of capping wild oil wells back in the depression year of 1938 "because I was hungry."

Now he's 57 and rich, a living legend in world oil circles. He could quit and do what most oil—waste money, go places, do things.

Instead, when a well blows out anywhere on earth, threatening lives and millions of dollars worth of equipment, the owners can send for "Red" and he'll come running, an old pro with a head full of tricks.

Oil field emergencies are where he gets his kicks.

HE HAS handsome homes in Houston and Austin, Tex., yet is frequently off in some exotic corner like the Sahara Desert or the Persian Gulf, Mozambique or Breaux Bridge, La., a short man of fiery complexion, graying at the temples, thickening at the waist, wearing a red jump suit and a red hardhat.

Why does he do IT?

"You got to love your work," Adair shrugged.

It doesn't sound like much of an explanation, actually, it covers everything — the prickling fascination of outsmarting danger, the challenge of a job always different, the warming admiration given by tough men.

Adair works out of Houston with a surprisingly small force of about half a dozen people, including Boots Hansen and a son, Jim. When they go on a job the oil company supplies every need.

Adair has clamped control valves on about 900 wild wells since 1938.

THE CHALLENGE was great in '38 and it seems to be getting bigger all the time, especially in offshore areas, where wells are miles at sea.

"No two jobs are alike," Adair said. "There are a million little tricks to it. And I guess some of it is instinct."

Some jobs were monstrous conflagrations.

A well named GT2 in the Shara blew out in 1962, forming a torch that was visible to America's first man to orbit the earth, John Glenn, as he passed over 100 miles up.

They had a party in Paris recently marking the 10th anniversary of the taming of the GT2. Adair was guest of honor.

One of the biggest messes he recalls was an offshore well in the Persian Gulf that threatened to wipe out $30 million in equipment and sprayed 10,000 barrels of crude into the sea each day before it was recapped.

"They had an oil slick 800 miles long," Adair said. "And they were awful careless before we got there. That well could have killed 300 or 400 men."

IT IS the offshore challenge that grips Adair, drawing his pride, time and money into a struggle to adapt to new conditions.

The drillers' shift to the sea, with rich oil strikes made out in the shrimp boat and shipping lanes, posed a whole new ball game for oil men.

An offshore blowout along the United States coast, for instance, raises the specter of a tough new attitude toward the oil industry — a consequence which might flow from disastrous pollution.

The great 1970 Chevron Oil Co. spill into the Gulf of Mexico from an oil well control platform standing on stilts 30 miles off the Louisiana coast — coming after a mess in California's Santa Barbara channel — was a traumatic event.

For the first time, an oil company felt the strong arm of federal power. Chevron was indicted on charges of wilfully violating oil well control regulations. A $1 million fine was imposed.

In that disaster, Adair operated in the classic well-taming style. He snuffed out the flames with a dynamite blast, then moved in cautiously to cap the wells.

THE TROUBLE is, a control platform is not just one well; it has a number of surrounding wells piped into it. Chevron's platform has 12 wells to be capped.

With the fire out, thousands of barrels of crude spewed into the water before Chevron's "Platform Charlie" was fully controlled 21 days later.

Congress stirred. A bill passed which would put the multimillion cost of cleaning up an oil spill on those responsible for it.

When a Shell Oil Co. control platform, with 22 wells connected to it, popped its top in 1971 near the same area, company officials opted for air pollution as the lesser of two evils.

They let the bushing oil burn off during a long undergound "kill" operation rather than have it spill into the sea. It became the biggest oil fire in the history of the business.

"They wouldn't let us blow out the fire and then cap the wells," said Adair.

INSTEAD, four big offshore drilling rigs were pulled off other jobs to jack up on steel stilts near the flaming platform and drill "killer" wells that choked off the wild wells at points 12,500 feet beneath the sea bottom.

The process took four months. Over-all cost: four lives, about $36 million.

Adair's men capped the wild wells after they were choked off but he believes there must be a better way. He's putting up his reputation and a lot of cash to prove it.

A blowout on an offshore rig is an incredible scene.

Intense pressure suddenly blows everything out of a well shaft that may be several miles deep. Oil or gas spews wild, liable to erupt into a ball of fire at a spark.

"THE WELL screams like a 747 taking off," said Adair. The immediate complications this can create for the 60 or so men aboard are hard to imagine unless you know what an offshore drilling rig or control platform is like.

It straddles on steel legs in the heaving sea, miles from land, often in water over 100 feet deep. The living quarters are 50 feet above storm waves. Standing on the work deck is like standing atop a seven-story building.

In case of fire, jump.

If you jump wearing a life jacket, odds are it will break you back or neck. Jump without a life jacket and you may drown.

ADAIR was in Morgan City to demonstrate a new system he devised in which men atop a rig may slide to safety down special emergency cables.

But his main interest was on a project for overcoming his own immediate complication in case of an offshore blowout — which is how to get close enough to the wild wells, or cluster of wells, to work on them.

"In every offshore blowout we have had to rig up from a standing start," he said.

"That means fitting up special barges, floating workshops, pumps — sometimes even building a temporary platform beside the other one. It can take two weeks or more."

In that length of time, a $15-million offshore platform may be melted to the water line, not to mention other matters.

TO DEAL with the problem, Adair and two associates formed Resolution Engineering & Development Co., which comes out REDCO, to build one of the weirdest vessels that ever put to sea.

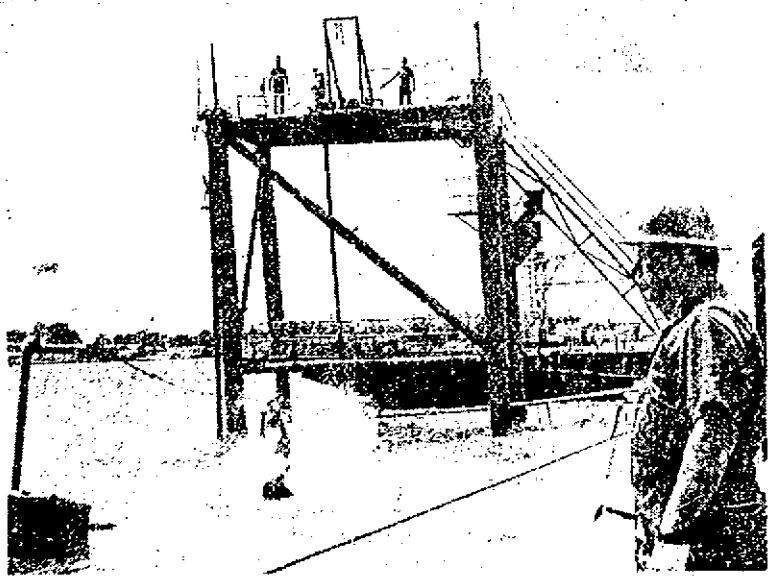

Named "Red One," it will be an elaborate work deck 300 feet long and 125 feet wide, standing high above two massive pontoons.

Diesels will drive a screw at the stern of each pontoon, making the $10 million rig self-propelled.

Red One's bow, built to nuzzle up close to offshore rigs, will be able to spray 29,000 gallons of water per minute as a protective shield, using a pump developed for the huge engines of Saturn V moon rockets.

There are more than 2,500 control platforms standing off the Texas and Louisiana shores. Offshore wells are sprouting in the North Sea, the Persian Gulf and along other coasts. If all is quiet on all of them, Red One will still be able to handle underwater pipeline work.

Adair estimates Red One will take 18 months to build. After that, he says, when a well blows out at sea, "things are really going to be different."

WILD WELL FIGHTER Paul N. "Red" Adair watches a demonstration in Morgan City, La., of a new system he has devised by which men atop a rig may slide to safety in case of a blowout or other emergency.

Aging—exercise can slow it

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — As Ponce de Leon and many since have found out, there is no fountain of youth. But an experimental exercise program among the elderly here is uncovering evidence that the process of aging can be slowed down.

Its originator, 67-year-old Lawrence Frankel of Charleston, calls the program "preventicare." It began about a year and a half ago and involves doing a few exercises several times a week.

"The purpose of the program is to demonstrate that the health of elderly people is greatly enhanced through very carefully planned physical activities," said Frankel, who appears robust and 10 years younger than his age.

"It helps to decelerate the aging process," he said. "It improves older people's mental attitude, it gives them a sense of importance and improved self image."

PERHAPS MORE important, Frankel said, "we have been able to demonstrate we can improve their endurance through testing their heart rate and blood pressure. We see significant changes and improvements in heart rate and blood pressure."

Frankel wants to take about a year's more data before he and his foundation start drawing definite conclusions. At present, 42 people between the ages of 65 and 92 are involved. Some meet at his center here, others at a nursing home and a third group at an apartment complex for the elderly. He has even designed exercises for wheelchair and bed-ridden persons.

The participants don't run around the room doing push-ups, jogging or anything like that. The exercises are simple, not too strenuous and are done to music.

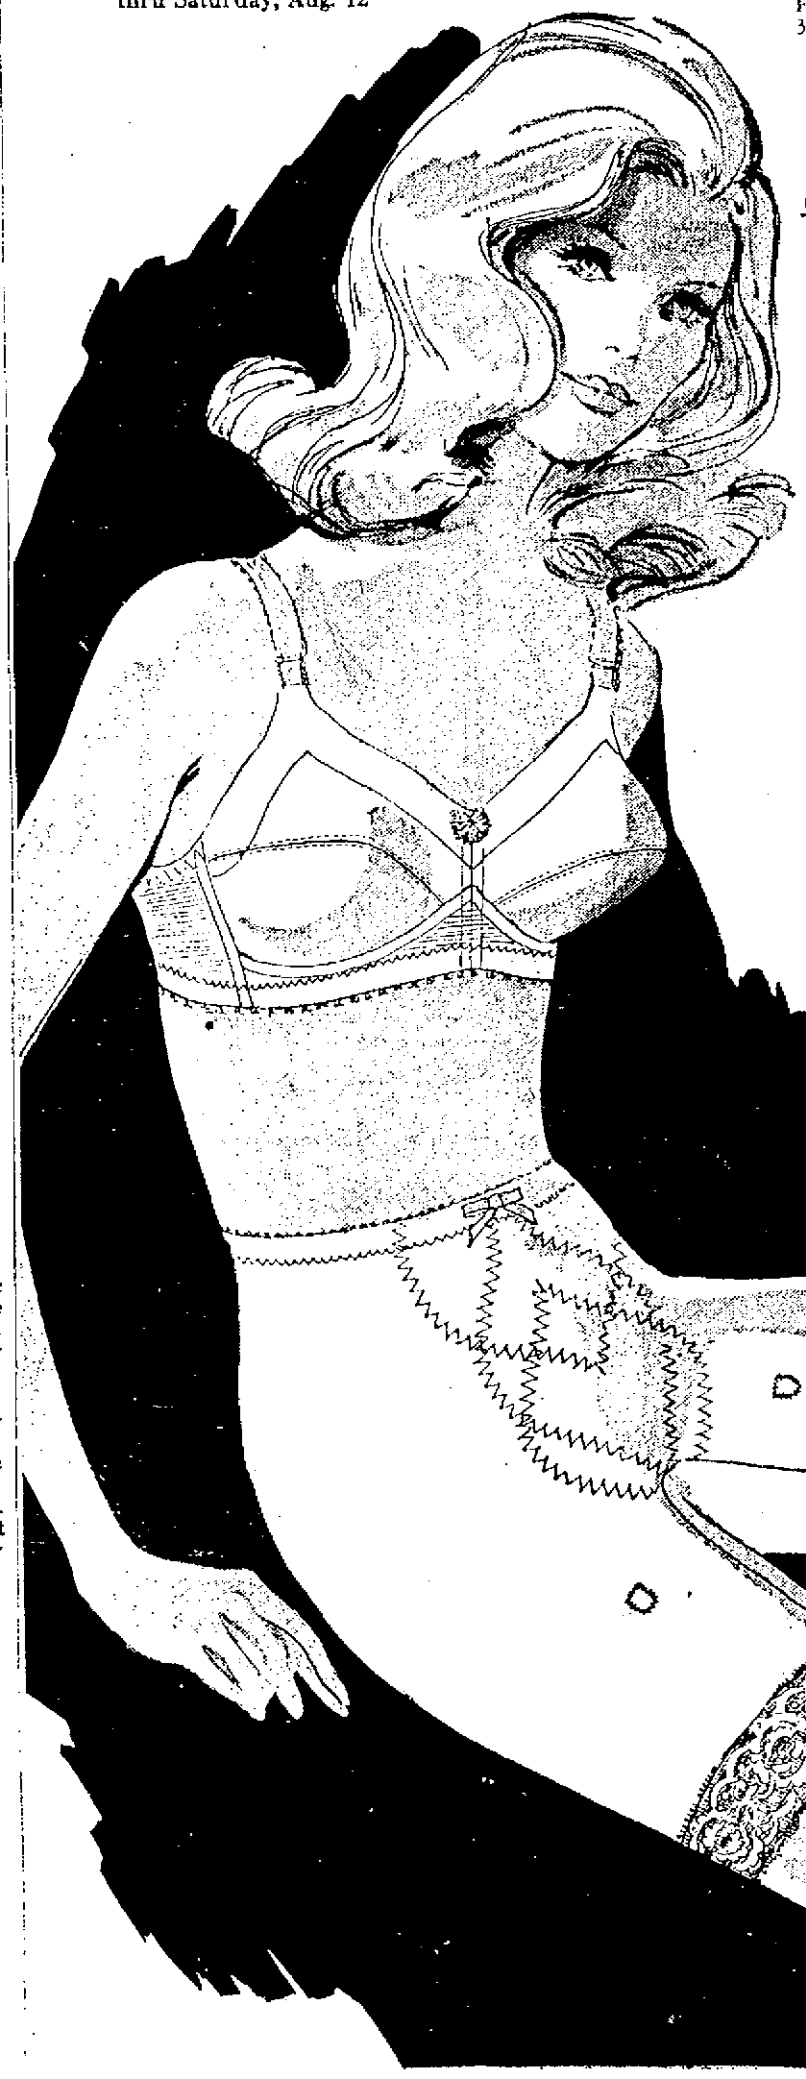

ALONG WITH the physical activity is a mental program which is also important.

Robbers execute 4 members of wealthy Illinois family

BARRINGTON HILLS, Ill. (UPI) — Robbers, apparently searching for documents or money and leaving valuable jewelry, herded four members of a wealthy socialite-businessman's family into the pantry of his $100,000 home and shot them to death, police said Saturday.

The slayings occurred Friday night on the 30-acre, 11-room estate of Paul M. Corbett, 67, a retired insurance executive, in this exclusive Chicago suburb.

Corbett, his wife, Marian, Mrs. Corbett's daughter, Barbara Boand, 22, and her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Derry, 60, were each shot once — three of them in the head and one in the chest, Richard Quagliano, assistant chief of the Cook County sheriff's police.

"It looks to me like they were herded into the room and then slaughtered," said Barrington Hills Police Chief Ralph Hummell.

The dead and dying victims were found in pools of blood in a pantry off the kitchen by Anthony Boand, Mrs. Corbett's son, who came to the home to return a borrowed car.

Hummel, summoned by a neighbor after Boand ran screaming from the home, said the kitchen "looked like a slaughterhouse. It is the worst incident I've ever experienced."

Two upstairs bedrooms and an upstairs office were in "disarray," Quagliano said, and some valuable jewelry in one of the bedrooms was left behind. Papers were strewn about in the office.

Quagliano, at a news conference, refused to speculate on motives, whether the killers were professionals or whether they were known by the victims. One deputy sheriff said the upstairs rooms had apparently been searched for "documents or money." The deputy said the killers were apparently professionals, but ruled out syndicate connections.

There was no sign of forcible entry to the home. The burglar alarm was apparently turned off. Police found one telephone line in the kitchen cut. There was no sign of a struggle.

Police found several spent shells from a .30 caliber carbine and a .25 caliber automatic pistol. Police said they theorized more than one person was involved in the slayings.

Police spent most of the day going over contents of the home with Boand and other relatives, seeking to determine what was missing from the large gray brick house which is located on a private road in an area of country estates and horse farms.

The nearest neighbor, Fred Pollak, said his wife Jeanette was at home at the time, and she heard no shots.

"I don't know why anybody would want to do something like this. I don't know why," Boand told police when asked if he knew of any motive for the mass murders.

Police said they had no clues to the identity of the killer or killers. A blue panel truck stolen from a tavern a mile from the Corbett home an hour after the bodies were discovered was recovered by police.

The vehicle was dusted for prints but it was not known if the theft of the truck was related to the slayings.

Corbett retired two years ago as president of Johnson & Higgins. He was also a retired executive of Continental Casualty Co. and Continental Insurance Co. He owned the two-story, four-car garage home on the large wooded estate.

Mrs. Corbett, daughter of the late Norwood Bard, a Chicago businessman, neice of former U.S. Navy Secretary Ralph Bard and ex-wife of prominent lawyer Charles W. Boand, married Corbett after his first wife died eight years ago.

Miss Boand was the daughter of Boand and Mrs. Corbett and lived with the Corbetts. Mrs. Derry was the wife of Joshua J. D. Derry, a retired executive of Time Inc. The Derrys were also residents of Barrington Hills.

Corbett, besides his insurance interests, also served as director of a downtown Chicago bank and a warehouse company. He was a director of Goodwill Industries, and past president of The Executive's Club and the Barrington Hills Country Club. He graduated from Northwestern University, where he was a member of the swimming and water polo teams, in 1926.

Family of 3 'executed' in grocery store holdup

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Gunmen methodically executed a "moonlighter," his wife and their 6-year-old son in a grocery store with one bullet each through the back of the head. Police arrested three suspects Saturday.

Police said the gunmen forced the family to lie face down on the grocery store floor Friday night and then went down the line, shooting each in turn with a .22-caliber weapon.

Howard Siler, 30, and his son, Howard Jr., died instantly. Joyce Siler, who had brought her son along to pick up her husband when he closed the small grocery, died shortly after arriving at a hospital to which she had been admitted in critical condition.

Police arrested three suspects, one of them armed with a .22-caliber pistol, in Woodward, 140 miles away. They said a fourth suspect is being sought.

Siler, a driver examiner for the Oklahoma Department of Public Safety, worked at the grocery nights for extra income. He was closing out the day's receipts when two men came through the door.

When police arrived, the cash register was empty. The Siler family was found in a pool of blood, .22 caliber bullets in their heads.

Every robbery and homicide officer on the force was called to work early Saturday to aid in the investigation. Scout car officers were given detailed instructions about the case during a search for the killers.

Two bystanders gave police a partial description of the robbers and police questioned several persons matching the descriptions.

The suspects taken into custody in Woodward were returned immediately to Oklahoma City for questioning.

Detectives said paraffin tests will be made and witnesses examined before the questioning continues.

Police called the slayings an "assassination" and "mass execution."

Handcuffed fugitive kills self

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A handcuffed fugitive guarded by two FBI agents pulled a hidden revolver from his trousers and killed himself in the basement parking lot of the Salt Lake County Jail, the FBI said Saturday.

An agent said the prisoner had been searched when he was arrested Friday and "would have been given a thorough search at the jail."

Bernard L. Huelskamp, special agent in charge, said one agent had gone into the jail and another was getting out of their car when they heard a gunshot and saw the prisoner, Lyle E. Poole, 28, slumped in the back seat, a bullet hole in his chest.

Poole, his hands handcuffed in front of him, had managed to extract a .32 caliber revolver from its hiding place.

An FBI agent said Poole, who escaped from the federal prison at Safford, Ariz., and also was wanted on a bad check warrant in Adams, Colo., was arrested at the Lagoon Amusement Park Friday.

SOLAR FLARES DUE BY MONDAY

Sun to put on new spectacle

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Astronomers predict that a new solar storm will be spawned on the surface of the sun before late Monday. They say it will be similar to a disturbance Friday that tickled power systems and disrupted radio and telephone communications around the world Saturday.

The storm's influence on earth will be detected by slight changes in satellite orbits, disrupted sho t wave and telephone communications and power fluctuations over high voltage transmission lines, a spokesman for the National Oceanic Atmospheric Administration said Saturday.

Ralph Segman of NOAA said the agency was forecasting a second flare before late Monday, with a 95 per cent chance for a flare of medium size and intensity and a 35 per cent chance for a large flare.

The storm also should create brilliant displays of aurora borealis, or northern lights possibly as far south as Florida, Segman said.

A spokesman at the North American Air Defense Command's headquarters near Colorado Springs, where all satellites are tracked though their orbits, said the storm had had no significant impact on any satellite. The solar winds, he said, would have little if any immediate impact on a satellite.

Segman said a solar flare on the surface of the sun Friday sent a wave of electrified gas to the earth's vicinity at 8 a.m. PDT Saturday. The shock wave consists of plasma, or electrified gas.

INDICATIONS OF LOST CIVILIZATION

Have scientists solved Atlantis riddle?

By R. M. SUDHALTER

AKROTIRI, Isle of Thera, Greece (UPI) — As scientists calculate it, fire and rock rained from the sky, burying cities under hundreds of feet of ash. Tidal waves nearly 700 feet high, rushing at more than 200 miles an hour, smashed in a moment the proudest of the ancient maritime empires.

And out of holocaust, a legend. Here, behind the towering, blasted cliffs, cinders and ash layers of this southern Aegean island, many scientists say they may have found the key to the "lost civilization" of Atlantis.

"That is quite true. This may indeed be the source of the Atlantis legend." Even as Prof. Spyridon Marinatos spoke of the idea aloud, he grew visibly wary of it.

"There is a danger here. It is only too easy to become lost in speculation about Atlantis, and thereby lose sight of what is to us far more important right now — conclusive insight into the Minoan Empire."

MARINATOS, with a graying, bushy brow and scientist's craggy features, is Greece's top archeologist. He holds the government position of inspector-general of antiquities.

Under his direction in 1967 a team of scientists and students began digging in a ravine outside the small, crumbling alabaster town of Akrotiri on Thera's south coast.

In five years they have uncovered a treasure beyond Marinatos' wildest dreams: a major city, of a size still to be calculated, but clearly a pivotal part of the Minoan maritime empire centered on Crete, 70 miles to the south, 3,500 years ago.

The city stands intact, caught and frozen for all time when death came fiery hot from the skies, the earth shook and the waters rose to break the back of the bull of Minos, triumphant symbol of an empire respected throughout the ancient world.

Thera has borne many names through the years. It has been Kalliste (the "most fair") and Stronghyle, the "round island," though its modern form barely hints at that. More recently it has been Santorin, after St. Irene, its patron saint in the Greek Orthodox Church.

ACCORDING to all available geological evidence the isle has always been a volcano. But by the rise of Minoan Crete around 2500 BC it had long been dormant.

Minos at its height grew into a civilization based on a prosperous trading economy. Its ships were among the first to use the keel, and carried Minoan commerce the length of the Mediterranean. Pottery from these islands has been found at Marseille, France, and on the Isle of Menorca, off Spain.

Its people, handsome and decoratively clothed, lived an urbane life on the hundreds of islands dotting the Aegean.

Here, in Marinatos' words "lay the birthplace of European civilization."

THEN, MIDWAY through the 15th century BC, a natural cataclysm of near-unimaginable magnitude wiped out Minos at fullest flower. The Thera volcano exploded, hurling pumice, rock, fire, ash and lava miles into the air with a shock and sound felt for hundreds of miles.

Its closest modern parallel, scientists agree, is the explosion of Krakatoa, between Java and Sumatra, Aug. 26-27, 1883. Krakatoa's tidal waves devastated nearly 300 towns and villages on the Sunda Strait, killing 36,380 persons.

Experts now estimate the Thera explosion may have been up to four times as powerful.

AS WITH Krakatoa, sea water rushed into the volcano's newly emptied magma chamber after the explosion, struck its superheated bottom and recoiled violently. From here, Greek seismologist A. G. Galanopoulos takes up the story:

"The sudden movement of such huge quantities of sea water created waves of prodigious height," he said in his book, "Atlantis." These waves, spreading in all directions, flooded the coasts of the eastern Mediterranean to a great height above sea level, completely devastating all towns and settlements in and around the Aegean."

Galanopoulos calculates these tidal waves must have measured 690 feet at their start, then raced across the 70 miles to Crete in less than 30 minutes. There, still 300 feet high, they devastated Minos and its capital of Knossos.

WHAT HAS this to do with Atlantis? Plato, writing in the "Timæus" and "Critias," tells of a story brought back from Egypt in 590 BC by the sage Solon, describing "a great and wonderful empire which had rule over the whole island and several others, and over parts of the continent . . ."

It was destroyed, said Solon, by "violent earthquakes and floods, and in a single day and night of misfortune . . . the Island of Atlantis in like manner disappeared into the sea."

Marinatos, Galanopoulos, British classicist J. V. Luce and others have published strong arguments identifying Atlantis with Minos. They pick apart past theories placing the "lost continent" in the Atlantic Ocean — Luce says both names derive separately from the Greek name for Atlas — or elsewhere.

CERTAINLY today's Thera, Atlantis or not, bears visible witness to the devastation of 3,500 years ago. A ship entering the 32-square-mile bay which now covers the volcanic crater passes cliffs rising twisted and stark 1,150 feet out of the sea, striated in layers of red and gray lava, then, higher, white-gray tephra, volcanic ash.

In the center of the bay, dark brown against the grays, are two islets forming the volcano's "plug." The surface of the water around them, even by Aegean standards, is unnaturally warm, broken periodically by great, discoloring heat boils. Fresh pumice floats on the sea.

Atop the cliffs, perched gleaming white, are the towns — Oia, Phira, Merovigli. The only way up is a zigzag mule track of 300 steps cut into the cliff face.

The top, dotted with tiny whitewashed villages, is in reality a mountainside — the former flanks of the volcano of old, covered with vineyards and sloping gently to the sea. A fleet of rusted gray taxis, Soviet-built Volga sedans, cart visitors around the island's narrow cinder-laned roads. No one — not even the grizzled Therans who drive them — seems to know how they got there.

"Megalli polis" (big-city), a guide said, indicating with a generous sweep of an arm the roofed-over excavations marking the area where five years of work have uncovered a highly developed urban community which seems to spread without limit in all directions. The archeological team is still clearing away tons of brittle chalky tephra. The more they dig, the more there is.

THERE ARE streets once alive with people. Here a crumbled staircase which once led to someone's bedroom, there a cracked bathtub, decorated in red and gold to a lady's pleasure. Around the corner a coppersmith's shop, anvil and dipping-trough still intact.

Frescoes discovered here depict many facts of day-to-day Minoan life: two youths sparring with what must be the earliest known boxing gloves, girls allurring in the bare-breasted fashions known from the wall paintings at Knossos.

But frescoes aren't all. There are tables and chairs and toilets and beds and dressing tables, all hewn out of stone or the marble which lies strewn like driftwood about these islands.

"We are still actively digging," said Marinatos, sipping heavily sweetened Greek coffee in his seventh-floor panelled office in Athens. "Who knows what we will find as we continue?"

Who indeed? For the moment, Thera sleeps on in the sun. Now and then, as in 1956, the mighty volcano stirs slightly — the result was a spasm that smashed 2,000 houses in less than a minute.

Only 25 miles to the north, the shock tipped the water out of the harbor of the Island of Ios, then returned it with a rush that flooded nearly a mile inland, depositing sailboats in farmyards and scattering stone houses.

Alexandria lures dreamers with her time-worn charms

Editor's Note: More than 1,300 years ago Alexandria offered citizens and tourists 4,000 palaces, as many public baths, 400 circuses "and other places of amusement," and 1,200 gardens. More recently, King Farouk used to move his entire government to this "Pearl of the Mediterranean" for the summer months. Today, it's still ranked as one of the world's top vacation cities.

By C. C. MINICLIER

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Fishermen mending their nets on the sidewalk barely notice the passing scene, but strangers should.

Alexander the Great founded this city, which still bears his name, 331 years before the birth of Jesus Christ.

In the years since the "Pearl of the Mediterranean" has continued to host many of the persons who made history along the shores of its sea.

The city is a tourist's dream, less crowded and noisy than Cairo, or many Mediterranean port cities of today, its life centers on the 12 mile-corniche separating the city from the sand and sea. Cabanas and entertainment are on the sea side and hotels, night spots and colorful bazaars across the roadway.

A fifteenth century fort, turn of the century palaces that would do Disneyland justice, Roman ruins, spacious gardens, museums, historic battle sites and sidewalk cafes offer the sunburned visitor respite from the sea and sand.

ONCE MORE important then Athens as a center of Greek learning, it later rivaled Rome and Constantinople as one of three main centers of the early Christian world.

Caeser and Antonio, St. Mark the Apostle and many others walked here. Today's architecture reflects strong European influence, more Greek than Arab.

Napoleon Bonaparte's fleet was destroyed by Lord Nelson off its shores in 1798 and another Britisher defeated German Gen. Edwin "the Desert Fox" Rommel's forces not far from here in 1932.

King Farouk went into exile from Alexandria in 1952, with the arrival of Gammal Abdel Nasser's revolution.

Today Russians and Americans, who, through their support respectively of Egypt and Israel, hold a key to peace in the Middle East, romp on more than 60 kilometers of sandy beaches or enjoy the double decker street cars, sidewalk carts of fresh fruit and winding market streets.

BOTH RUSSIANS and Americans come on package tours from their homelands. Others join Egyptians and other foreign residents in migrating to Alexandria in the summer when the interior becomes intolerably hot for all who can afford to get away.

King Farouk used to move his government here for the summer, to the pleasure of the diplomatic corps and his staff.

Americans prospecting for oil in the western desert send their children to the American school here. Soviet Engineers at Aswan and elsewhere come here to enjoy the greenery of the parks and coolness of the sea after months surrounded by desert.

GUIDEBOOKS tell the visitor there were 4,000 palaces, as many public baths, 400 circuses "and other places of amusement," and 1,200 gardens in Alexandria in 641 A.D.

More than 1,300 years later Alexandria remains a city of pleasure and amusement, as well as a thriving center of commerce and industry.

Its present population of 2 million swells by 500,000 in the summer as residents of Egypt migrate northward and wealthy Arabs from Saudi Arabia and other hot lands fly in, sometimes with their own cars aboard the jetliner, to rent villas by the sea.

A fully furnished three bedroom flat may rent for as much as $1,600 for the season, according to tourism officials, who estimate that 3,500 businesses are dependent on tourism or entertainment.

The faces and names have changed over the years, as Egypt threw off its foreign occupiers and ousted the monarchy.

"In the good old days," long time foreign residents recall, foreigners were exempt from most Egyptian laws. Later came mixed courts, where American, British, Greek, French and other judges would sit with Egyptians on disputes involving foreigners.

ALL THIS came to an end in the 1940's, about the time the state of Israel was being created. Then there were perhaps 150,000 foreigners, including Jews, Greeks, Italians, Britishers, Lebanese and Syrians in Alexandria. Now there are perhaps 10,000, including maybe 400 Jews, although exact figures are hard to come by.

Gone are the British Boys School and English Girls School. The Italian school became a British military hospital in World War II and then a part of Alexandria University.

Gone too is the Royal Yacht Club of Egypt, at least in name. Today the brass plaque outside its spacious quarters reads "Yacht Club of Egypt."

It was moved from the modern western harbor to the picturesque eastern harbor, with its minaret-dotted skyline and fishing boats, after the 1956 Anglo-French invasion of Suez. Egyptians are welcome now and a retired Egyptian admiral is president.

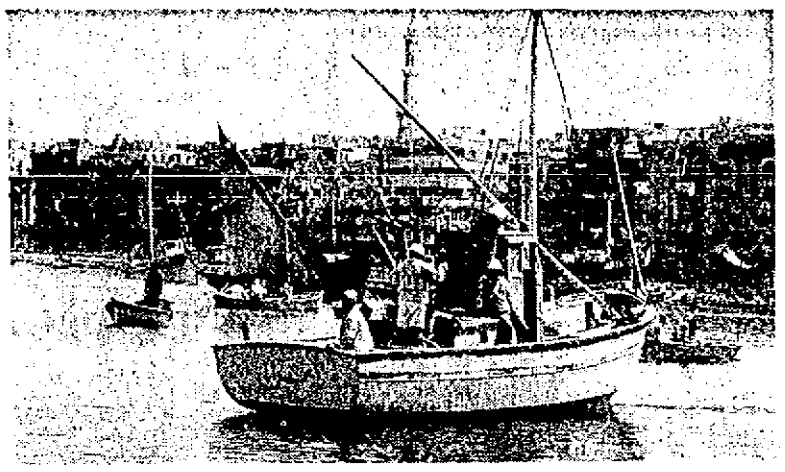

The old names linger on at such hotels as the Normandy, Cecil and Gordon.

Restaurant names, such as Maxim's, Champs Elysees, Santa Lucia, Andrea, Omar Khayyam and Foul Mohamed Ahmed reflect the city's varied tastes.

ENTERTAINMENT varies from live theater in a recently unearthed Roman amphitheater to a movie entitled "The Green Slime are Coming," starring Robert Horton and Luciana Paluzzi, offered only a few blocks from the amphitheater.

Harbor officials say some 30 passenger ships a month stop here. Italian, Soviet and Spanish cruise ships, which tourism officials say stayed away after the 1967 war, are returning in increasing numbers.

A swift, comfortable, air-conditioned train offering food and drink served at your airplane style seat brings visitors through the lush greenery of the Nile delta to Cairo in less than three hours.

Prince Charles' boyhood dream realized---he's sailor

By MARGARET SAVILLE

LONDON (UPI) — He's in the navy now and that's the way he's always wanted it.

As a 5-year-old boy his favorite toys were boats and palace intimates of those days recall him talking about "when I grow up to be a sailor."

Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, had a better chance than most to see that wish come true. And then some. Now 23, he will some day be able to speak not only of "my ship" but "my navy."

In the meantime the son of Queen Elizabeth, until recently assigned as a sub-lieutenant to the missile destroyer HMS Norfolk following his training at Dartmouth Naval College, is in the Royal Navy for an anticipated three-year hitch.

AS A CHILD Charles spent much of his time in his father's study with its naval pictures, models of the sloop Magpie and other ships associated with

PRINCE CHARLES
Sings salty chanties

Prince Philip's own naval career. His father taught him elementary seamanship and his father's uncle, Earl Mountbatten of Burma, helped.

Once he had learned to swim he was taken out with Philip as a crewman in sailing boats, and at the famous Cowes Regatta he took lessons in advanced sailing from ship designer Uffa Fox. He was a member of the sea squad at Gordonstoun -- his prep school -- which was on call for distress work. He also sailed regularly on day and weekend trips in the school ketch.

In his Buckingham Palace apartment Charles has a number of the ship models he has been collecting for some years and two shelves with sea books. He sings salty chanties picked up from his father and Fox.

Charles has had some stormy weekend cruises in the English Channel on the Norfolk and has traveled to the Mediterranean for NATO exercises. Friends said that after the romantic tales of carefree life afloat from his father and Lord Mountbatten, he was "surprised and rather disappointed" to find how much of a sailor's life today is tied up with complex machines.

"IT'S ALL very different from what it was in your days," he told his father, sadly.

He and his fellow officers have had to spend many hours in the classroom studying electronic weaponry and other adjuncts of pushbutton warfare. Now he has been ordered to take courses at the Portsmouth Naval College and in November he will transfer to the frigate Minerva.

Charles hopes to get more foreign sea trips in on the Minerva before his state duties close in. He well knows that when he becomes king his sailing days will be numbered.

Chilean troops smother 'TV riot'

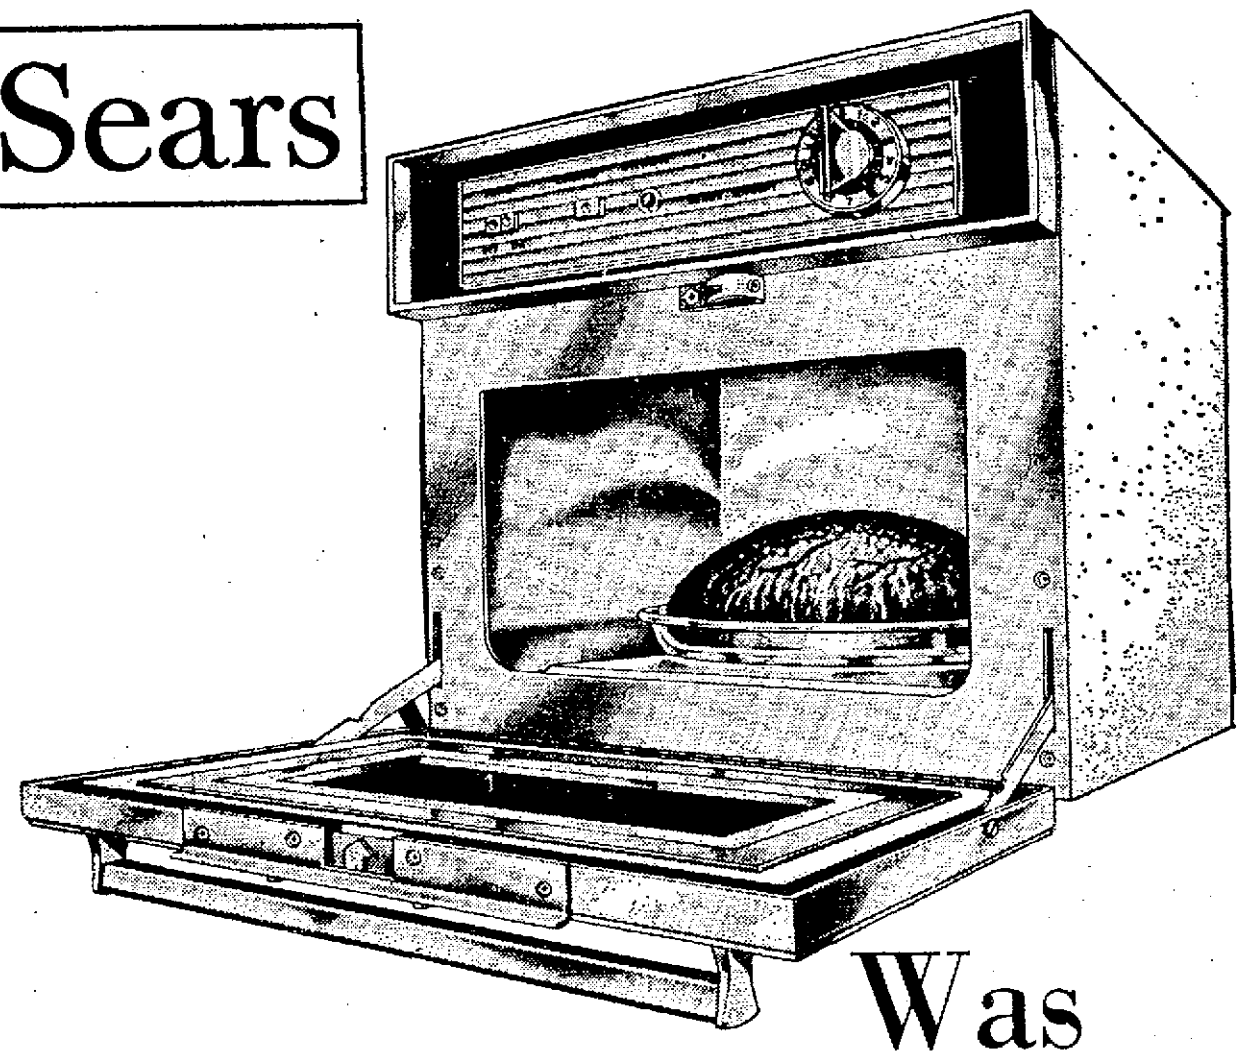

PUERTO MONTT, Chile (UPI) — Troops firing tear gas Saturday crushed a revolt by prison inmates protesting a curfew on television viewing that deprived them of their favorite mystery programs.

Soldiers were ordered into action when police were unable to put down the uprising in Chinchin model prison outside this city, 640 miles south of Santiago.

Police said about 20 inmates refused to return to their cells at Friday night curfew and demanded access to a television set to see several late night mystery programs.

When the demand was rejected, police said, inmates roamed the fourth floor of the prison, set fire to furniture and smashed windows. Order was restored after midnight.

NADGE—'brain' that aids NATO

Editor's Note: Sophisticated radar defense systems have been old hat since sunshine hit the DEW. But NATO is about to complete a $350 million computer warning system that digests each problem presented by an intruder into allied air space and tells how to solve it — with missiles or fighter planes — and how long each "solution" will take. It may be peacetime, but there's still a crisis every few days at NADGE.

By CARL HARTMAN

UEDEM, West Germany (AP) — Year in and year out, there's a crisis every couple of days in this dimly-lighted operations room, buried under 35 feet of steel, concrete and farmland in the Rhine River valley. It's not war but it seems too close for comfort.

The main feature of the room is a battery of computer consoles, each with a small round radar screen glowing bright orange and ringed with blue. The screens show dozens of little streaks on a 300-mile sector of northwestern Europe. Each streak is a plane in flight.

Suddenly one streak stands out to the practiced eye of a young West German lieutenant. Each radar sweep—one every 12 seconds—shows the plane moving swiftly west from the direction of the Soviet Union.

AT THIS point it's a "zombie" — not yet identified but automatically "of special interest" because it comes from the east. The computer console is supplied with a special button labeled "zombie" to help throw light on the situation.

The lieutenant presses buttons and flicks switches. In fractions of a second the computer digests the radar data, calculates and displays the plane's speed, altitude and course.

From a zombie it now turns into a problem, complete with an officially designated letter and number. Allied radars are watching it all over western Europe.

Another lieutenant manipulates more buttons and switches. The computer displays its advice on the best "solutions."

The problem can be shot down by either of two batteries of ground to air missiles, or by either of two fighter plane detachments. The computer also says how long each solution would take.

THIS IS peacetime. The master controller — in Germany, a British or American lieutenant colonel — must disregard the advice about missiles. He can't go shooting down a plane, even a soviet fighter plane flying over allied territory.

Above the consoles a bright red sign, lighted night and day, also reminds him that the situation is "no rel" — meaning that President Nixon has not released nuclear weapons for use by military commanders.

If there was a war on and the President had given the release, the controller would have to choose between planes and missiles, some of them nuclear armed. If a whole air fleet were attacking, a nuclear reply might be considered right. And he would have to choose quickly; the radar provides no more than 15 or 20 minutes warning, given the speed of modern planes.

AGAINST missiles the radar is no use at all. It sees them coming, but there is no time left to do anything.

Peacetime problems normally involve only one plane, which may be anything from a defector to a Bulgarian airliner off its course. Usually the controller orders Allied fighters into the air for a look. There is little more they are authorized to do.

Standing orders say they must not fire unless fired upon. Nor may they cross into Eastern Europe.

This can be the most uncomfortable moment. How far will the intruder come over Allied territory? What is he after? Will he have to be forced back? How?

Usually the intruder is an East European fighter plane that soon turns and heads home. Western intelligence officers think the Soviets test western reaction in this way. Or the pilot may just be lost.

So, the problem having solved itself, the controller gives the Allied planes the course to return to base.

UEDEM IS a small West German village near the Dutch border, not far from Duesseldorf. It belongs to the great hall circle of 84 Allied observation centers that stretch 4,000 miles or 6,400 kilometers from northern Norway to eastern Turkey. The integrated system of radars and computers is called NADGE, which stands for NATO Air Defense Ground Environment.

NADGE incorporates a system that existed before it began in 1965, but its own installations are not yet complete. All stations are due to be working by mid-1973, after considerable slippage. The original target date was 1970.

The Hughes Aircraft Co. heads the consortium responsible for the project. It built the computers that are the key to the system.

NADGE was to have cost about $600 million. The six companies that built it — British, French, West German, Dutch and Italian as well as American — now think it should come to something more than $350 Million.

MANY OFFICIALS in the alliance consider NADGE the best example of Allied cooperation on defense. All 15 Allies contribute, except Iceland.

A measure of its success is the participation of France. The late President Charles de Gaulle withdrew from most of the integrated military activities of the alliance. But he never pulled out Gen. Jean Marie Accart, who had headed NADGE from the start.

France remains part of the network and pays 12 per cent of the cost. West Germany pays 20 per cent and the United States nearly 31 per cent.

S. Yemen nationalizes all buildings

BEIRUT (AP) — The government of South Yemen nationalized all privately owned buildings in the country Saturday, the Iraqi news agency reported.

The agency said the nationalization decree, broadcast over Aden radio, decreed that all commercial and privately owned buildings "have become the property of the government."

The measure allows each family to own no more than one living quarter. A Housing Ministry was created under Nasser Mohammed Yassin to supervise the takeover, the agency said.

South Yemen's prime minister, Ali Nasser Mohammed, addressed a demonstration before his office. He said the takeover was "a victory for the revolution and a step to end the exploitation of the people by a handful of rich businessmen."

The nationalization followed reports of an acute financial crisis in South Yemen. It is paying to support the Marxist rebels in Oman to the east and is having to fight Adeni rebels near the Yemeni and Saudi Arabian borders.

Six top Catholics threatened in Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Six of Northern Ireland's leading Roman Catholic politicians received assassination threats Saturday as new explosions rocked the province.

Sources close to the security forces said the threats came from the Ulster Volunteer Force, an outlawed Protestant secret society set up in opposition to the Catholic-based Irish Republican Army.

Army and police believe the force is responsible for many recent assassinations, including that of Felix Hughes, 40, a Catholic. Army frogmen found Hughes's body in a drain during the night. It was tied to a mattress weighed down with rocks.

The six threatened men are Gerry Fitt, Paddy Devlin, Ivan Cooper, John Nume, Austin Currie and Teddy O'Hanlon. All are members of the Social Democratic and Labor party. It is considering whether to meet the British administrator, William Whitelaw, to discuss ways of ending the sectarian violence between the province's one million Protestants and 500,000 Catholics. The death tool has reached 489 in three years.

Devlin, the party's chief manager who survived an earlier attempt on his life, said his party regarded British military occupation of Catholic areas in Belfast and Londonderry as a major obstacle to talks.

He has also accused British authorities of unfairness, claiming that militant Protestant groups are defying Whitelaw's ban on parades by men dressed in military-style uniforms.

Devlin was referring to a march by 1,000 members of the Ulster Defense Association in Belfast on Friday. Police took no action against the marchers, who said they would continue to defy Whitelaw's ban.

The party has also insisted that Whitelaw release all persons still interned without trial as suspected guerrillas. Whitelaw is under pressure to free these presons by next Wednesday, the first anniversary of the internment policy, or face major civil rights demonstrations.

A bomb wrecked shops, apartments and houses in Portglenone, a village 30 miles from Belfast. Police received 30 minutes' warning and were able to clear the area. No one was injured.

YOUNG AMPUTEE WED IN VIOLENT IRELAND

KILLYBEGS, Ireland (UPI) — A young secretary who lost both legs and an arm in the bombing of a Belfast restaurant rolled down a church aisle in a wheelchair Saturday to wed her sweetheart. An American priest performed the ceremony.

"I am very happy and bear no resentment against anybody for my injuries," said Rosaleen McNern after her marriage to Killybegs-born insurance clerk Brendan Murrine Both are 24

Father Con Blaney, the bride's cousin from Brooklyn, N.Y, flew to Ireland to preform the ceremony.

The bride wore the white wedding dress she bought before the explosion in Belfast's Abercorn Restaurant five months ago which cost her her limbs.

The chief bridesmaid, her 21-year-old sister Jennifer, also was in a wheelchair. Jennifer was with her sister in the March 4 explosion that killed two persons and wounded 136. She too lost both legs.

Killybegs' St. Mary's parish church was jammed for the wedding. More than 100 guests, many from Belfast, attended the reception in a Donegal hotel.

Friends said the bride would have to return to a hospital after the honeymoon.

Moscow police arrest U.S. newsman, 4 Jews

MOSCOW (UPI) — An American correspondent said uniformed policemen broke into a Moscow apartment Saturday and arrested him and four Jews who were talking there.

The newsman, James R. Peipert of the Associated Press, said the four arresting officers refused to give a reason for the arrests. Peipert said he was released after more than one hour of detention at Militia (police) Station 83. The Jews were kept at the station an additional four hours and were then released, he said.

All four Jews have sought exit visas to go to Israel and two have lately been under close police surveillance, Peipert said.

Two of the Jews had already been arrested once earlier in the day. They were Lazer Breneris of Lithuania and Mark Nashpits, 21, a Moscow dentist who was sentenced Wednesday to one year of "correctional labor" for refusing to attend a 57-day army reserve training session.

Hiroshima prayer service commemorates A-bomb

HIROSHIMA, Japan, Sunday (UPI) — The solemn tones of a Buddhist temple bell today summoned Hiroshima's people to a brief prayer service for kinsmen lost in history's first atomic bombing 27 years ago.

About 20,000 of modern Hiroshima's 600,000 population attended the annual service in Peace Memorial Park, just under the spot where the new weapon ushered in a new and tense era of military history.

The upward flight of 2,000 doves brought the rite to a close.

The first A-bomb, dubbed "little boy" by the U.S. Army Air Corps, devastated the city on the morning of Aug. 5, 1945 (Aug. 6 in Japan).

An official American estimate three months later put the loss of life at 78,150. The Hiroshima city government carries more than 200,000 names on its roster of "victims," but includes all survivors who have died since, no matter what the cause.

Nagasaki, near the tip of southern Japan, felt the fury of the second A-bomb. The city government estimated the loss of life there at 73,884.

SURVIVORS of the Hiroshima bombing comprise only about one fifth of the city's population. Others have scattered widely. About 500 live in the United States. They also are found in Japan's 48 provinces, North and South Korea and China.

Pre-war Hiroshima's economy was based on the surrounding rich farmlands and the cluster of military and naval bases in the area.

Now it is an industrial city, best known overseas as the home of the Toyo Kogyo Co., maker of the Mazda rotary engine automobile. Shipyards and electronics plants round out the economy.

An atomic bomb casualty commission, jointly financed by the American and Japanese governments, makes a continuing study of the medical effects of the bomb on survivors.

Its findings have shown they are more prone to leukemia than other Japanese. Although children carried by pregnant women close to the explosion suffered brain damage due to radiation, no signs of hereditary defects have yet appeared in the children of survivors.

Egypt group reassured by Podgorny

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nikolai V. Podgorny told a visiting parliamentary delegation from Egypt on Saturday that he was confident "friendly Soviet-Egyptian relations would go on developing," Tass reported.

The official Soviet news agency said the 20 visitors stopped for a "warm, friendly talk" with Podgorny in the Crimea resort area on their way home after four days in Moscow and Leningrad.

Tass said they discussed "questions of further development of Soviet-Egyptian relations, parliamentary ties and also pressing international problems, specifically the situation in the Middle East."

The agency quoted Podgorny as saying the Arabs' "just struggle" to regain lands lost to Israel in the 1967 war "will be crowned with success."

VISITORS to Guernsey, an island in the English Channel, help themselves to tomatoes that cannot be transported to Britain because of the national dock strike. An attempt was started Friday to ship the crop to Britain by air, but only half the available tomatoes can be moved.

Livestock feed shortage feared in British strike

LONDON (AP) — The British government warned on Saturday there could be critical shortages of imported feeds for livestock if the nine-day-old national dock strike continued for another two weeks.

A statement from the Ministry of Agriculture said farmers were stretching feed supplies as best they could but stocks were dwindling. The announcement was the first government warning on the possibility of a critical supply shortage due to the dock strike.

Port employers and union leaders were trying to work out a new formula on job security and severance pay that would allow Britain's 42,000 dockers to call off their strike in the next week or so.

If the strike goes on, however, the government is expected to use emergency powers and send in troops to unload essential supplies from the 500 ships idled in British ports.

Prime Minister Edward Heath called a Cabinet meeting Saturday to assess the strike's effect.

An airlift of tomatoes was begun Saturday from the English Channel island of Guernsey. It depends on exports of tomatoes to Britain for its livelihood.

LOOTERS FOLLOW PHILIPPINE FLOOD

MANILA (UPI) — Widespread looting was reported Saturday in the flooded Lakeshore towns of nearby Laguna province and police in at least one town were given shoot-to-kill orders.

The looting reports reached Manila shortly after President Ferdinand E. Marcos said that tension was running high in flood-stricken central Luzon and that Communists were expected to exploit the situation.

Marcos said survivors were so hungry in flooded areas they were eating snakes and rats.

The National Control Center said the death toll had reached 427 as of late Saturday.

MIDYEAR FORECASTS

Dixon predicts bitter campaign

By JEANE DIXON

JEANE DIXON
Looking Ahead

I see President Nixon re-elected—but only after a rough-and-tumble fight to the finish.

It will be a tough, bitterly-contested election, and the Republicans will be successful only if they do not become too complacent, or take victory for granted.

Voting machines will be tampered with. . .ballot boxes will be lost . . . many powerful political bosses will withhold their voting blocs until the very last minute. . .in general, the entire election will be an offensive affair with accusations of vote-stealing and treachery at the polls flying back and forth wildly.

The blacks and the young will decide the election, but it promises to be the most scandal-ridden, manipulated election in many years. If they are to win, the Republicans will work feverishly to get their voters to the polls . . . have proper security at the precincts. . .and instruct their poll-watchers and election judges to be alert at all times.

Displeased with President Nixon's devaluation of the dollar, the money manipulators of Europe will muster forces to unseat President Nixon, if at all possible. I see the support of this group thrown into the election battle against President Nixon.

I see a change coming in the United States government . . . a gradual, then accelerated waning of power of the liberal, conservative Demo-Republicans . . . from those voters who are now following Governor Wallace's "send them a message" urgings. Its full effect will be felt in 1976.

SEN THOMAS F. EAGLETON: Sen. McGovern has opened the magic door for Sen. Eagleton, and the man from Missouri is on his way.

Eventually he will rise above his present peers. A move to discredit him will only be a temporary setback. Next September a morals issue will be raised against him, and that same month he will have some misunderstandings with labor groups, from making promises that cannot be kept.

However, Sen. Eagleton will start shining in February of 1973. . .he will change his residence, and do much international traveling.

Already grooming himself for high office, he has presidential aspirations, and one day will seek the presidency. A man of great psychic ability and keen intuition, Sen. Eagleton will always be in the limelight.

SEN. GEORGE McGOVERN: Sen. McGovern has powerful forces supporting his campaign; he will become the leader of his party but will not succeed in uniting it. He knows how to delegate authority and will let subordinates handle such groups as the abortion reformers and Gay Liberationists.

Sen. McGovern will continue in public office, but I do not get that he and Sen. Edward Kennedy will ever run on the same ticket, although they will work closely together on many projects.

By March of 1973, the senator will find himself with many financial responsibilities—for I get that funds for his campaign will not have been forthcoming as promised.

SPIRO T. AGNEW: Troubled times are ahead for our athletic vice president. There is still some internal dissatisfaction in the Republican Party over the President's choice of running mate.

Vice President Agnew is just starting his ascendancy to more demanding responsibilities. Do not be surprised to see him in the presidential chair one day, as I get that he will run for that office. There is great success, fame and fortune ahead of him, if he will refrain from being overly forceful. . .sometimes it is wise to count to 10 first.

The first part of April 1974 will be a tremendous

Predictor sees Viet cease-fire

ed States-Soviet relations will begin in 1975. The aim of our opposing forces is to keep the United States occupied in Vietnam until 1975.

However, before that, there will be a lessening of U.S. involvement in ground hostilities in Southeast Asia, and a possible cease-fire, or Korean-type peace agreement between Hanoi and Saigon. Guerilla-like activity will continue for some time, but it will be essentially a war between North and South Vietnam with the United States very much in the background.

Safeguarding the dikes is so critical to the North Vietnamese that the war would quickly grind to a stop if the dikes controlling the water, so necessary for rice crops, were to be destroyed.

The USSR and Red China can give the North Vietnamese weapons of war, but they have little food to send to the North Vietnamese.

Indeed, so important is the dike system that Communist propagandists planted information about it with two delegate-spokesmen at the Democratic National Convention!

Most POW wives and families do not understand the tactics of our opposing forces, or how the POW's are being used for their purposes.

The "begging" approach will never, but never, succeed in having our prisoners of war returned! Our opposing forces will allow the dikes to be bombed before they will release the POW's. They will hold the prisoners until they force the United States to negotiate on their terms.

While I do see some sort of a cease-fire agreement for Vietnam at this time, I do not see world peace now.

RICHARD M. NIXON: In 1974 will bring about legislation that will make revolutionary changes and reforms in penal institutions—promote self-rehabilitation for prisoners; supply psychiatrists, teachers, and graduate penologists where needed; and see that families of prisoners, especially children and the aged, are properly taken care of.

The President will also have legislation enacted to bring about a comprehensive plan for medical care and hospitalization — not only for the poor and aged, but for those in the middle income group as well.

JOHN B. CONNALLY, JR.: I could almost call this Texas politico "The Sailing Diplomat". . .or "The Diplomat of Many Voyages." He is going to be a grand-slam winner! Unfortunately he will worry a lot . . . many times needlessly.

In 1973 Connally will be appointed to a very high office, and I see him making many trips to China as well as other countries. The next few years will be one of the greatest periods of his life, but the latter part of 1975 will bring changes. His faith, intuitive sense and vision will help him tactfully to close many important breaches in international relationships.

Connally's vibrations indicate to me that he also would have made a outstanding minister.

GOV. RONALD REAGAN: Ronald Reagan will do a great deal of international traveling for our government, and will have an ambassadorial offer in 1974. I strongly suggest that late in October this year he take special precautions for his personal safety while in foreign countries.

Special honors will be accorded Gov. Reagan in October of 1974; indeed, the entire year of 1974 will be an excellent one for him. He will be very successful in partnership investments.

He will emerge as a very important author when he leaves the political arena, and will one day make a fabulous motion picture which will be deeply meaningful to all humanity. In 1973 Ronald Reagan will make a big change in his life style; his most magnificent achievements will come after that.

GEORGE MEANY: Great danger surrounds the president of the AFL-CIO. September will set bitter disputes that will cause Meany to think long and hard about the time-honored "political traditions" of organized labor!

At the very last moments, he, like Mayor Daley, will change his political viewpoint. I see much trouble and misunderstanding ahead for Meany and his fellow union leaders—old rivalries renewed and old friendships split—especially from mid-September to September's end.

Although he is still active and powerful, the year will soon begin to take their toll . . . and around his birthday in 1974 Meany will begin to live more quietly and benevolently.

GEORGE WALLACE: In April I predicted Gov. Wallace would be the target of an attempted assassination, but that he would recover to lead new forces in U.S. politics. In several of my published predictions I had urged strong security precautions.

The controversial Alabaman will never walk again normally, but he will walk again, with help. I believe it is meant for him to fulfill his purpose on earth—to inject a sense of morality and honesty into politics.

As the governor regains his health, he will gain in political strength also. Misunderstanding of him will lessen and world opinion of him will change.

Police chief dies after gun wound

MILTON, W. Va. (UPI) —The police chief of this eastern West Virginia town bled to death from shotgun wounds after trying to arrest a man and his son who manhandled another officer.

Authorities said Chief Melvin Ray Lucas, 37, died of leg wounds inflicted by a 12-gauge shotgun fired from a bedroom by Raymond Wallace, 23, when the chief and Constable Robert Black entered the Wallace home to arrest him and his father.

Black said he carried Lucas from the home on his back, bursting through a screen door, but the police chief died in the front yard from loss of blood.

State police called by the murder suspect's mother arrested young Wallace for murder and his father, Alonzo Wallace, for obstructing a policeman and resisting arrest. Both were held in Cabell County jail in Huntington.

Lucas and Black had gone to the home with misdemeanor warrants charging Wallace and his son with assaulting a patrolman on the town's main street earlier.

Meter maid strike costly

BERKELEY (UPI) — Free parking on Berkeley streets due to a city employes strike has cost this city a small bundle, Berkeley's financial director said.

Drivers got a free ride for three weeks when meter maids went out on strike with other city workers.

Financial director Henry Garber said this weekend that the strike cost the city $23,000 in unwritten parking tickets.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: Most of the year ahead is a search for a better level of daily living, stronger self-expression. With earnest effort, rewards arrive late in the year. Relationships are alive. Today's natives usually turn to teaching, often some philosophic specialty, are interested in the riddle of life.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Surprises are the order of the day, those of evening being very helpful once you accept the changes thrust upon you. Conciliate.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Home, family matters need review and experimental rearrangement. By evening you return to an older idea and a feeling of relief.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Only at the end of the day does your luck work well. Accept upheavals as temporary phases of something good developing.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Material concerns encounter choppy going all day, with conflicting estimates of what is needed and what costs may be reasonable.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It's a day for breaking precedent, letting go of the overdone. Later hours bring sound gains, new plans.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The main path to getting anything done is do whatever you can alone, adjusting and double checking. You'll get something done.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Purchases don't bring the expectable results, so keep your involvement to a minimum. Moderate habits are indicated.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Exciting news and provocative ideas arrive. Your world is not the same again so you may as well prepare for change.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends have slightly incorrect information. By evening you will have sifted things out and know more of where you stand.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): This Monday is more of a circus than routine. Accept temporary conditions, wait to see developments before you settle your own plans.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Today's people, schemes and tactics tend to be premature. Watch for indications of future trends, discount temporary results.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Past efforts are near, but not yet to the point of recognition. Persist, cope with misunderstandings. Family life has surprises tonight.

To campers, the name's their game

By ROBIN HINCH

Everything, it would seem, is in the name. What is emblazoned on the back of the camper, motorhome or trailer tells a great deal about those enclosed within.

The couple barreling down Highway 99 who named their camper Ruff 'n It have a wry sense of humor. They were hardly roughing it at all in their luxurious home-on-pick-up-truck, fully equipped with bathroom, kitchen, beds and TV.

Gonphur Coughie, announced another large camper, as it wended its way down Pacific Coast Highway in Long Beach. Does the husband have chronic bronchitis? Or is the wife fascinated by phonetics?

"Most of the names are kind of crazy," said one Long Beach sign painter who has decorated several campers at owners' requests. "I've done 50 or so, and they usually pertain to the wife. Rosie's Baby or something. That makes her happy."

One wonders, however, how happy the wife was whose husband named his motorhome, John's Pad When Sandy's Mad.

"They're like people who name their boats," said another local letterer. "They use a combination of the wife and daughter's names or something. They're liable to come up with anything."

LAKEWOOD-LONG BEACH recreational vehicle owners have formed their own branch of the national Good Sam Club for camper and trailer fans. The local group calls itself the Happy Rollers.

Happy Rollers roll regularly on weekend camp-outs and number as many as 50 recreational vehicles, according to Virginia Cole, club secretary. They gather each month at a scenic campsite not farther than 100 miles from Long Beach, park round a bonfire and enjoy the outdoors and each other.

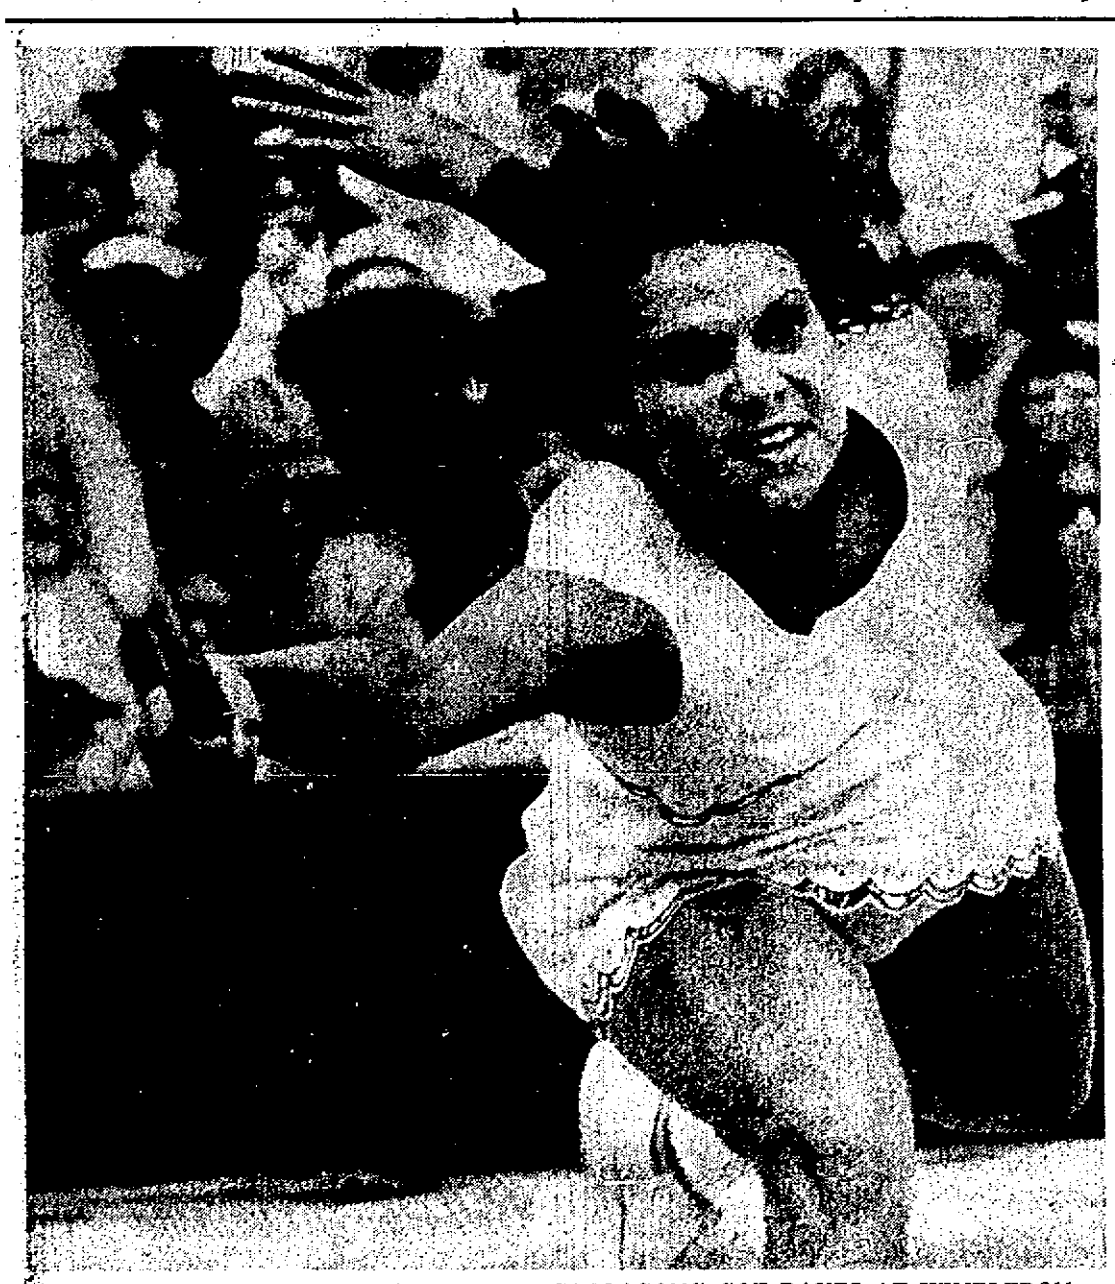

The Charles Bells have a mini-motor home with Happy Rollers painted gaily on the back and illustrated with little humanized rolling pins.

The Don Cochrans, also club members, have a crest on the door and a Roadrunner cartoon on the back of their motor home. The cartoon shows the famous roadrunner bird caught by the neck by the coyote, who has a salt shaker in one paw.

"There's supposed to be a caption saying 'Beep beep, you . . . '", Cochran said apologetically, "but my wife wouldn't let me use it."

AUSTRALIAN TENNIS STAR EVONNE GOOLAGONG GOT RAVES AT WIMBLEDON

QUEEN ELIZABETH ARRIVES AT ROYAL ASCOT WITH SHAH OF IRAN

Sport is in being seen

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

LONDON — Summer, which always has trouble reaching the British Isles, is when a young fop's fancy turns anything but lightly to Ascot, Wimbledon and Henley.

Collectively, these three London suburbs measure out "the season," a social rather than summer approach to time and events.

To miss any or all of these fashionable sporting events, is to have your friends think you are dead. Or out of town, which is worse, as Oscar Wilde once observed.

Ascot, more properly Royal Ascot, is horse racing done up as period costume drama in the presence of Her Majesty the Queen, with this season, the Shah of Iran as an added starter. Since the crown owns the pasture where the ponies play, mornings are given over to royal drag races among the house guests at Windsor Castle.

This year Prince Charles, finishing a poor fourth behind his sister Princess Anne in the private palace stakes, swept the headline play by reining in a run-away trying to make off with his date, the lovely Lady Louise Astor. summer of shore duty with the Royal Navy.

WIMBLEDON IS TENNIS ritually performed in a grassy playpen called the All England Tennis and Croquet Club, which most people don't even realize until they notice old codgers in eye shades and croquet mallets.

Supposedly Wimbledon offers the world's best tennis, except that this year in a complicated contretemps, Lamar Hunt, the Texas oil millionaire, corralled under contract some of the world's best players, including Australian John Newcombe, last year's men's champion. The title was taken by American Stan Smith.

Undaunted, the Royal custodians of the net this year put the emphasis in women at Wimbledon, and not only because of the debut here of 17-year-old Chris Evert, the phenomenally cool American with the true baseline eyes and the false eyelashes.

Perhaps confusing women's lob with women's lib, the phrasemakers of Fleet Street this season tout-

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Still picking winners

By CAROLYN McDOWELL

REMEMBER WHEN autos weren't air conditioned?

Remember when we didn't have the Queen Mary?

Remember when we DID have the Miss Universe contest?

Then we changed it to Miss International Beauty Congress?

Remember when the bubble hair-do gave way to the beehive?

William Prendiz, now a hair stylist at Bunker Hill Towers in Los Angeles, was just a lad living in Belmont Shore then but he remembers all these things.

Back in 1960, he picked Stella Marquez of Colombia as his choice for the pageant winner. The judges agreed and Miss Colombia became Miss International Beauty.

Stella later married Jorge Leon Araneta and moved to Manila.

She and William kept in touch through the years and this year she invited him to be the official hairdresser for the Miss Philippines Beauty Contest.

Stella was chairman of the pageant, which was held in Quezon City, at the Araneta Coliseum (named after the family of her husband) and 16,000 spectators were there to see the finals.

William also served as a judge for the contest.

He is home now and he must have judged right as the new Miss Philippines is houseguesting at his family home.

WHILE WE ARE REMINISCING . . .

A happy anniversary today to Rev. Floyd and Jeannette Westbrook.

He is pastor of the Christ Church of Westminster. Both widowed, they were married one year ago today.

A happy seventh wedding anniversary today to Darrel and Shirley Johnson. He is minister of music at the church and the couple met and married there.

A happy anniversary next Sunday to Rev. Sam and Gloria Thompson. He is associate pastor of the church. The couple will be celebrating six years since their marriage. They met at youth activities at the church.

A note from Lucile Chapman points out the truth is stranger than fiction coincidences that have followed these couples' lives.

Three ministers, all of Christ Church, were married at the same altar. All three helped in the officiating of each other's wedding ceremony. All three anniversaries are within one week.

The Westbrook wedding was the first marriage ceremony ever performed by Pastor Sam Thompson.

The Thompson wedding was the first marriage ceremony in the newly completed sanctuary.

The Johnson wedding was performed by Pastor Floyd Westbrook.

The Johnson wedding reception was the first held in the newly completed Ambassador Hall.

Gloria Thompson was an attendant for Shirley Johnson.

Quite a string of firsts and coincidences you say? Here's one more.

Rev. Floyd and Rev. Sam both share the same birthdate, Oct. 24th.

A PARTY RIGHT OUT of Vogue . . .

The modeling school, not the magazine.

Vogue models and their gentlemen went south to China Cove (near Corona Del Mar) to the cliff-hanging home of Vicki Morrison for a mid-summer barbecue.

Before the steaks went on the fire, volleyball occupied many of the guests including the canine companion of Vogue's owner, Elda Barry. The pooch is appropriately named Elda Mae.

Steak fryers included Mary Miho, Leanna Johnson, Frank and Marian Endley, the Barry Cahols, Dr. Wheeler North, Bob and Gay McKernie, Clay McKeown, Gail Ream, Bob and Bonnie Wheeler, Ed Lee, Jim Gilman and Sue Chastain.

AN IMPROMTU family reunion party took place on Saturday in the American Airlines terminal at LA International.

Wilson High teacher, Ernest Morrison, returned from a study and sightsee tour of Europe with a group of students who toured under the auspices of the International Exchange School.

Among the returned travelers were Sharon Kirkpatrick, Linda Wing, Beth Eagleson and Val Rolfsema.

THE ISLAND of Corfu, the ancient city of Athens and a cruise through the Greek Islands highlighted a fortnight of fun for the traveling Geans, Dr. David and daughters Marsha, Lisa and Suzanne.

While the girls were gone, mom Shirley enjoyed a visit from her sister, Lois Kerner and her husband, Mel who are on their way to a new home in Sydney, Australia.

ARMI BARBARA CRESPO, Miss Philippines, and her official hairdresser, former Long Beach resident, William Prendiz.

Pet names for homes on wheels

Princess are names that graced the Cochran's previous campers.

CAMPERS FREQUENTLY are likened to animal dwellings. The Lyons' Den; Barry's Lair; the Eagle's Nest. Or treat the drivers behind them to a complete family tree: the Dohertys — Doug, Dottie, Danny and Darlene.

Perhaps camper owners are just being thoughtful; providing us with amusing reading material when we're stuck on a mountain road behind a large, slow rig around which it is impossible to see.

Or perhaps they're trying to tell us something: that you CAN take it with you.

SCHOOL FASHION PARADE

Coeds and campus heroes both opt for jeans

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK —Back to school's fashion report card is a blackboard jungle of plaids and patterns, the primary colors, the return to the classics, the layered look. And what else? Jeans.

These themes run through collections for both sexes from nursery school right on through the teens.

Those denims go right on . . . and on, and on. Jeans, frayed, faded, patched, decorated with everything from personal art to peace symbols, have become the security blanket of the young generation.

"Most of the fashion forecasters agree that while girls will go more feminine for fall and boys and young men will favor a more masculine look, jeans will remain the single most potent item in the marketplace," says Leda Sanford, editor, Teens & Boys Outfitter, New York.

MISS SANFORD says jeans represent youth's rebellion against "manufacture-dictated styles that had nothing to do with the customer's desires or needs."

The denim wave has swept from pants to jackets, to all weather coats and to new treatments—a brushed look—to the fabric. The young now can buy new beat - up, bleached-out jeans, or get them cross-dyed with black for a darker look.

Denim has a strong influence on other fabrics. Suitings and blazers adapt a frosty look in knits and stretch wool blends. Corduroys simulate denim, as do shirtings in both wovens and single knits.

OUT TO CUT into denim's popularity for fall is the big trend throughout the children's wear market for the plaids. "It was just a year when all the big fabric houses went mad for plaid," said Patricia Van Olinda, who writes for Earnshaw's, a publication for buyers. (Plaids hit the adult market with equal power).

Sometimes the pattern is plaid on plaid, cut on the straight, plaid on the bias. Horse-blanket size plaids dominate in coats, toggle jackets, trousers, jumpers, pleated skirts with sweaters.

Bit parts for plaids show in hats, caps, belts, shirts and robes.

GLENS ARE revived, showing for boys in new colorations of, say, olive and plum, or gray and burgundy. For the girls the colors ar both muted or bold. It's a big year for the primary colors—bright red, yellow, green, and blue—in all girls' apparel.

In the department of classics, included blazers, baseball jackets, sailor touches. And sweaters. They go to the head of the class again.

Some manufacturers call them simply knit tops, and the range is from skinny rib turtlenecks, to full sleeve treatments, cable stitches, halters, tanks and vests.

Sweaters fit right into the layered manner of dress. Take a turtle and add a shirt. Add a cable-knit and cardigan. The variations are infinite.

NOW, SOME other highlights of fall fashions in girls' wear:

For pre-teens; pants outdoing dresses, with lots of the jeans-type trousers decorated with nail-heads and the like. They're coming with full cuffed legs and high rising waistbands (a break from the hip huggers), says Miss Van Olinda.

Girls go for the haberdasher's look, showing in such as button-down collars, copies of men's ties.

The body suit goes on, with assorted styles of skirts to wrap on. Smocks make minitops, worn with pants or leotards.

EVERYONE likes herringbones. They blanket the market from shirting weights to heavy outerwear, says BAMA. Those big bold stripes for trousers "look very dated." For fall, the trend is to "disguise" stripings, like fine line twills with vertical or basic chalk and pin stripes in color with white.

Tuck-in boot pants are going to gain some popularity among older boys, says BAMA. Sales of boots, right up the knee-highs with laces, already are on the rise.

Knits are News!
First of the season! Beautiful wool double knits at an unbelievable price. Smart season-spanners in vintage colors—white accented! Two styles.

ed the female players as enticing sex symbols rather than mere sweaty competitiors. Not since Gussie Moran displayed a fringe of black lace beneath her tutu on the center court a few years back has there been such a surge of animalism among the athletes of the game.

THE SUN, ONE of the gamier tabloids, commissioned painter Paul Trevillion to come up with an artist's rendering of how Evonne Goolagong, last year's Wimbledon queen, might look playing in the nude.

"Goolagong in the altogether," was the Sun's headline over a three column spread showing the Australian star rampant in sneakers with a cocked backhand modestly concealing the quintessential Goolagong.

The Express, not to be left out of the locker room, launched a several-part profile of tempestuous British star Virginia Wade "dominant, independent, sensual," as the caption under a glamor photo phrased it.

Meanwhile, back on the fashion pages, tennis dress designer Teddy Tinling, who first introduced Miss Moran to fringe benefits, was telling an interviewer his chief skill entailed "stretching seductive panties and sexy little skirts over backside muscles as big as melons."

HENLEY, TO ROUND OUT the trilogy, is an intercollegiate boat race, or series of same, down on the chilly Thames. It's always been called the Royla Regatta because of the Prince Consort, Queen Victoria's husband, who had a thing about boats.

Despite the bleacher sections standing like little league stadiums along the river bank, no one gets to see much of the scullers sculling in quest of a silver goblet, because everyone is too busy trying to be seen in his Sunday best downing a goblet of Pimms' Cup at one of the fashionable inns along the course.

At Henley, it's not necessary to see the Harvard crew go grunting by, grim as galley slaves.

The important thing is to be seen not seeing them.

ALL THREE, HENLEY, Wimbledon and Ascot, are basically high fashion romps more famous for their flossy pomp than their sporting circumstances.

Ascot is Edwardian nostalgia, where debs in hats like pizza pans spouting window boxes dine al fresco on the hoods of Rolls Royces in the Royal car park on gull eggs and quail stuffed with foi gras. It's the only place, outside a road company of "My Fair Lady," where for the price of a rented morning suit and a topper, a chap can lean over the paddock and be mistaken for a toff-at-large from the Royal enclosure, or, at worst, an American tourist adrift from his coach tour.

Wimbledon is strawberries and cream washed down with champagne, on the tea lawn behind the ivy-mantled court. It's where the really chic Chelsea birds try to dress as much as possible like tennis queens, and the really fashionable tennis queens try to arrive at the court looking as much as possible like really chic Chelsea girls.

THE SEASON, SO FAR, was marred only by murmurings of discontent from the dedicated athletes at Wimbledon, because the Lawn Tennis Association, which stages the frolic, dispensed with the Rolls Royces traditionally dispatched to collect the competitors at their hotels.

Instead, for economy reasons, the association accepted a car manufacturer's offer of new model cars, decidedly in the middle price range, driven by pretty upper-class girls.

But then standards are falling all over, as the Mayfair matron observed at Henley, downing domestic champagne from a paper cup, while Polish and Russian scullers churned up the royal waters.

AT HENLEY THE GIRLS determinedly dress up for the elusive English summer, complete with umbrellas prettied up as parasols. And no one really gets to see much of the crews competing in the Royal Regatta on the Thames. In fact, all three events of "the season" in Britain — Henley, Ascot and Wimbledon — are basically high fashion romps more famous for their flossy pomp than their sporting circumstances. —(AP) Newsfeatures Photo

AT WIT'S END

Unconditioned to the weather

By ERMA BOMBECK

Dante envisioned hell as a fiery inferno with heat so intense the human body writhed in torment.

I envision hell as a dime store north of town where the air conditioning is set so low my glasses ice up.

The truth is, I've been freezing to death all summer thanks to well-meaning merchants who set their refrigeration at wax museum temperatures. It's ridiculous. In the dead of summer, I go to a movie carrying a coat over my arm. I go to the supermarket and spend half my time warming my hands on the rotisserie. I drive the car on the wrong side of the street just to get a patch of sun on my arm.

THE OTHER NIGHT at an intimate little restaurant, I said to my husband halfway through dinner, "Would you put your arm around me?"

"You wanta make love or you wanta eat?" he asked, buttering a piece of garlic bread.

"It's nothing personal," I said. "I'm freezing to death. Can you see anyone around us?"

"Not too well," he said, squinting into the darkness. "Why?

"If anyone else is hanging from hooks, maybe we got into the food locker by mistake."

"I'm perfectly comfortable," he said, snuggling in his wool sport coat. "Maybe you're anemic or something. you should go to a doctor if you're cold all the time."

In the doctor's office, the nurse smiled and said, "Hello."

"That's easy for you to say," I grumbled. "You're wearing a sweater."

SHE SHOWED ME into a room where she instructed. "Take off your clothes and slip into this." I put on a paper gown with a back exit big enough to drive a truck through and slid onto the cold metal table. A blower from over the door blew my chart right off the table. I was shivering uncontrollably when the doctor came in, took a stethoscope out of the refrigerator, and placed it on my chest. I blew on my hands and coughed.

"I can't seem to find any medical reason for your being chilled," he said, "unless . . . you've been out in the sun too long."

"What did the doctor say?" asked my husband as I came out.

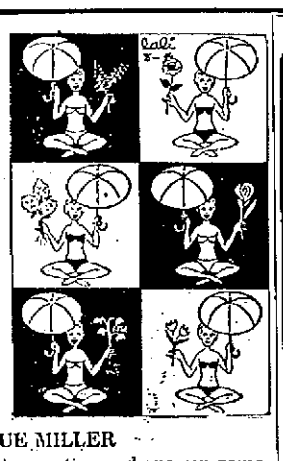

"He said I was getting chilled from the sun."

"What does that mean?"

"It means if Dante is right, when I go . . . I'd better take a sweater with me."

LOVELIER YOU

Game for a summer afternoon

By MARY SUE MILLER

Any number can play this question-and-answer game about fragrance. It's fun!

Q. Do perfume tastes differ with nationalities?

A. It is a matter of climate. Women from cold climates seem to prefer heavier fragrances than those from warm.

Q. Is it true that perfume loses strength if exposed to light?

A. Yes, but not quite accurate. It loses bouquet through oxidation due to ultra violet rays. This is true of wine. Milk too.

Q. How can a woman be sure a perfume suits her?

A. According to experts at the House of Fragrance, "le coupe de foudre." The thunderstroke! When she loves it at once, it will love her.

Q. Does one's body chemistry affect a perfume's reaction?

A. Body temperature, oils in the skin, health alter a scent often in a pleasantly individual manner.

Q. How long does it take to develop a new perfume?

A. It may take several years. The design of packaging, ingredients from as far away as Persia require time.

Q. Why do perfume prices vary?

A. Price is influenced by the number and character of ingredients. One perfume, contains 125 ingredients, almost all natural. Synthetic oils are less costly.

Strictly personal

Everything you need to know about deodorants, antiperspirants and depilatories is contained in my leaflet, STRICTLY PERSONAL. Action center

New York public schools now have something called the Chancellor's Action Center. Manned by parent volunteers, the center's the place to call when anyone has a complaint or question about a school matter. Harvey B. Scribner, chancellor education in New York, sees the center as a way of bettering communication between parents and system.

Both young persons were graduated from Lakewood High School and attended Long Beach City College. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Ray of Long Beach.

Let us tell world the happy news

It's natural for the bride-to-be to want to tell the world of her marriage— and at the Independent, Press-Telegram, we want to help her.

Available is a special printed form which, when completed, gives the necessary information for publication of the wedding story.

This form MUST be returned AT LEAST one week prior to the wedding. Information received after the wedding has taken place will not be used.

Pictures of the bride alone, preferably in her wedding gown, are due at the same time as the form. They must be 5x7 or 8x10 in size, black and white glossy prints taken by a professional photographer.

Snapshots, Polaroids or color prints cannot be used.

PHOTOGRAPHS, which are not returnable, will be used only once, either with the engagement or the wedding write-up. Engagement news must be received at least three months before the wedding date.

We cannot reserve space or promise publication. Stories received in time will be used as quickly as space allows.

Both the wedding and engagement forms are available from the I, P-T's main office, 604 Pine Ave., or Lakewood office, 4635 Candlewood. To have them mailed, call 435-1161 and ask for Life/style Department.

There is no charge for publication.

MRS. THOMAS J. COPE

The Aces on bridge

by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

By IRA G. CORN JR.

Dear Mr. Corn:

We agreed to play Blackwood and we held these hands and bid them as shown.

WEST		EAST
♠ K		♠ A J x
♥ —		♥ A x x x x x x
♦ A K Q x		♦ x x x
♣ A K Q J 10 x x x		♣ —

West	North	East	South
4 NT	Pass	7 ♥	Dbl.
7 NT	Pass	Pass	Dbl.

As you can see, I made my contract but we had quite a discussion. Can you tell me the correct bidding, please?

Hot Water,
San Francisco.

Answer: The opening bid of four no trump is not generally played as Blackwood. Standard procedure is to use this bid to describe a balanced hand of 28-29 points. East could hardly be blamed for bidding seven hearts if she expected such a dummy. The rest of the bidding was too volatile for words, although there may be a lesson in South's doubles. If the opponents, who obviously hold all the cards, want to play in a contract, you can beat (seven hearts), there is no point in doubling unless you are sure you can beat an alternate contract.

Dear Mr. Corn:

We play Stayman, standard 16-18 point no trumps, and the Jacoby Transfer. In a recent game I was confronted with this problem. What should I have done?

North	East	Me
1 NT	2 ♦	?

♠ x
♥ A J 10 9 x x
♦ x x
♣ Q 10 x x

After much pain I bid four hearts and went down one. If partner had played the hand, it would have made since the diamond king could not be attacked.

Wrong Side,
South Bend, Ind.

Answer: A difficult problem and I agree with your decision to bid four hearts. Since you recognize the value of the Jacoby Transfer Bids, I suggest that you play them at the four level also. In that case a jump to four diamonds requests opener to bid four hearts and a jump to four hearts transfers to four spades.

Dear Mr. Corn:

We all play the short club. After this bidding sequence I felt justified in overcalling with my five-card suit headed by the ace-king and a total of 14 points.

LHO	Partner	RHO	Me
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	2 ♣

I was severely criticized and was told that my bid showed 20 points or more. Is that correct?

Biddable Suit,
Wilmette, Ill.

Answer: There are many local uses and modifications to the "short club." Many players play (as apparently you want to do) that a minor over a minor shows a suit rather than a strong hand.

There is nothing wrong with playing this way. However, bridge is a partnership game which requires both members to agree upon the meaning of certain bids. Lacking any discussion or specific agreement, the only reasonable alternative is to "play by the book." Under these conditions a bid in one of the opponents' suits is a cue bid and shows a very fine hand.

Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 12363, Dallas, Texas 75225. Include self-addressed, stamped envelope for personal reply.

St. Cyprian fete

St. Cyprian's Guild will sponsor a public card party Wednesday noon in the church hall, 4714 Clark Ave. Bridge, 500, pinochle and canasta will be offered.

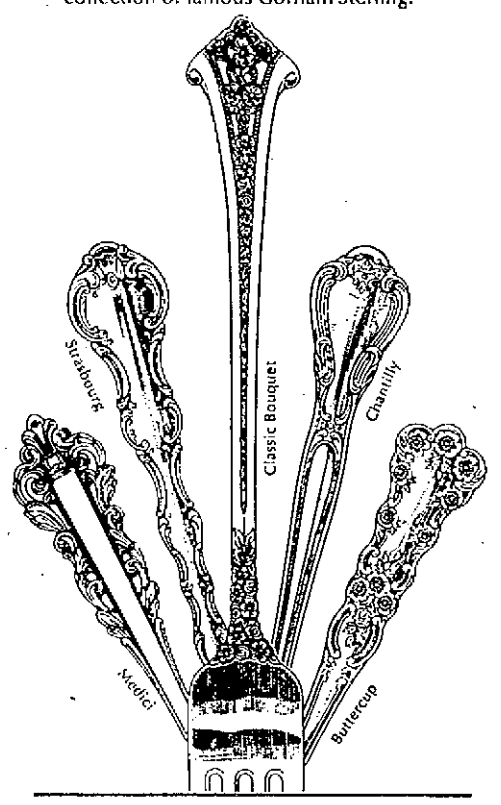

HELPFUL DECORATING HINTS

Don't use any piece of furniture catacornered. This cuts down on your room size. Sufficient thought will enable you to place the piece in question on a straight wall. Do think in terms of a painted piece of furniture in a room, this breaks the monotony and adds charm to the decor.

Best Way for a Boy to Learn the Rules of the Game—
The Facts of Economic Life!
● YOUR newspaper carrier is one young man who is learning the all-important facts of modern economic life early in his career — something too few boys are doing today!
BY serving a newspaper route he's getting a good idea of what makes the free enterprise system work. He's running a small business of his own — and profiting by it! Learning the value of money by earning his own! How to deal with people and satisfy them with service! How to keep accurate records, collect accounts and pay bills promptly! MEMBERS OF The First Chamber Dance Company are, from left at top, Frank Bays and Carlyn Muehmore. In lower row, from left, are Fleming Halby, Janice Groman, Charles Bennett, Gerard Sibbritt, Sara de Luis and Marjorie Mussman. The company will perform Friday and Saturday nights in the Little Theater at LBSU.

FRITZ LUDIN and Betty Jones dance in Carol Wolz's "The Warrior and the Widow" to be seen at faculty concert for Long Beach Summer School of Dance at Long Beach State University. The two have performed frequently together and have shared parallel careers from the East Coast to Hawaii.

LBSU dance school bills seven programs

A notable group of dancers will appear in seven programs for Long Beach Summer School of Dance at Long Beach State University Friday through Aug. 25.

All programs will begin in the campus Little Theater at 8:30 p.m.

On the schedule are performances by The First Chamber Dance Company Friday and Saturday; Dan Wagoner and Dancers Aug. 18 and 19, a student repertory concert Aug. 23 and faculty concerts Aug. 24 and 25.

The First Chamber Dance Company of New York, headed by Charles Bennett, is made up of eight dancers who have opened new concepts and possibilities for dancers through their initiative and innovations.

The company has toured three times in the last two years under sponsorship of the Office of Cultural Presentations of the U.S. State Department. In the last 11 years, it has produced 55 ballets and has had extended residencies with grants from the Pacific Northwest Ballet Association, the New Jersey Council on the Arts, the New York State Council on the Arts, the Performing Dance Foundation, the Rockefeller Foundation and the Fort Wayne Arts Foundation.

BETTY JONES, Fritz Ludin, Ethel Winter and Cliff Keuter are featured in the faculty concerts.

Jones and Ludin have been together in "Dances We Dance," a repertory program emphasizing the evolution of modern dance since 1964. Both have been on the faculties of the Juilliard School, Connecticut College School of Dance and have been artists in residence at the University of Hawaii and were associated with Jose Limon.

Ethel Winter, noted lyrical dancer and former soloist with the Martha Graham Dance Company, is soloist with the New York City Opera Company.

Keuter is choreographer and director of his own dance company. The Bat-Dor Company of Tel Aviv, Dance Theater Workshop and Barnard College have commissioned his works.

DANCERS Elizabeth Keen, Anna Jooss Markard, Winter and Keuter have assembled a repertory company of selected students in the summer program who will perform dances choreographed by the instructors.

CLIFF KEUTER, (right), member of LBSU dance faculty, will perform during series of concerts. He also is one of several faculty members who have choreographed works to be danced by summer students.

Artist's creation to aid UNICEF

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

For design of its first greeting card produced especially for Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year's day, UNICEF turned to Rina Rotholz, Israeli-born artist now living in the United States. Rosh Hashanah is Sept. 9.

Titled Blue Disc, the heavily embossed card is an original, contemporary concept which draws imaginatively on the images and symbolisms of ancient Middle East civilizations.

With a special graphic technique -- tallegraphy—developed by the artist, the design is reproduced from tile. The crudely-shaped blue disc, embossed with pomegranate seeds (symbol of fertility) and other ancient motifs, has a line of Aramaic lettering below. Inside, bi-lingual greetings are in Hebrew calligraphy and in English.

Proceeds of Blue Disc sales, as of all UNICEF cards, will help the United Nations Children's Fund to broaden its activities in child nutrition, mother and child health, education and the production of "safe water," essential to the eradication of disease.

The cards are available at the United Nations Global Gift Shop, 3517 E. Broadway or may be ordered from the U.S. Committee for UNICEF, P.O. Box 5050, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017. A box of 12 cards with envelopes is $3.

LONG BEACH Regional Arts Council, in conjunction with the seventh annual California International Sea Festival, will sponsor a sand sculpture contest Sunday, Aug. 20.

This always is one of the jolliest of Sea Festival events, with prizes offered for most original, most artistic, largest, and best drip categories. The uninhibited sand sculptors turn out some amazing and amusing creations. Any hand tools may be used, including shovels and buckets or other water containers. Sand, sea water, wood or other supporting material— provided it is completely covered with sand — is permitted. Each group, limited to 12 persons per group, will be assigned a 20 by 20 foot section of the beach.

It's simple to enter. Just apply to the arts council office, 130 Pine Ave., Suite 209. But do it by Aug. 16. That's the last day entry forms will be accepted.

A SECOND session of summer art classes for children will begin Monday at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. and will continue through Aug. 31. Classes are geared to various age groups from tots 3 to older teen-agers.

Tuition ranges from $14 for the preschool class to $20 for older children. For further information, call the museum.

THROUGH dances, mosaics, mimes, films, folk singers and a "happening," creative efforts of high school artists in Los Angeles County will be expressed in a festival of arts sponsored by Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

"Youth Expression '72," planned and presented by young people, will have entries from more than 200 students in communities as widely separated as Newport Beach and Lancaster. Among those participating are Neighborhood Youth Corps, the County Department of Parks and Recreation, community youth organizations and, in a special section, elementary age school children.

The festival will take place Saturday and next Sunday from noon to 6 p.m. on the Museum Plaza in Hancock Park, Wilshire Boulevard near Fairfax Avenue.

BEGINNING today and continuing through Aug. 27, The Upstairs Gallery, 3850 Cherry Ave., will show oils and graphics by Peter Max.

Hours at the gallery are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

BLUE DISC, first Rosh Hashanah card produced by UNICEF, is the work of artist Rina Rotholz. She was steeped in the rich cultural heritage of the Israeli area, having been educated in Israel and Lebanon.

STARLIGHT SERENADE

Harmony: Barbershoppers' key

What's happened to the old-fashioned barbershop quartet?

It's bigger and better than ever, that's what, with an international membership of more than 32,000.

Judge for yourself Tuesday night when the Long Beach International City Barbershop Chorus stages the Starlight Serenade in Recreation Park beginning at 8 p.m.

The concert is sixth in a series of free summer programs co-sponsored by Long Beach Symphony Association and the Independent, Press-Telegram.

The performing chorus and quartets are members of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. The Long Beach Chapter, with more than 70 members, is under direction of Dennis Woodson and his two assistants, Lee Woodruff and Jim Sams. In recent district competition the chorus placed fifth.

On hand to serve as guest master of ceremonies will be Harold "Hal" Peary, the original Great Gildersleeve of radio and motion pictures. He first became well-known on the Fibber McGee and Molly radio series in 1938 as Fibber's Little Chum. In 1941, he began his own Great Gildersleeve program on NBC radio. After an illustrious career in television, motion pictures and legitimate theater, he continued as an entertainer and since 1969 has been known on radio and television as the voice of Gibralter Savings and Loan.

The chorus will open the program singing "Hi Neighbor," "Sweet and Lovely," and "George M. Cohan Medley," "Go, Little Prayer," and "Girls, Girls, Girls." Next will be two quartets, The Crescendos, L. B. Chapter, Sweet Adelines; and The Hershey Bars, L. B. Chapter, SPEBSQSA.

After intermission, the chorus will sing "Some of Those Songs Medley," "When You Wore a Tulip," "California, Here I Come," "I Believe," and "Kentucky's Way of Saying Good Good Mornin'."

The Queen City Four, Harbor Knights and Tin Type Testimonials quartets will sing before the entire ensemble joins for the finale, "Keep America Singing."

The Long Beach Chapter supports the society's international service project, the Institute of Logopedics at Wichita, Kan. The chapter meets each Tuesday at 8 p.m. at United Crossroads Church, 5420 Clark Ave., Lakewood.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Shrimp dish is favorite 'beat'

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

Our "chef" today was recommended by a member of the world of sports.

He writes, "My number one suggestion for Chef of the Week is Capt. Forrest H. Smith of the Long Beach Police Department. He has been here a long time, is acquainted with hundreds (thousands?) of locals, is a dandy fellow—and he cooks."

And, after a glimpse of his picture, we'd conclude he's a mighty good sport, also!

Born in Yakima, Wash., Smith moved with his family to Glendale, Ariz., where he completed both elementary and high schools.

Then, World War II involved him in the U.S. Navy SeaBees, and he sailed for the South Pacific.

Upon discharge in 1946, Smith chose Long Beach as his home. He joined the LBPD in August, 1948, and his vocational itinerary reads like this: appointed sergeant in 1960; lieutenant in 1964; captain in 1968.

SMITH CLAIMS as his alma maters, Los Angeles Harbor and Long Beach City Colleges and Long Beach State University where he majored in police science.

Holding a teaching credential in the latter field, he has passed along his knowledge as instructor at both LBCC and the Police Academy.

As for the Police Department, he's covered the following "beats": Patrol, Vice and Traffic Divisions and the Personnel Training Section.

Smith says, "one of my most complex assignments was planning for the department's function in the arrival of the Queen Mary and the Battleship New Jersey. We were responsible for all traffic and crowd control. I was a lieutenant assigned to the Traffic Division at the time."

His current assignment is watch commander of the afternoon shift.

Because of his working hours, he isn't a joiner, but is a member of Elks Lodge 888.

Now that their four "younguns," Kenny, Trudy, Vicki and Faye, have married and left home base, he and his wife, Jeanne, have their own pickup truck with camper and they spend their vacations, and every chance they get, traveling. In the past four years they have been across the United States twice, and Mexico three times. They have gotten in some good fishing in Mexico and in the Gulf of California.

Smith says, "my wife is a super cook and can prepare any type of food, from Chinese to Mexican. She seldom measures her ingredients, so it is difficult for her to give out a recipe.

"I selected the following," he says, "because it can either be used as a total meal or in conjunction with a barbecue—just use smaller amounts."

We're not sure whether his recipe is "his" or "hers" —but regardless of its source, it's great!

STUFFED MUSHROOMS WITH SHRIMP

1 dozen large mushrooms
½ dozen medium shrimp
2 tablespoons green onion
2 tablespoons water chestnuts, chopped
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 teaspoon A-1 Sauce
Salt-pepper or garlic salt
1 cup tomato juice

Wash mushrooms, then remove stems, leaving cavity in underside of mushroom. Chop mushroom stems, uncooked, peeled shrimp, green onion and water chestnuts, medium fine, then mix. Add butter and A-1 Sauce. Stuff mushrooms with mixture. Place in shallow pan, mixture side up. Pour tomato juice over mushrooms and bake in 350 degree oven, 25 to 30 minutes.

FASCINATING FABRICS

Today's white sales are colorful

By FRANCES DIETRICH

The famous August white sales are still a great source of saving for the smart shopper. But, the majority of the merchandise is an assortment of colorful prints and solids. Seven years ago, 80 per cent of sheets were all-white. This year, only 10 per cent of famous brand-name sheets are colorless.

Homemakers have voted for sheets and towels that contribute to quick change decorative schemes, as well as being functional.

Joining the home fashion corps as the easy care of no-iron polyester and cotton sheets, which have not outstripped all-cotton. The newest introduction is an exclusive soil release finish by Springs Mills. The finish is said to last through 25 washings, making sheets come clean quicker.

Towels are still 100 per cent cotton because only that natural fiber is as completely absorbent.

But, regardless of finishes and fashion, certain rules remain infallible in buying sheets and towels. Look for a firm, close underweave for durability. Select close, thick loops for quick drying. The ground weave does the wearing. The loops do the drying.

A CONVENTIONAL terry towel, with uncut loops, will generally wear better than a sheared towel. Finally, buy the best you can afford.

To keep terry towels fluffy and absorbent, launder them frequently. Don't wait until they are heavily soiled. Launder deep-tone towels separately the first few times until the excess dye is removed. The loss of dye does not dim the color of the towels.

Though sheets are sold packaged, label information serves as a guide to buying. But, first of all, go shopping prepared with the right information about the sizes of mattresses in your home in order to buy the correct size sheets.

Note the thread count indicated on the package. This is the number of threads per inch, lengthwise and crosswise. The heavier the yarn, the fewer threads per square inch and the more open the weave. A rule of thumb is that the finer yarns used in the higher thread counts produce stronger, lighter weight fabrics than heavier yarns in lower thread counts.

THE PACKAGE information also tells whether the sheet is all-cotton or a blend of polyester and cotton. The latter is stronger and will wear longer than an all-cotton sheet of the same weight and thread count.

There is shrinkage of approximately seven per cent in all-cotton flat sheets and a maximum of two per cent in all blended polyester and cotton flat sheets. Fitted cotton sheets are preshrunk and will shrink only about one per cent.

Follow directions for laundering that accompany the sheet. In addition, avoid overloading the washing machine. Too heavy a load will prevent soil from washing out completely. Any soil left in sheets may weaken the fibers and shorten their life. Remove no-iron sheets from the dryer as soon as tumbling action has stopped. This avoids creasing from being bunched up in the dryer.

Tram to reopen Aug. 18

The Palm Springs Aerial Tramway will be closed until Aug. 18 to enable the cable car attraction's mechanical crew to carry out routine maintenance duties.

After reopening, the tramway will continue its regular summer schedule of closing on Tuesdays and Wednesdays until Nov. 2. From Thursday through Monday, the tramway will be open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m., with the last car departing from the valley station at 7:30 o'clock.

The popular "ride and dine" combination special will also be continued throughout the summer months until November.

Passengers who wish to dine in cool comfort (40 degrees cooler than the desert) at the mountain station Alpine restaurant will still be able to take advantage of the special combination ticket, which is available for sale only after 5 p.m.

The $5.50 adult tab includes the evening ride and a complete dinner. In addition to the regular specialties of the house—roast baron of beef and baked ham—a different gourmet entree is served each evening the tramway is open, Thursday through Monday. Children's prices are $4.50 for juniors aged 13 through 17; and $3 for kiddies aged 4 through 12.

SERVED WITHOUT FLAIR

Cafe brulot gone to pot

By STAN DELAPLANE
NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans must be the only American city where you can still make a phone call for a nickel. An efficient bus system takes you all over town for 15 cents. However, the tourist route in the French Quarter is geared to higher prices. Not ferocious, but not cheap: Dinner for two at Moran's La Louisiane with a half bottle of wine, $31.25.

We flew down for the opening of the new Marriott hotel, 42 floors high, 1000 rooms. It's aimed directly at conventions: there are 30 big meeting rooms, 60 smaller conference rooms. The elegant Mardi Gras Ballroom seats 2500 for dinner and with other dining rooms, the hotel can serve dinners for 5000 people in an evening. Single $24 and double $30.

Question is whether the French Quarter—which every tourist HAS to visit—can take the strain of the Marriott plus other hotels that have gone up, a Holiday among them.

The quarter is only 12 blocks long and six wide with some ten well-known Creole-French restaurants. On Friday and Saturday nights, I called six for reservations with no luck. Dinners at La Louisiane and Court of Two Sisters were way below New Orleans standard—I think because of rushed conditions.

La Louisiane lists the famous cafe brulot — a flamed brandy-coffee. But said they don't make it anymore. The cafe brulot at the Court of Two Sisters was disappointing. Served without flair from a copper pot. (New Orleans restaurants took pride in their English silver cafe brulot bowls.)

LISTS show 18 first-class restaurants besides hotels in the city. Port Orleans restaurant on the 42nd floor of the Marriott looks over the French Quarter and the river. Elevators were delayed by crowds of locals sightseeing the hotel. Two elevators not working due to a strike.

Staff of a thousand includes a couple of hundred of the prettiest girls in New Orleans. Service is good and has a personal friendliness that adds something you can't buy.

New Orleans is building an enormous Superdome for sports. Will out-do the Astrodome. Shooting for conventions. "A survey in the U.S. shows New Orleans is first choice of people thinking of conventions, "said the Mayor. (Second, San Francisco, Third, Denver.) After rocking along for years in sleepy Deep South life, New Orleans is beginning to move. (But I liked it the way it was.)

"YOU speak so well of English pubs we'd like to drive through England next year visiting some of them. . ."

For your glove compartment (cubby locker is the British term) you need Egon Ronay's two books on pubs. Rated for quality. Prices. Number of rooms —the pub is a small hotel AND bar. Not too many rooms.

The wayside pub is good for light lunches. There's at least one in every village. If you have children, they are NOT allowed in the pub bar. And often that's the only room where they serve food. With children, look for hotels and restaurants with the sign "Fully licensed." You can have a drink at the table. Milk for the moppets.

ABOUT those oysters in Mazatlan. When are they in season?"

All year round in Mazatlan—there are three different kinds, and one of them will always be in. (All year round in New Orleans, too. And GREAT oysters!)

WHAT do you think of 'Europe on $5 A Day?"

I think it's a great title. I heard they were changing that to "Europe on $5 AND $10 A Day." Europe —like America—keeps going up on prices. And the dollar is down. Cheapest European travel now is by motorbike or camper. Plus the charter flights.

"WILL it rain much in Fiji in December? Do I need a raincoat?"

It rains a lot all year round in Suva—even when it isn't the rainy season. But a raincoat will steam you inside. Carry a folding umbrella.

Donald L. Ferguson Cruises announce...
Xanadu
a special cruise ship for travelers

XANADU – not large yet in a manner grandly elegant for its 120 guests.

XANADU will afford comfortable cabins, remarkably spacious decks, memorably appointed public rooms to match the moods of the seasoned traveler – the Marco Polo Lounge, the Shandu Bar, the Library of the Kubla Khan, the Kanbalu Card Room and the Balashan Room where cuisine will merit and reflect the discrimination of those who spend happy hours dining there. (One gracious sitting of course!)

There is much more to XANADU than this. But fundamentally it will be a cruise ship in the Donald L. Ferguson tradition – a cruise ship for travelers; for XANADU will seek the gems of travel – elegantly, comfortably, leisurely. XANADU's first cruises will go to

LANDFALLS OF THE CONQUISTADORS and the GALAPAGOS ISLANDS

Southward along the eastern littoral of the Pacific Ocean lie some of the most charming of lands – best known, Mexico of course; then less-visited Guatemala; still lesser known El Salvador and Costa Rica, and not too far offshore the fabled islands of the Galapagos whose fauna have intrigued the mind of man ever since Charles Darwin made his historic and carefully annotated voyage in the "Beagle."

It will be to these landfalls and islands that XANADU will go and where guests will take extensive inland trips by motor, rail and air to the mountains, lakes, volcanoes, Mayan ruins, villages and cities – to San Salvador, Guatemala City, remarkable Antigua and San Jose, Costa Rica, among others. All of the inland trips are of course included in the passage fare.

Cruises are of 21 days duration and originate or terminate in Los Angeles, California, or Balboa, in the Canal Zone – each port conveniently reached by air from all U.S. cities.

Your Travel Agent will tell you more of XANADU and the ports and places of THE LANDFALLS OF THE CONQUISTADORS cruise. See him today.

Island festival slated

A colorful festival of arts and crafts, food and music named "A Day in Polynesia" will be presented at the Long Beach Convention Center Saturday, August 19, from noon to 6 p.m.

The event will be sponsored by the Compton Third Ward, Long Beach Stake (District), Church of Jesus Christ, Latter Day Saints, according to Bishop William Pill, and is part of a program to preserve and make known the cultural heritage of thousands of Polynesians living in Southern California.

More than 17,000 persons of American and Western Samoan descent alone live in the Southland, a majority of them in the greater Long Beach area.

The program will begin at noon with an outdoor display of Polynesian arts and crafts assembled in huts and booths. At 2 p.m., there will be a Polynesian feast called a "Ta'umafataga" featuring food specialties from many islands, selected to suit the American taste.

Following this there will be demonstrations of Polynesian arts, including coconut basket weaving and numerous other uses of the coconut by Samoans, the making of tapa cloth by Tonganese, genealogical carvings by Maoris, war club demonstrations by Fijians and cultural presentations from Tahiti.

The program will be capped at 4 p.m. by a show with 150 native islanders performing songs and dances of their South Seas nations.

Tickets ($6.50 for the total event) can be obtained at all American Airlines ticket offices or at the Long Beach arena ticket office. Members of the sponsoring church congregation also sell tickets.

SMILING FACES greet visitors on Air Afrique's "All Africa Wonderland" tours. These girls, dressed in handprinted robes and gold and ivory jewelry of traitional design, live in the North Cameroun near the game-rich Wazzo Park.

See Africa safari-style

British Overseas Airways Corp. sets the African stage with four "Africa Selectasafari" tours enabling adventurers to find their own "glimpse of Eden in the Land of Hemingway."

The safari tours offer four completely different itineraries from 16 to 22 days, fully escorted or independent. Land costs range from $699 to $1066 depending on package selected, plus airfare.

Selectasafari tours are available now through December 1973. Safari brochures, fares and flight information on any of its worldwide services can be obtained from any BOAC sales office.

Air Afrique tours set travel

Three comprehensive "All Africa Wonderland" tours, varying in length from 16 to 22 days, are beign offered by Air Afrique, the multi-national African airline, in combination with Air France.

With frequent departures now through April 1973, the tours are designed especially to allow Black tourists to discover their cultural heritage in traditional Africa as well as to see the modern marvels and progress of the developing Black nations.

The 16-day "West Africa Special" visits Senegal, Liberia, Ivory Coast, Ghana and Nigeria. It concentrates on major cities and surrounding areas, with visits to sites of local interest such as Goree Island in Dakar's harbor, the Firestone Rubber Plantation near Monrovia, the colorful Adjame and Treichville markets in Abidjan and museums rich in African art and handicrafts.

On the 22-day "West Africa Wonderland Safari" there are opportunities to meet the people of Senegal, Ivory Coast, Ghana, Dahomey, Togo, Cameroun and Chad. A highlight is a safari to the spectacular Wazza Game Park in Cameroun. Last stop in Africa is Fort Lamy near Lake Chad, a 800 square mile lake only three to four feet in depth.

"West-East Africa Safari" combines attractions of East and West Africa. This tour includes Senegal, Liberia and Ivory Coast plus Uganda and Kenya. Uganda highlights are the lush "Cradle of the Nile" plateau and Murchison Falls National Park. Kenya's Amboseli Game Reserve at the foot of Mt. Kilimanjaro, Tsavo National Park and the Arab seaport town of Mombasa complete this 22-day tour.

All tours use Air Afrique's new DC-8 trans-Atlantic service from New York to Dakar and return via Paris on Air France. Tour prices include air fare, best available deluxe and first class hotel accommodations, most meals, transfers and sightseeing as indicated in itineraries.

Air France is general agent for Air Afrique in North America.

NO ONE REGRETS BUYING THE BEST

DEAR ABBY

Think of all the starving kids...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I would like to bring up an issue which I am sure has occurred to many. The waste of restaurant food.

In only a few days of waiting on tables, I have discovered to my horror the enormous amount of food that is thrown out because the customer has no interest in eating it.

The total amount of lettuce, tomato, pickles and raw onion alone may seem substantial from day to day, but how about in one year's time? And how about the customer who orders a dinner for the youngster who will eat maybe one fourth of it? Where does the rest go? You know.

In the interest of conserving food, it doesn't seem too much to have the waitress ask, "Tomato? Pickle? Onion?"

A quick letter, "T", "P", and "O" would indicate choice. CONSERVATIVE IN FLAGSTAFF.

DEAR CON: Leftovers on a child's plate (or an adult's for that matter) go into the garbage. Which is where it should go, according to the law. A better place by far would be into a doggie bag and home with the customer. But the option of tomato, pickle and onion isn't a bad idea.

DEAR ABBY: I need your help. I've been married for six years to a man I'll call Danny. He's my daddy's age. I was 15 when we got married. Danny had a 4-year-old daughter by a woman who took off and left town. Nobody has seen her since. This child is hard to handle. She lies and steals and is says to me, "I don't have to mind you. You aren't my REAL mommy." Her father agrees with her.

Danny and I have one child, 5 years old. Danny beats him with a leather strap for nothing. He has beat me too, but at least I can defend myself. When I went to a lawyer about the way Danny abused my son, the lawyer told me I needed two witnesses. Abby, no man is going to beat a child in front of witnesses.

Danny used to pay my daddy $2 for every date he let him have with me. They made a deal that if I married him he'd give Daddy $50 cash and a gas stove. My daddy got the stove but he never got the cash.

Every word of this letter is true, and many people know it, but I can't prove anything. Nobody wants to get involved. Danny says as long as he supports me (which he does) I have to live with him. I have had four miscarriages and I'm pregnant again. What should I do?

MISERABLE AT 22.

DEAR MISERABLE: If there is a Family Service agency in your area, ask for their help. If there isn't ask a clergyman to help you. You could ask your local Legal Aid Society what your rights are. (You've been misinformed.) Or ask for help from your County Attorney or Sheriff. And PLEASE, send me your name and address.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have no living relatives closer than nieces and nephews. We are both retired and have our home paid for. We are not rich, but we have a little cash and property to leave when we die.

There is one relative my husband has who is always asking if we have a "will." Also, if we have a box at the bank, and personal questions of that nature.

This young woman is an inheritance vulture if I ever saw one. I have known other cases where she starts to shower oldsters with kindness and attention when she thinks they are going to die soon. She makes me so nervous, calling and wanting to do things for us. I wonder if she thinks my husband and I are going to die soon?

We can still manage our own affairs as I am only 66 and he is 68. How do you suggest we let her know that we expect to be around for a while longer?

MRS. A.

DEAR MRS: The best way to let her know is to TELL her.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "OVERCAME MY PREJUDICES AND GLAD OF IT": Good for you. Brotherhood isn't taught. It's caught.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 697000, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

New day, new PGA leader --- Player

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa tamed "The Monster" with a three-under-par 67, vaulted into the into the dominant positions in the 54th Professional Golfers' Assn. National Championship Saturday.

The muscular, 35-year-old Player had a 54-hole total of 209, one under par.

He was the only man in the field able to break par for three trips over the 7,054-yard par-70 Oakland Hills Country Club course, a layout Ben Hogan once dubbed "The Monster."

Billy Casper, winner of some 44 tour titles, eased into the No. 2 spot going into today's final round in this, the last of the world's four major championships of the year.

Casper, winless this season and mired in a slump most of the year, said his par-70 for Friday's second round "just kind of turned everything around, and it kept getting better today."

He was one stroke away with a 210 total after firing a 67 Saturday.

The group at 211, one over par and two off the lead, included former Masters champion Gay Brewer, Phil Rodgers and Jerry Heard, the second-round leader.

Rodgers, in his 12th season on the tour, had a 68, Brewer a 70 and Heard slipped to a 72 with bogeys on two of four holes in the home stretch.

Heard, at 25, is the only one of the leaders under 32 years old.

The group at 212 included Doug Sanders, Tommy Aaron, Jim Wiechers and Larry Wise, a longshot club pro from Bethesda, Md. Wise bolted into contention with a 67, Sanders had a 68, Wiechers a 69 and Aaron a 70.

Jack Nicklaus, winner of the Masters and U.S. Open, one-shot loser to Lee Trevino in the British Open and the defending PGA champion looked as if he was going to tear things open when he blazed over the front side in 31 strokes, four under par.

But he took a six on the par-five 12th "and that killed me," he said. Nicklaus, who had a horrendous 75 in Friday's play, finished with a 68 for 215, six strokes away and all but out of title contention.

He was tied with Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, who had a 68; Trevino, who took a 71, and others.

Arnold Palmer, who lacks only this title to complete a sweep of all the world's major titles and honors, double-bogeyed the extremely tough 18th hole for a 72 and 216, seven strokes away from the crown he wants the most of any in the world.

"Well," said Nicklaus, who refused to count himself out, "I improved seven strokes from yesterday. If I can improve another three or four — or maybe

Ex-49er wins Olympic bid; Susie second

CHICAGO (Special) — Mitch Ivey, who bettered the listed world record for the men's 200-meter backstroke in the trials, was nearly two seconds slower than his own speed in the finals Saturday night but still led the drive for berths on the men's U.S. Olympic team.

Joining the Long Beach graduate on the U.S. swim team's waterway to Munich is Susie Atwood of the Lakewood Aquatic Club who finished second in the 200-meter backstroke finals to Melissa Belote. Also winning a trip to Germany was Lynn Skrifvars of Long Beach Phillips 66 who finished third in 2:24.69. Kim Ouellette of Lakewood was 11th in 2:29.96.

Miss Belote, a 15-year-old Silver Spring, Md., high school girl had set a world record of 2:20.64 in winning her qualifying heat, then came back to win the finals in the slower time of 2:21.77.

Miss Atwood held the previous world mark of 2:21.5, but Susie's best time in Saturday's trials was 2:24.35. Miss Belote and Miss Atwood previously swam 1-2 in the 100-meter backstroke.

Ann Simmons of Lakewood AC qualified for today's finals in the 800 freestyle by winning her heat in 9:04.97. Ann is the American record holder at 8:59.37. Kenena Rothhammer led qualifiers with a time of 9:04.80.

However, Steve Genter of Lakewood finished ninth in both the 100 free and

Gomer spins pearls of wisdom, tips Pads

Claude Osteen, the well-known slugger, is now dispensing his pearls of wisdom to anyone who'll listen.

"Sometimes that's the trouble — getting anyone to listen," Osteen said regarding his latest hitting tip.

Gomer said he observed Bobby Valentine pulling away from breaking pitches, pointed it out to the Dodger infielder and — presto! — instant success.

Valentine, with only two hits his previous at bats, lined a run-scoring single in the eighth inning to break up a scoreless game and send the Dodgers and Osteen to a 1-0 victory over San Diego Saturday night before 22,158 Dodger Stadium fans.

The shutout was the Dodgers' 15th, tops in the National League, but Osteen had to leave in the ninth inning when his left leg, struck by a Clay Kirby pitch in the seventh, tightened.

"Walt (manager Walter Alston) left it up to me but I knew he was leaning toward Jim Brewer. Anyway, that was no place for high fast balls and that's what I was throwing," said Gomer who lowered his earned run average to 2.25 which matches Don Sutton's.

But Osteen, who had a double himself, was slightly prouder of his hitting tip.

"The other night I was watching Bobby and he was pulling away from breaking pitches," Osteen said. "I told him about it and, man, he really stayed with that pitch."

Alston claimed a little credit, too:

"I just told him with runners at first and third the right side would be open," Alston said of his brief meeting with Valentine before he marched to the plate. "Lots of times kids just don't think about it."

Valentine, who also doubled in the second for his first two-hit game since July 18, gave proper credit.

"I was pulling away from breaking pitches," he said, "and if Walt hadn't pulled me aside and told me to look to the right I'd never have gone over there. I popped up on that same pitch the last time. This time I went with the pitch."

The eighth started when Manny Mota walked and was advanced to second by Willie Davis' sacrifice bunt. Bill Buckner flied deep to center, Mota advancing to third after the catch, and then Kirby walked Wes Parker intentionally.

Royals' big hit -- pop fly -- buries Angels

KANSAS CITY—It was a ball that should have been caught and wasn't. It was a game the Angels should have won and didn't.

A two-out infield pop fly in the ninth inning that fell a foot in front of a numbed and surprised Leo Cardenas drove in the tying run Saturday and gave the Kansas City Royals the impetus and the opportunity to pull out a last-ditch 2-1 victory.

The faces in the Angel locker room were forelorn and empty and could not mask what was one of the bitterest disappointments of the summer.

Rudy May, a pitcher of exceptional ability in his last four starts and one who carried a 1-0 lead and Del Rice the manager, wore a scowl and idly kicked at a fan in the privacy of his office.

"Damn," he finally said. "That was some blow wasn't it? How far did that ball travel — 68 feet, two inches?"

May and Mike Hedlund dueled masterfully for eight scoreless innings before the visitors scored what took on the appearances of a monumental run in the ninth inning.

A single by Jack Hiatt, a sacrifice by Ken Berry, Hedlund's wild pitch and a sacrifice fly by Lee Stanton produced the run.

It was not enough.

May yielded a leadoff single in the Royals' ninth to Lou Piniella, a looper to right that fell between the outgoing Sandy Alomar

Van Blom-McKibbon win Olympic berths

Associated Press

KENT, Conn. — John Van Blom and Tom McKibbon of Long Beach won spots on the United States rowing team for the Munich Olympic Games later this summer Saturday.

The pair won their heat in double skulls in 6 minutes, 33.4 seconds over the 2,000-meter lake Waramugh course.

They finished more than two boat lengths ahead of Paul Wilson and Ken Foote of the Narragansett Rowing Assn. in Providence, R.I.

Other final categories filled with national champions were in fours without coxswain and pairs with coxswain.

A combination boat representing the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia and the Union Boat Club of Boston won in the fours without coxswain in 6:15.18.

The winners were led by injured stroke James Moroney, who was hurt Thursday when his boat collided with the Northeastern University four during warmups. Moroney rowed Saturday despite cartilage pulled from his upper ribs in the accident.

Moroney is from Vesper, as are two of his crewmates, Richard Dreissigacker and Charles Hewitt. The fourth oarsman was William Miler of Union.

The University of Pennsylvania's national champion pair with coxswain — Mike Sstaines and Luther Jones, and coxswain Aaron Hermon—had two-length victory over the University of Washington in a winning time of 7:17.12.

Saturday's winners joined single sculler Jim Dietz of the New York Athletic Club and the pair without coxswain of Larry Hough and Dick Lyon on the U.S. Olympic team.

Dietz and the Stanford Crew Assn.'s Hough and Lyon earned Olympic berths during trials last month.

Loneliness of the long-distance swimmer

I'm just glad I did it. I don't really care about the publicity. I did it, and that's enough."—Lynne Cox.

Behold, the long distance swimmer, indomitable in spirit and void of reward.

"I was at the beach the other day," says Lynne Cox, "and one of the girls I know asked me when I was leaving for England."

The girl was not alone in her ignorance that the shy, 15-year-old blonde from Los Alamitos already had not only been to England but to France, by sea, a stroke at a time, and faster than anyone, man or woman, before her.

LYNNE COX
Watched ceiling crack

She accomplished the feat on Thursday, July 20, in 9 hours and 57 minutes, so there you have it, and this time it will not be misplaced among the breathless reports of a quarterback's collapsed lung or the errors of fraudulent major league infielders.

True, as a spectator sport distance swimming will never catch on. Not enough people can identify with the notion of swimming from here to out of sight, for no more reward than the satisfaction of the inner self. Lynne's only goal was the other side, her prizes a few press clippings, a certificate from the Channel Swimming Assn., yet to come, and perhaps a watch, if her time holds up as the fastest of the season.

"If they did give money," she says, "I couldn't have taken any."

HER DESIRE IS to remain a pure amateur and to continue to compete for the Phillips 66 Swim Club, with a long, hopeful idea of someday competing in the Olympics. This very week, other girls were contesting for tickets to Munich, but only in distances up to 1,500 meters — practically a sprint for Lynne.

"I'm not fast enough, by far," she says. "The standard is three minutes better than my best time in a pool. They say maybe they'll get this — long distance marathon swimming — in the Olympics. They have it for running and skiing and other things. If they do, I'll try to make it. But I doubt if they will."

It's said, because in a way Lynne's feat dwarfs the efforts of the Susie Atwoods and Debbie Meyers. All they do is swim across pools, artificially heated for comfort and scientifically designed for optimum performance.

While others waited for more favorable conditions, Lynne Cox swam some 20 miles, and a 15-year-old girl, not quite a sophomore in high school, conquered a channel that had thwarted the armies of Napoleon and Hitler.

As it was, Lynne says, "We had to wait four weeks. At first the weather wasn't right but the tides were. Then it was the other way around. It was really hard. You'd wait all day and call up the pilot and he'd say, 'Not tonight.' So you'd wait another day."

LYNNE AND HER MOTHER occupied themselves, not in sightseeing, but in daily swims of four or five miles followed by long sessions of lying about their room where, she says, "we'd watch the ceiling crack."

Finally, their pilot gave the green light — "and then," Lynne says, "when conditions were right, they really weren't that great. It wasn't cold at all — 60 degrees — but it was kind of choppy and towards the end I got caught in a floodtide a mile offshore.

"It took me an hour to go the last mile. I could see the shore but I couldn't get any closer."

Lynne was trying for the women's record of 10:43 set by Dutch teenager Corinne Ebbelaar last year. She wasn't thinking of the men's record set in 1960 by Canada's Helge Jensen, only 20 minutes faster.

"I could have gone farther down the coast to a beach," she says, "but that would have taken another hour or so. I was going for the record, so they landed me on the rocks."

Lynne has few memories of France. She never actually set foot on the soil of the continent, and her welcome was less than an ovation.

"There were some people up on the cliffs looking down, like, 'Look at her — weird!' I never did get completely out of the water because the rocks were too big and steep. I couldn't climb up on 'em. So I spent about five seconds in France, then turned around and swam back to the boat."

But she was there long enough for an accompanying official observer to verify the swim, and the pilot, whose judgment had paid off, said smugly, "A lot of pilots could kick themselves for not taking anybody out today."

SWIMMING IS VERY BIG in Lynne's family. Her brother Dave, 17, and two younger sisters compete for Phillips.

Her father, a radiologist, moved the family West from New Hampshire three years ago "because we had the best coach in the world out here — Don Gambril."

They live in an immaculate, comfortable home with a pool in back that Lynne uses only for "goofing around."

Gambril since has left Phillips and Long Beach State to coach at Yale, but he programmed Lynne's training in the year building up to the English Channel attempt.

"He'd give me the workout and I'd go out and do it," Lynne says. "My mom would walk along the beach. It gets pretty dull, but it's a lot neater than swimming in a pool. There's always something new out there."

One day Lynne noticed some large fins nearby.

"I ran up on shore — 'Hey, are those sharks?' 'No, they're just dolphins.' So I went back out. The dolphins followed me along for about five miles. It was really strange."

Lynne used to train between Belmont Pier and Long Beach Harbor, circling the oil islands or swimming past the Queen Mary for diversion. Now she works outside the breakwater, off Seal Beach and Huntington Beach.

"It's a lot cleaner," she says. "The water around Long Beach is so dirty, I don't see how I worked out there before."

Last year Lynne swam from Catalina to the mainland with three girls from Ron Blackledge's Seal Beach Swim Club. Their time was 10:44, good time considering, first, that Lynne had to keep treading water so the others could keep up, and second, that Tom Park's 16-year-old record is 9:10.

"I thought if I did that I might be able to do this," she says. "Catalina was easier. When we swam there it was like glass. If the English Channel's smooth, it's too foggy."

Her brother Dave plans to try for Catalina sometime this month. At first Lynne planned to go along, but her enthusiasm has waned after the English effort.

"I think he could break my English record if he trained for it. He has to get used to the water, though—the chops and the currents."

Greta Andersen, seeking to relive her past glory, also announced plans to go after the English Channel record this year. But while Greta was still talking about it, Lynne did it.

"When we tried to swim Catalina we asked if she'd help us... give us some information," Lynne says. "She was too busy or something. I guess she'd helped other people and they hadn't gone through with it.

"I met her again last Sunday. She said then that she didn't want to go over there and wait. She might try Catalina again... maybe. But what is she—45?"

$500,000 PASSING ARM

Training spartan life for first $500,000 QB

New York Times Service

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — During the season, he lives sumptuously in a New York townhouse. In other months, he relaxes in his apartments in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Tuscaloosa, Ala., or he returns to his Beaver Falls, Pa., home. When he supervised his boys' camp in Vermont, he stayed in a mountain chalet. When the New York Jets travel, he is ensconced in a motel suite.

But here at their training camp, Joe Namath, now the National Football League's most expensive performer with a $500,000 contract over two years, exists quietly, almost spartanly. High in one of Hofstra University's brick dormitory towers, his room is furnished for two — two desks, two beds, two dressers, two closets. But he lives alone, not even with a brawny tackle. This is the age of coed dorms, but not when an NFL team is the temporary tenant.

"I even wash my own clothes," the quarterback was saying. "Upstairs, in the machine."

On the unused bed was a pile of dirty shirts, strewn there with a teen-ager's aim.

"I LIKE TRAINING camp. I really do," he said before the Jets departed for their opening exhibition game at Jacksonville, Fla., against the San Francisco 49ers Saturday. "I like to feel good physically, it's good to be in shape. It's always enjoyable, always something funny going on. It has its bad part, too, when somebody's cut. The worst was when my old roommate, Ray Abruzzese, got cut a few years ago. Then when Curley Johnson and Rocky Rochester got cut, that was bad. Real old pros. When Pete Lammons got traded to the Eagles recently, the same thing. I said right then that Philadelphia isn't big enough for Bill Bradley, Tim Rossovich and Lammons, and Rossovich is gone already."

His portable TV set was off, but on the portable radio the Fifth Dimension were singing "Stone Soul Picnic."

"That was a great year, 1968," he said. "That song was big that year, that and "Wichita Lineman," a great year."

That was the season that the Jets went on to win the Super Bowl game, the memorable upset that Namath guaranteed.

"If most of our guys stay healthy, we can win it this year too," he said. "Offensively, I feel pretty certain. On defense, our line looks super, and our linebackers are solid. Our secondary is the question, but Earlie Thomas and W. K. Hicks know what they're doing back there. I don't know about the other corner, but I think John Dockery looks good back there."

ON HIS DESK were a jeweled ostrich egg and several letters. Another stack of letters was in a desk drawer.

"A girl named Tori Santiago in New York gave me this jeweled ostrich egg. It's a beautiful thing," he said. "There's a family named Riley that's been writing to me for years. They call themselves The Clan, and they never put their address on the letter, so I haven't been able to answer them. I try to read most of my mail, then I send it to my mother. She's answered about 15,000 letters for me in the last three years."

At practice the other day, the charisma that provokes so much fan mail was evident in the Jets' passing drill.

"The offense reacts when Joe's in there," Al Atkinson, the middle linebacker who was critical of Namath's lifestyle two years ago, would say later. "His attitude is good, and the offense is more alert, more alive."

The quarterback's arm is "a little sore," according to Jeff Snedeker, the Jets' trainer, but it wasn't apparent.

IVEY SPARKLES—

1,500. His times of 52.92 and 16:16.18 were personal bests.

Ivey was clocked at 2:06.57 as he captured his second event of the Olympic Trials, only .19 of a second faster than runner-up Kim McKee.

Ivey was the fastest qualifier in the afternoon trials with 2:04.82, compared to the listed world record of 2:05.6 by Roland Mathes of West Germany, who has a time of 2:02.8 awaiting approval as the official world record.

Ivey, 23, earlier qualified for the Olympic team in the 100-meter backstroke. He became the second athlete to win more than one of the men's events. Mark Spitz of Sacramento, won the 200-meter freestyle and both the 100-meter and 200-meter butterfly.

Ivey, swimming for Santa Clara, won a silver medal in the 200-meter backstroke in the 1968 Olympics.

Ivey said he had a slower speed in the finals because he was "more cautious."

He said he was looking forward to swimming against world record holder Mathes in the Olympics and added he had lost to him twice, by .9 of a second in the 1968 Olympics and .6 in a meet at Santa Clara.

Gary Hall of Garden Grove wound up fourth and did not earn a berth in this event.

Mark Spitz, an Indiana University dental student who has set five world records in four days, won his fourth individual event Saturday night but failed to do it in record time.

Spitz captured the men's 100-meter freestyle in :51.91, just short of his own previous world record and more than half a second slower than the world record he hung up in the event in afternoon trials at :51.47.

Spitz, who won two Olympic gold medals on relay teams in 1968 previously won the Olympic qualifications in the 200-meter butterfly, to 200-meter freestyle and the 100-meter butterfly. He established world records in the 100 and 200-meter fly.

Spitz, 22, Carmichael, Calif., was almost half a second faster than Jerry Heidenreich of the Dallas Swim Club in the 100-meter finals. Heidenreich had 52.40 and qualified along with John Murphy of the McDonald Swim Club who was third in :52.42.

Kathy Carr, an 18-year old Albuquerque, N.M., swimmer who finished high school in June, led the qualifiers in the women's 100-meter breaststroke with a 1:15.17. Her speed cut more than half a second off her qualifying time which was the best in the field.

Kim Brecht of Lakewood Aquatic finished fourth in 1:17.34, but did not qualify for a trip to Munich.

Brian Job of Santa Clara, who saw his world record in the 200-meter record in the breaststroke broken in the qualifying, came back to win the final in the event with a time that improved on his previous world mark 2:23.27.

Job set the recognized world record at 2:23.5 in 1970 and in Saturday's qualifying John Hencken, Santa Clara, set a mark with 2:22.79 to finish ahead of Job. Job also broke his world record with 2:23.36.

Hencken, who previously won the trials in the 100-meter breaststroke, could do no better than third in the finals as Richard Colella of the Cascade Swim Club, pushed Job to the finish and took second place with 2:24.17 compared to 2:24.21 for Hencken.

Dave Mayekawa of Long Beach finished eighth in 2:28.65.

Doug Northway of Tucson led qualifiers in the 1500 with a 16:04.66 clocking, edging Rex Favero of Carmichael, who qualified with 16:06.67. Barely qualifying was John Kinsella, who holds the world record of 15:57.1.

Following today's competition, the women's team will leave for Washington D.C. and processing before heading to Knoxville for final training. They'll depart for Munich on Aug. 21.

The men's team departs Monday for Washington D.C. and then it's on to West Point.

Men's 200-meter breaststroke (three qualify)—1, Brian Job, Santa Clara, Calif., 2:23.27. 2, Richard Colella, Seattle, Wash., 2:24.17. 3, John Hencken, Santa Clara, Calif., 2:24.21. 4, Tom Bruce, Santa Clara, Calif., 2:25.39. 5, David Shilling, Santa Clara, Calif., 2:26.99. 6, Charles Keating, Cincinnati, 2:27.47. 7, Gary Chetosky, Philadelphia, 2:28.07. 8, Dave Mayekawa, Long Beach, Calif., 2:28.65.

WH(ull)A expanding; critics laughing less

The audience laughed when the World Hockey Assn. announced its birth. The WHA couldn't buck the established National Hockey League, the critics insisted, because the NHL had a lock on all the good hockey players in the world.

But the critics retreated last month when the infant WHA stole hockey's glamour boy, Bobby Hull, from the NHL.

Dennis Murphy, president and general manager of the L. A. Sharks who will play a majority of their games in the L. A. Sports Arena and four in Long Beach Arena, was asked the significance of Hull's signing with the Winnipeg Jets, who will meet the Sharks in Long Beach Nov. 17.

"It makes a hull of a difference, if you don't mind the pun," replied Murphy, a former mayor of Buena Park.

"The signing of Hull puts our league four years ahead of the American Football League. We're getting our superstars now. The AFL had to wait four years."

THE SHARKS will have competition across town from Jack Kent Cooke's Kings. Does Murphy figure his baby franchise can outdraw the NFL Kings?

"We hope to equal the Kings' attendance in our first year," said the smiling Irishman. "That would mean attracting from 7,500 to 9,000 people per game both in Long Beach and Los Angeles.

"With the progress we've made, I'd say we're battling the Kings head-to-head right now. The Kings have the advantage of seniority, but they haven't proved to be a drawing power because their brand of hockey hasn't been that great.

"I'm convinced our brand of hockey will bring in the fans."

How is your brand of hockey different from that of the Kings?

"Equality," snapped back Murphy. "Don't get the idea I'm knocking the Kings because I'm not and I sincerely believe there is room for two major league hockey franchises in Southern California.

"People see the Kings lose, and lose badly, and then they stay away.

"There is an untapped market of 8½ million people around here. We think we can tap that market with equality. What I mean is that, for the most part, all our WHA clubs will be about equal.

"ONE BIG THING we have going for us is that the old, established clubs control the National Hockey League," continued Dennis.

"Teams like Montreal, Boston, Chicago, New York and Toronto have established dominance and they're not about to give it up. The rest of the teams are in the league just for exercise.

"Cooke, with all his money, can't get anywhere with the Kings, so the franchise is lagging.

"In our league, we help everybody. That's the only way to go."

HOW DOES LONG BEACH figure in the Sharks' overall picture?

"It figures very big," replied Murphy. "We wouldn't have scheduled four games in Long Beach if we didn't think we could draw.

"Long Beach drew 5700 a few years back for a hockey game with the minor league Blades and I thought that was pretty good.

"In due process, Long Beach is a great sports town. The Long Beach State football and basketball teams have made great strides nationally and we think hockey will have the same impact here.

"You know, I think the Sharks are the most fortunate team in pro sports. We have two beautiful facilities in Long Beach Arena and the L. A. Sports Arena. Nobody else anywhere can make that boast.

"Long Beach is a choosy city. It's been proven Long Beach people won't turn out for a second-hand rose. Yet, I know that a great portion of Dodger and Ram season ticket sales are from Long Beach residents.

"The people here want the best, and I hope they think we have the best."

IS SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA truly ready for another pro hockey club?

"It sure is," shot back Dennis. "There are 300,000 Canadians in this area, a heckuva lot of them in and around Long Beach. Those people are itching for a winning team.

"They've been disillusioned in the past, but our new look should stop that disillusionment immediately.

"Hockey is the sport of the 70s. It's a universal game. We know that a lot of Californians haven't been properly indoctrinated to good hockey, but, with some luck, we hope to cure that little problem."

LIFE IS A GAMBLE, but how about this $64 question, Dennis?

You seem extremely optimistic about successfully bucking the NHL. Why do you and your cohorts feel that way?

"From the beginning when we first got off the ground, I told you and several others that there were enough players for everybody," replied Murphy.

"But to compete against the NHL we had to grab some of their players. Our league has signed 50 of the 360 NHL players before we've even dropped a puck. I think that fact puts us in contention right now.

"We have 12 owners with money. We wouldn't have gotten this project off the ground without money. You cannot operate a new league without funds, but we're completely financially solvent and our owners can stand a bath, if it comes to that."

YOU'RE HAPPY, then, with the way events have been progressing?

"Heck, yes," smiled the Irishman. "We're on schedule. Already we've got $40,000 worth of advertising and we haven't really started to push.

"Our next project is season ticket sales, but the way our advertising revenue has been coming in, I'm even more intensely optimistic."

MURPHY DROPPED from the clouds for a moment with this statement:

"I'm not kidding myself, but it's almost certain we'll lose money the first year. But that's not the point. Every new pro league loses money when it starts. But we're different from the others because we have that long range financial stability.

"If we didn't, we couldn't have signed a superstar like Bobby Hull. Think about that."

I did and awarded round one to Dennis Murphy, perhaps a superstar himself.

Stargell, Bucs tip Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — Willie Stargell knocked in four runs including three with his 23rd home run in the sixth inning while Al Oliver and Richie Hebner also added home runs Saturday afternoon to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-4 victory over the Montreal Expos.

The Pirates trailed 4-0 going into the fourth but solo blasts by Oliver in the fourth and Hebner in the fifth narrowed the count to 4-2. In the sixth inning Montreal losing pitcher Bill Stoneman gave up singles to Gene Clines and Oliver before Stargell homered with none out to put the Pirates into a 5-4 lead.

Three more singles in the same inning by Manny Sanguillen, Dave Cash and Gene Alley made the score 6-4. Stargell drove in his fourth run of the game in the seventh inning when he singled after a walk to Vic Davalillo and a double by Oliver.

Nelson Briles survived a shaky start to pick up his 10th win of the season against five losses. Montreal got all its runs in the third inning as nine players came to bat.

Hickman's bloop hit foils Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Hickman knocked in the tying and go-ahead runs with a two-out single in the eighth inning, powering the Chicago Cubs to a comeback 3-2 National League victory over the New York Mets Saturday.

The Cubs mounted their winning rally off New York's Danny Friesella, 4-6, who came in to pitch the eighth inning in relief of starter Jon Matlack.

Ron Santo opened with a single to left, then moved to second when Bill North reached first on a fielder's choice bunt.

Frisella appeared to be working out of the jam when he got the next two outs, but the righthander unleased a wild pitch, allowing the runners to move up a base.

Hickman then looped a single to left just out of the reach of outfielder Cleon Jones to score the winning runs.

The Mets had taken a 2-0 lead in the first on Jones' two-run single and the Cubs came back with a run in the seventh on doubles by Hickman and Carman Fanzone. Steve Hamilton, 1-0, who relieved in the seventh, was the winner for the Cubs.

Astros trip SF in ninth

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Tommy Helms singled after one out in the ninth and scored the winning run on a fielder's choice grounder by Cesar Cedeno Saturday as the Houston Astros defeated the San Francisco Giants, 4-3.

Bobby Bonds' solo homer in the eighth tied the score at 3-3 but the Astros caught up with San Francisco starter Don Carrithers in the ninth and finally chased him after Helms and Norm Miller got back-to-back singles.

ANGELS—

and the incoming Stanton. When Ed Kirkpatrick sacrificed pinch-runner Joe Keough to second, Rice replaced May with Eddie Fisher who had toiled four innings and was the winner Friday night.

A Fisher flutterball danced away from catcher Art Kusnyer, sending Keough to third but Fisher got Paul Schaal on a grounder to Alomar for the second out as Keough held.

Gail Hopkins, the last KC hope, then hit a short popup that arched tantilizingly over Fisher's head and began it's descent as Cardenas charged in. But it was not enough of a charge and the ball landed a foot from his glove on the edge of the infield grass as Keough scored the tying run.

A walk to pinch-hitter Carl Taylor gave Fred Patek a chance and he singled sharply to left to score Hopkins and burden the Angels with the frustrating defeat. Hopkins is a Long Beach Jordan High graduate.

Asked whether Cardenas should have caught the ball, Rice just shook his head and muttered, "I don't know, I don't know."

Rice defended his decision to lift May by remarking, "He was getting tired. You could tell he was beginning to lose his stuff in the eighth. But he's been a damn good pitcher for us in his last few starts."

If May was looking for a thread of good news, it might have been the fact that at least he wasn't the losing pitcher. Fisher attained that distinction.

Twice the Angels moved runners to third base during the afternoon but could not solve Hedlund, a pitcher who entered the game with a 2-5 record and an ERA of 3.99.

May remained at 4-8 but in his last four starts he has surrendered only five runs and 17 hits in 34.1 innings.

On Saturday afternoon, it wasn't much consolation.

Ken McMullen, who also has an eight-gamer, did not play, yielding to Bill Parker who turned in a fine defensive job at third . . . Lloyd Allen, the relief pitcher who has fallen on evil times, will play winter ball at Santurce in Puerto Rico where Frank Robinson will manage again. "Whatever Frank says, I'm going to listen," Allen said. . .May was working on his fourth successive complete game when he was removed in the ninth. North Torrance eliminates Shua

Dennis Littlejohn, voted the outstanding prep athlete of the year, hurled a four-hitter and crashed a solo home run to lead North Torrance past Shua 3-1 Saturday in American Legion area tournament play at Blair Field.

North Torrance will meet Whittier today for the championship.

Littlejohn hit his homer in the fourth inning for what proved to be the winning run after North took a 1-0 lead in the third on a perfect hit-and-run play.

Dean Irgens went to first on an error, and with one out, Denny Martindale executed the hit-and-run. Irgens went to third and scored when Shua committed an error on the play.

North Torrance, to win the title, must win two games today, beginning at 11:30 at Blair Field. Whittier can clinch the crown with a win in the first game.

DODGERS WIN—

Gaston led off with a single and Alston quickly summoned Brewer.

"The thing really hurt," Osteen said of his wounded gam. "I sure wanted to stay in there with the stuff I had. It was probably the best stuff I've had all year."

Gary Jestadt sacrificed, sending Enzo Hernandez, a pinch runner to second, and then John Jeter fouled out and pinch hitter Fred Kendall flied out as Brewer earned his 12th save.

Both clubs missed several chances earlier in the game, especially the Dodgers who had runners reach second base five times and one get as far as third. The Padres, whose five-game win streak was halted by the Dodgers who've now won three of their last four, had three runners reach second and another get to third.

The Dodgers' most frustrating round was the fifth when Steve Yeager walked with two out and then Osteen powered his double to right. But the ball caromed off the warning track and into the rightfield pavilion for a ground rule double and Yeager, who was well around third, had to go back to third base. Lee Lacy then struck out.

"Yeager would have scored easily on that one," Osteen said of his hit. "Man, that cost me an RBI, too. I'm going to have to work on that—either hit 'em off the wall or, even better, over it."

DODGER DOPE: Don Sutton (12-6) starts today's game, taking Al Downing's spot in the rotation. Downing is sidelined with a pulled hamstring . . . Sutton will be opposed in the concluding game of the three-game series by Fred Norman (8-7), the former Dodger . . .

The Dodgers leave immediately following this afternoon's game for Syracuse, then will bus to Cooperstown N.Y., Monday morning for the Hall of Fame game against the Yankees . . . Tuesday night the Dodgers are in Cincinnati to begin a three-game series with the first-place Reds . . . The Kids did it again, beating the Dads, 17-4, in the annual Father-Son game prior to Saturday night's game . . .

Add Hall of Fame: Sandy Koufax, along with seven others, will be inducted into the Hall of Fame Monday. Koufax is the first Los Angeles Dodger to be so honored. A special "Salute to Sandy" will be aired Monday night at 7 on KFI, Vin Scully and Jerry Doggett reliving some of Sandy's great moments during the broadcast . . .

Kris Larson of Seal Beach will compete in the 13-14 division of the "Play Ball With The Dodgers" baseball skills contest. The finals will be held today prior to the game at Dodger Stadium.

Raider rally edges Pats

OAKLAND (UPI) — Reserve quarterback Ken Stabler led the Oakland Raiders to a pair of third quarter touchdowns and a 31-24 victory over the New England Patriots in an exhibition football game Saturday night.

Stabler, who took over for starter Daryle Lamonica, passed to rookie Cliff Branch from Colorado for 26 yards midway in the third period to give Oakland a 21-17 lead.

Veteran George Blanda kicked a 17-yard field goal to give the Raiders a 24-17 lead. The Patriots tied the score on a 21-yard pass from rookie quarterback Brian Dowling to Randy Vataha.

The Raiders went ahead to stay with a 60-yard scoring march with Pete Banaszek plowing over from one yard out to score.

The game was the exhibition season opener for both teams. The Patriots came up with the most spectacular play of the night when Ricky Harris returned a missed field goal by Blanda 92 yards for a touchdown.

Rose sparks Reds to win vs. Braves

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Pete Rose opened the eighth inning with his second triple of the game and then continued home with the tie-breaking run on shortstop Marty Perez's wild relay throw to help the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday night.

Pedro Borbon pitched two innings of scoreless relief to pick up his fourth victory in six decisions as the Reds ran the Braves' losing streak to seven games. Clay Carroll pitched the final inning for the Reds.

Rookie Ron Schueler was the victim of both of Rose's extra base hits and was charged with a loss, his sixth against four victories. Johnny Bench accounted for the Reds' final run in the eighth with his 25th homer. It was Bench's first homer since July 12.

Schueler's first pitch after Bench's homer decked Tony Perez and drew a warning and an accompanying $50 fine from plate umpire Dick Stello.

Carlton gem drops Cards

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Two-run homers by Bill Robinson and Greg Luzinski gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 5-0 victory Saturday night with Steve Carlton blanking his former St. Louis Cardinal teammates on five hits.

Robinson homered in the fourth with Don Money on base with a single and Luzinski homered in the fifth with Willie Montanez aboard. The last-place Phillies won their fifth consecutive game for their longest winning streak of the season.

Charlie O. 'may not pay'

Kuhn levies fine

Combined News Services

Apparently Charles O. Finley doesn't like to spend money.

First was the much celebrated story of the Vida Blue holdout, in which Finley refused to give in to Vida's asking price.

Now Finley isn't so sure he wants to pay Bowie Kuhn's $500 asking price, for remarks made about the baseball commissioner during the Blue hassle.

Kuhn announced Saturday in New York that Finley had been fined $500 and reprimanded for saying, "How can the commissioner of baseball, during a salary squabble order an owner to make a certain offer to keep one open without ordering the player to accept? It just can't be a one-way street."

In Chicago, Finley reacted by commenting that he wasn't sure if the fine would be paid within the 10-day period.

"If it will be paid," Finley continued, "it will be under protest."

The controvery began when Kuhn entered contract negotiations between Blue and Finley. The contract talks broke off during a disagreement over the wording of the $63,000 contract and Kuhn ordered Finley to keep the $63,000 figure on the table. Finley then issued his statement of objection.

"The commissioner has not ruled that I was wrong in my beliefs. He has taken disciplinary action against me simply because my statement was made public," Finley said Saturday.

"I vehemently disagree with the action of the commissioner. . .I shall do everything possible to uphold my right to speak out and shall take all action available to me to overturn the commissioner's disciplinary action against me"

"The remarks in question," Kuhn said in announcing the fine and reprimand, "were critical of the commissioner's role in the Blue signing and were found by the commissioner not to be in the best interest of baseball."

This was the first time that Kuhn had fined an owner since becoming commisioner on Feb. 4, 1969.

Sims helps Tigers end 4-game losing streak

CLEVELAND (AP)—Catcher Duke Sims, just back in the American League after being acquired from the Dodgers, homered for Detroit's first run and singled home the winning run with two out in the 11th inning Saturday to give the Tigers a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians and Gaylord Perry.

The triumph enabled the Tigers to snap a four-game losing streak and boost their lead to three games over Baltimore in baseball's American League East as they prevented Perry from becoming the first 19-game winner in the majors.

Perry, who suffered his ninth defeat, took a four-hitter and a 3-1 lead into the ninth inning, but Gates Brown led off with his eighth home run and Norm Cash, the next batter, tied the score with his 21st.

Aurelio Rodriguez opened the 11th with a pop-fly double, Brown struck out and Cash was purposely passed. Jim Northrup forced Cash at second for the second out with Rodriguez moving to third, from where he scored the winning run on Sims' single to center.

Sims, making his first American League appearance since 1970, homered with two out in the seventh to cut a 2-0 Cleveland lead in half after Perry had retired 19 consecutive batters from the first inning on.

Petrocelli's slam sinks Orioles, 6-3

BOSTON (UPI) — Rico Petrocelli drove in all six runs with his third grand-slam homer of the year and a two-run double Saturday as Boston whipped Baltimore 6-3 for its fourth win in a row.

Doug Griffin started the decisive third inning for the Red Sox by bunting for a base hit and Carl Yastrzemski singled and Reggie Smith walked to load the bases.

Petrocelli chased Baltimore starter Dave McNally by lining a high shot into the left-field screen for a 6-2 lead. It was the eighth grand slam home run of his career.

The Orioles took a 2-0 lead in the first inning as Don Baylor singled home Paul Blair and Bob Grich stole home on the front end of a double steal he worked with Baylor.

The Red Sox tied it in the bottom of the first as Griffin and Yastrzemski singled and Petrocelli slapped a double to left field, scoring both runners.

Rangers rip Chisox, 11-5

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ted Ford drove in five runs, including a bases-clearing double in the fourth inning, Saturday to power Texas to an 11-5 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

The Rangers took advantage of Sox starter Dave Lemonds' wildness in the first inning to score two runs. Lemonds gave up two walks and a single to load the bases and Larry Bittner's single drove in a pair of runs.

The Sox got a run back in the third on a walk to Pat Kelly and a double by Jay Johnstone. The Rangers then put together four hits two walks and a sacrifice to score five runs in their half of the fourth.

Twins deal Vida 4-0 reversal

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Dick Woodson outpitched Vida Blue with a five-hitter as Minnesota defeated Oakland 4-0 Saturday in American League action.

Woodson recorded his second successive shutout and improved his record to 9-9 as the Twins handed Blue his sixth loss this season.

Blue, who has won only four games after his late start because of a contract dispute, pitched from the stretch in each of the four innings he worked.

Young Solomon draws U.S. into 1-1 Davis Cup deadlock

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Young Harold Solomon outlasted Juan Gisbert of Spain, 9-7, 7-5, 0-6, 1-6, 6-4, to carry the United States into a 1-1 tie Saturday in its Davis Cup interzone semifinal tennis series.

"I just started playing the way I had to in order to beat him. I started putting on the pressure," the 19-year-old American from Silver Spring, Md., said after upsetting Gisbert in the second match, concluded after being halted Friday following the first three sets.

The postponement due to darkness forced a one-day setback to today of the crucial doubles match with the final two singles matches also pushed back one day to Monday.

Stan Smith of Pasadena, the top-ranked U.S. player and Wimbledon champion who was upset by Andres Gimeno in Friday's opening match, will team with Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo in the doubles against Gimeno and Gisbert.

Billie Jean upset by Francoise Durr

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — Francoise Durr of France, relying on overhead and passing shots, Saturday upset top-seeded Billie Jean King in the Virginia Slims tennis tournament, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

In the second semifinal, Rosie Casals of San Francisco defeated Valerie Ziegenfuss of San Diego, 6-2, 6-2.

Miss Durr and Miss Casals meet in the championship match today with $6,000 in prize money going to the winner. They are tied 1-1 in tournament play this year.

Mrs. King, 28, of Long Beach, Calif., played her best set of the tournament in the opening set but lost concentration beginning in the second.

"Billie Jean has been in a bad mood all week," Miss Durr, 21, said after the match. "I think today the loss of concentration got to her."

Water ski stars head for Avalon

The nation's leading men and women water ski racers will seek the prestige of making history's first Long Beach-Avalon Harbor-Long Beach round trip in less than one hour today when they compete in the Catalina Ski Race.

Co-sponsored by Spectra Marine Boats of Burbank and Long Beach Boat & Ski Club, the 61-mile race is an event of the California International Sea Festival, continuing through Aug. 20.

A $500 bonues will go to the man or woman skier cracking the 60-minute barrier for the first time, with another $500 to go to leading finishers in men's, women's, outboard-out drive, jet and junior categories.

Billy Watts of La Jolla, 17-year-old current national water ski racing high-point leader, is considered the favorite, but defending champion Chuck Stearns of Bellflower is also entered in a bid for his seventh victory in the race since 1960.

The event begins in mid-Long Beach Harbor at 8 a.m. following 6:30 a.m. registration at the Reef restaurant, on Pier J near the Queen Mary.

The final day of competition is billed in the National Drag Boat Assn. Championships at Marine Stadium and the Sea Festival Aquatics Meet at Bayshore Beach on Alamitos Bay. Both begin at noon to complete today's Sea Festival agenda.

In the aquatics meet, there are events for the entire family. They range from novelty events such as the reverse swim, reverse backstroke and butterfly on your back, parent-child relays, husband-wife relays and swim-run-swim individual events, to the traditional distance swims.

Dragsters tune up for finals

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Staff Writer

Dozens of drag racers went through their second day of qualifying trials at the Long Beach Marine Stadium Saturday in preparations for today's finals of the National Drag Boat Assn.'s championships.

There were no flips or accident. One boat caught fire before beginning a run down the straight course but did not sink. A crosswind in mid-afternoon caused a bit of erratic driving that gave the crowd some jittery moments.

Even though their appearance was brief, four water skiers probably gave the spectators their biggest thrills. Two of the skiers came from Australia to compete against the Southern Californians.

Danny Churchill, who holds the world record on the single ski at 126 mph, failed to break his own mark but made a spectacular run at 122 mph. He was pulled by Mike Christensen in Cruicifer II. Churchill will be competiting this morning in the annual Long Beach to Avalon-return trip marathon.

Wayne Jones of Sydney, Australia did 105.08 mph for his best run. Greg Warren, a junior skier from Australia, had a 97 mph run.

The greatest thrill in the water skiing events came when Chuck Murray, Pico Rivera, started through the measured course at 139 mph but fell when he hit a small wave. He was being pulled by Mike DuBiel, Huntington Beach who was driving Gladiator.

In addition to the two records which were set (one way) Friday, two others were put on the books Saturday. All four will have to be backed up with runs to become official.

Those set Saturday were by Mike Brinbell, North Hollywood, driving Hot Damn Hondo in the ski competition at 123.70 mph and Dean Willis of Sacramento driving Royal Flush at 124.48 mph in the blown jet class.

Fastest times were recorded by Dwight Bale, Walnut Creek, driving Out-a-Sight at 190.26 in the hydro class, and Ray Casselli, 148.88 mph in Panic Mouse in the flatbottom class.

Finals start at noon today. Admission is $4 and children under 10 are admitted free with an adult.

Packers top Cincinnati

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Dave Hampton and Scott Hunter sparked Green Bay to a 21-3 halftime lead Saturday night, and the Packer defense held on for a 24-14 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals in a National Football League exhibition game.

Hampton scampered 19 yards from scrimmage and 69 yards on a kick-off return to set up touchdown runs of two yards by John Brockington and one yard by Hunter.

Hunter, who completed five of his first six passes, connected with Carroll Dale on a 40-yard scoring play midway through the second quarter.

Tommy Casanova, Cincinnati's second round draft choice, gave the Bengals their only touchdown with a 52-yard punt return 4½ minutes into the second half.

Beware rookies, The Turk is coming!

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

"The Turk" checks into camp this week. That means that several Rams will be checking out.

All National Football League rosters must be down to 60 players — plus College All-Star latecomers — by 1 p.m. PDT Tuesday, the first of four cutdown dates leading to the opening of league play for the final 40 on Sept. 17.

Where once there lied a bright rookie prospect, there will be an empty bed. Where an aging veteran once hung his pads, there will be only the odor of stale sweat.

This is all blamed on the Turk, whose legendary stealth causes victims to disappear without a whimper, without a farewell.

"The first cuts are easy," says Ram coach Tommy Prothro, "but they get tougher the closer you get to the final 40. The last ones are really tough. It's not only that the players we cut are left believing that they weren't good enough to make it, but we aren't too sure ourselves."

Prothro gave everybody Saturday off — no practice, no training table, no meetings — after Friday's opening exhibition win over Cleveland, 13-3. The coach himself went home to Sherman Oaks to ponder bridge or chess problems, but all were due back at Long Beach State for breakfast this morning, after which Prothro will look at films of the initial effort.

It will be his last look at some of them.

The most difficult positions to assess involve the passing game — quarterbacks and wide receivers.

None of the latter caught a pass Friday night when John Walton completed only 2 of 11 for 12 yards, both to running backs. But Prothro will not be hasty in deciding between Walton and the more experienced but weaker-armed Jerry Rhome to understudy Roman Gabriel.

It may be significant, however, that rookie Eddie Phillips is being groomed to hold placekicks for David Ray — a chore performed by Rhome last season.

Phillips' versatility also gives him an edge over some of the other defensive backs. The former Texas Wishbone quarterback can also return punts.

Phillips' Longhorn buddy, running back Jim Bertelsen, and tight end Bob Christiansen from UCLA will enjoy an immunity from the cuts until the trim to 44 on Aug. 28, because they missed the first three weeks of camp while working with the College All-Stars.

No such benefits are granted the two soap opera receivers — Joe Sweet and John Love, who are trying to crack a tough trio of Jack Snow, Lance Rentzel and Matt Maslowski. Love rates a better chance in that he can also run back kicks. After Alvin Haymond's poor season and ultimate trade to Washington this summer, the Rams sorely need a punt returner.

The Ram kicking jobs appear stable, although the Rams Friday reclaimed Ron Svare on waivers from San Diego to give David Ray some placekicking competition.

Punter Pat Studstill all but disposed of his competition Friday night when he kicked three times for a 49.3 average as rookie Dave Chapple of UC Santa Barbara went 3-for-33.3.

Following is one reporter's longshot look at the final 40, not taking into account the possibilities of trades or injuries.

Quarterbacks — Roman Gabriel, John Walton.

Running backs — Willie Ellison, Larry Smith, Travis Williams, Les Josephson, Jim Bertelsen.

Wide receivers — Jack Snow, Lance Rentzel, Matt Maslowski.

Tight ends — Bob Klein, Bob Christiansen.

Offensive linemen — Tom Mack, Joe Scibelli, John Williams, Charlie Cowan, Joe Carollo, Harry Schuh, Ken Iman, Rich Saul.

Defensive line — Merlin Olsen, Coy Bacon, Phil Olsen, Fred Dryer, Jack Youngblood, Bill Nelson.

Linebackers — Marlin McKeever, Isiah Robertson, Jeff Staggs, Jack Reynolds, Dean Halverson, Ken Geddes.

Defensive backs — Gene Howard, Jim Nettles, Kermit Alexander, Dave Elmendorf, Clancy Williams, Eddie Phillips.

Placekicker — David Ray.

Punter — Pat Studstill.

RAMBLING: Saturday night's game against the Dallas Cowboys starts at 7:30, a half-hour earlier than usual . . . The Rams' roster currently numbers 67, including Bertelsen and Christiansen . . . Prothro experimented Friday night with Coy Bacon at defensive left end—Deacon Jones' old spot—and Fred Dryer in Coy's rightside position . . . Deacon's old number 75 is now worn by John Williams.

Jets defeat 49ers in last 33 seconds

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — John Riggins, a second-year pro from Kansas, bolted 26 yards for a touchdown with 33 seconds left Saturday night, giving the New York Jets a 17-10 victory over the San Francisco 49ers in a National Football League exhibition opener.

	49ers	Jets

Fumbles	2	0
Yards penalized	63	55

Quarterback Steve Spurrier directed the 49ers to a 10-0 lead, but dropped passes and fumbles blunted a half-dozen later drives. Meanwhile, New York scrambled behind the quarterbacking of Bob Davis.

Davis took over New York's quarterbacking in the second quarter after Joe Namath failed to muster a scoring drive for the Jets in the early going.

Namath saw only limited action and completed four of seven passes for 49 yards. Davis hit nine of 19 for 121 yards and Spurrier, filling in for John Brodie, connected on 21 of 36 for 268.

Namath said he had no problems with his knees which kept him sidelined most of last season. "I was throwing too early, feeling some pressure which wasn't there," he said.

"But I felt I had something on the ball.

With 1:17 left in the half, Davis uncorked a 22-yard pass to 160-pound wide receiver Ed Bell and followed it up with a 30-yarder that Bell took over his shoulder at the goalline.

Bobby Howfield tied the game in the third quarter with a 40-yard field goal for the Jets and it looked like a standoff until Davis drove the New York team 63 yards in the last 90 seconds.

Running back Riggins bolted into the clear from the 26 and slanted between San Francisco defenders for the winning touchdown.

Dallas wins 15th in row

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Austrian-born placekicker Toni Fritsch, trying to win a spot as a Dallas regular, kicked four field goals Saturday night and Roger Staubach sprinted 20 yards for a score with three minutes to play to insure the Cowboys 26-24 pre-season victory over Houston.

Staubach rallied his forces in the second half after Dallas had fallen behind, 17-6, to bring the Cowboys their second preseason win and 15th successive victory dating back to the middle of last season.

Fritsch's field goals were of 16, 12, 15 and 36 yards — the last one coming with 5:11 to play and giving Dallas the lead for the first time all night at 19-17.

Staubach, who completed 18 of 34 passes for 228 yards, hit Walt Garrison with a screen pass that went for a seven-yard touchdown early in the fourth quarter before getting the Cowboys' final score himself.

Tody returns ... no explanation

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys announced Saturday defensive lineman Tody Smith, who walked out of camp last week, has returned without explanation.

"He called (vice president) Gil Brandt from Los Angeles and arrived in Dallas this afternoon," said a Cowboys spokesman. "He will be fined."

Taximan sparks Steelers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Leahy hit Frank Lewis with an 80-yard touchdown pass and Earl Edwards returned a punt 77 yards for another touchdown to spark the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 28-10 victory over the New York Giants Saturday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

The touchdowns by Lewis and Edwards came less than two minutes apart in the second quarter and staked Pittsburgh to a 21-0 lead.

Williams' catches spark San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Dave Williams caught two touchdown passes in the first half Saturday night to spark the San Diego Chargers to a 30-7 victory over the Atlanta Falcons in a National Football League pre-season opener.

Williams, acquired along with running back Cid Edwards in an off-season trade with St. Louis, caught three passes for 135 yards to lead the Chargers to a commanding, 22-0 halftime lead.

His first scoring reception, a 59-yard toss from veteran quaterback John Hadl, came late in the first period.

Early in the second period, Williams gathered in a 41-yard pass from Hadl to set up a 13-yard field goal by rookie Bill McClard of Arkansas.

Williams' second touchdown came on a 35-yard pass from backup quarterback Marty Domres.

Chief rally wipes early Bears' edge

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — The Kansas City Chiefs rallied from a 10-point first-quarter deficit to defeat the Chicago Bears, 24-10, in a National Football League pre-season game at Notre Dame Stadium Saturday.

The Bears, playing their first game under new head coach Abe Gibron, drove 72 yards in 15 plays after the opening kickoff to take a 7-0 lead. Joe Moore scored from the two yard line.

Chicago got the ball back seconds later on a fumble and Mac Percival's 41-yard field goal pushed the score to 10-0 with 4:44 remaining in the first quarter.

Kansas City, now 2-0 in exhibition play, scored on a 32-yard field goal by Jan Stenerud early in the second period. Ed Podolak went the final 11 yards to tie the score at 10-10 at the half.

Safety Jim Kearney got the Chiefs moving in the second half when he intercepted a Kent Nix pass at the Bears' 39. Eight plays later Len Dawson passed four yards to Wendell Hayes for the go-ahead score.

The Chiefs scored their final touchdown with 6:29 left in the game when fullback Mike Adamle plunged two yards to end a 19-yard drive.

Detroit QBs stun Miami

DETROIT (AP) — Quarterback Greg Landry threw for two touchdowns and Bill Munson one as the Detroit Lions beat the Miami Dolphins, 31-23, in National Football League exhibition action Saturday night.

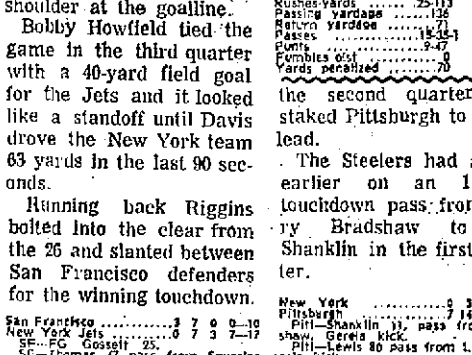

Miami scored first on a 52-yard field goal by soccer-style kicker Garo Yepremian, hero of Miami's playoff victory over the Kansas City Chiefs last year.

HOW TO TAKE FUN OUT OF GOLF

By DICK HARRIS — Cartoons by WILEY SMITH

The trouble with trees on a golf course is that it's hard to make a golf shot when you're under one. If your ball lands in the rough under a tree, show your opponent how a few "practice swings" can put you in good shape for that shot back to the fairway or approach to the green.

Bobick, Dement gain Olympic ring berths

WEST POINT, N.Y. — Heavyweight Duane Bobick earned a berth in the United States Olympic boxing team when his weary opponent, Larry Holmes, was disqualified for holding in the third and last round of their Olympic boxing final bout Saturday.

Bobick, a Navy quartermaster from Bowlus, Minn., who was unbeaten in his last 55 bouts, knocked Holmes down with a right to the head in the first round. But Holmes, who qualified for the finals in an Eastern Regional tournament, danced out of range of Bobick's powerful right and landed several stiff jabs.

Bobick mauled Holmes in the second round but couldn't corner his elusive foe from Trenton, N.J., long enough to land a solid punch. The referee warned Holmes twice in the second round for holding.

In the third round, Bobick began cutting off Holmes' movement and nailed him with several clubbing rights to the jaw.

Holmes, obviously intent on going the distance, clinched again, bringing on the disqualification.

Earlier, choirboy-faced Tim Dement stopped Jesse Trujillo in the third round of a bloody flyweight brawl.

Dement, a virtual unknown before he outpointed Bobby Lee Hunter in the Olympic Trials at Ft. Worth, Tex., two weeks ago, staggered Trujillo in the first round with a sharp right to the jaw, forcing the referee to call a standing eight-count.

But Trujillo, a veteran Golden Glover from Denver, battled back and bloodied the nose of the Bossier City, La., fighter with sharp combinations.

In the second round, Dement rocked Trujillo with an uppercut to the jaw. But his southpaw opponent surged back with solid punches and the two fighters both were bleeding from the nose at the end of the round.

They continued to trade heavily in the third round until Dement backed Trujillo against the ropes and knocked him down with a straight right hand to the head.

Trujillo gained his feet and the referee, seeing him obviously hurt, halted the match.

These finals, which pair Olympic trials champions against challengers designated by the U.S. Olympic Boxing Committee, saw one mild upset as Raymond Russell of Cincinnati outpointed Louis Slaughter in a light-heavyweight bout.

Russell's triumph will force a third and deciding bout with Slaughter, from Portsmouth, Va.

Dement, a skinny, almost frail-looking 17-year-old, recorded his 64th victory against 12 setbacks.

In the Olympic trials, he upset the highly touted Hunter, a Pan-Am bronze medalist who is serving a manslaughter sentence in a South Carolina prison.

David Armstrong of Tacoma, Wash., stopped Clarence James of Philadelphia in the third round of their light flyweight contest when the referee halted the bout after Armstrong floored James with a right to the head.

Welterweight 147 pounds
Jesse Valdez, Houston, outpointed Edward Gregory, New York.

Jr. Welterweight 139 pounds
Ray Seales, Tacoma, Wash., stopped Billy Miller, Belton, Tex., 1.

Flyweight 112 pounds

Lutz tests Okker for 45th U.S. pro championship

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass. (AP) — Unseeded Bob Lutz of Tiburon, Calif., fought his way into the finals of the 45th U.S. Pro Tennis Championship Saturday, outlasting Cliff Drysdale of South Africa, 6-4, 6-3, 6-7, 6-3.

Tom Okker of The Netherlands won the other berth in the singles finals by eliminating Arthur Ashe of Miami, 7-6, 7-6, 6-3.

Lutz and Okker will play today for the $10,000 first prize.

Whitworth blazes 68, takes lead

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Tour veteran Kathy Whitworth scored a course record-tying 68, three under par, to take the lead in the second round of the Knoxville Ladies Golf Classic at Deane Hill Country Club.

Miss Whitworth had a 36-hole score of 139, four shots better than Carol Mann and Gloria Ehret, who finished at 143.

First-round leader Diane Patterson skied to a 78 in the second day's action and was well back at 147.

Four lady golfers were in at 144, four over par. They were Clifford Ann Creed, who had a 69 Saturday; Jo Ann Prentice, who shot her second 72; Shelley Hamlin, whose 70 was one of only three sub-par rounds; and Sandra Haynie, who was three over 74 Saturday.

Most of the women professionals on the LPGA tour complained about the greens on the 6,300-yard layout.

"They putt like Jello," said Miss Prentice. "They are bumpy, hairy, and inconsistent. Some putts will roll ten feet past, others stop ten feet short."

Miss Whitworth, however, found the greens more to her liking, but she credited luck with helping her to her 68.

"I got all the breaks today, all the right bounces."

She had an eagle on the par-four seventh hole when a blind nine-iron shot bounced into the cup.

Miss Whitworth passed the front nine in four-under par 32, with birdies at one and nine and the eagle on seven.

Laura top USGA Jr. girls pick

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Laura Baugh of Long Beach is the premeet favorite as a field of girls 17-and-under prepares for the start of the U.S. Golf Assn.'s national junior girls' championship tournament Monday.

Hollis Stacy, who won the event last year, is too old to defend her title.

Among the other top contenders are Amy Walcott of Los Angeles, last year's runner-up, and Nancy Lopez of Roswell, N.M., who finished second in the recent Women's Western Open in Kansas City.

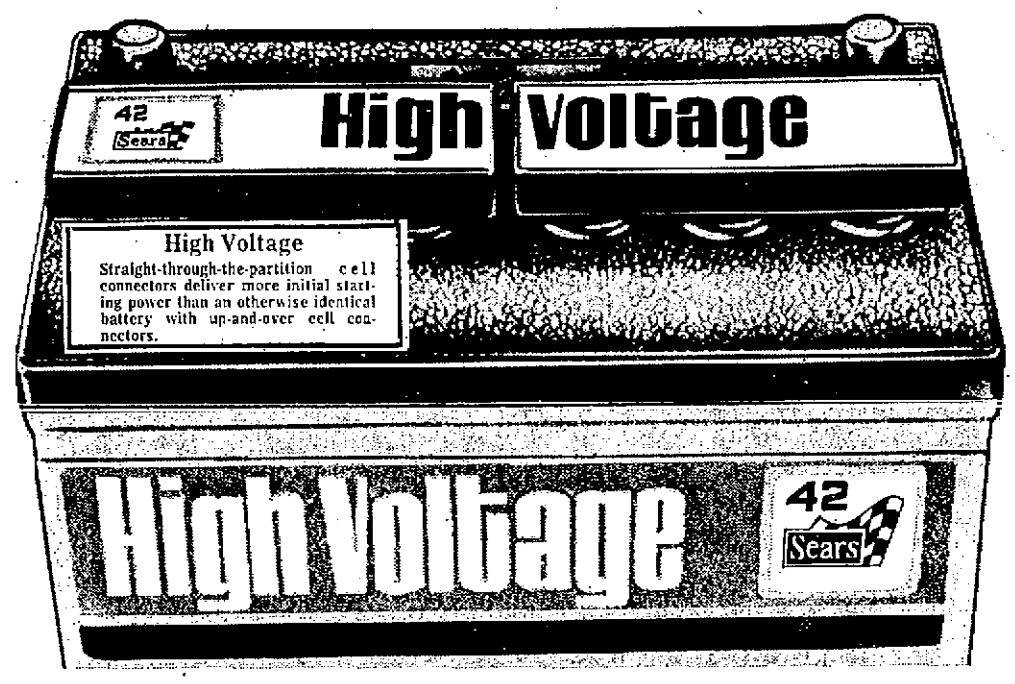

Cathy Reyolds of Springfield, Missouri's junior girl champ, is also entered.

The girls will face a tricky 6,126-yard, par-72 course at the Jefferson City Country Club.

By Lee Trevino

THE SMOOTH ONE

The really velvet swingers — Gene Littler, Sam Snead, Julius Boros and Bert Yancey — all have the same slow take-away. Their backswings are lazy-like, but not floppy.

The attack area of the downswing is a reflex action of the backswing. The golfer who starts his swing by jerking the club away from the ball loses control at the top unless he has a great grip. If he retains that hurried tempo, he'll rush into the downswing. The result is a misdirected shot.

To concentrate on a smooth backswing, I always look at the target twice. After the forward press I think "one second" as I come back. Nothing else, just a mental "one" as I take the club away from the ball.

I'VE HEARD that Patty Berg used to think "oom-pah" as she began her backswing. It's a good way to establish a tempo.

The speed of a man's backswing isn't that important. Arnold Palmer and Chi Chi Rodriguez have fast backswings, and who says those dudes can't play? It takes different speeds for different breeds.

The speed of your backswing isn't what counts — IF you keep it the same all the time. It's the way you bring it down that counts.

PLAYER IN LEAD

it would take five — I might have a chance tomorrow."

He was just three strokes over par when he hit his second shot on the par-five 12th. The wind shifted while the ball was in the air. It plugged in a bunker and he failed to get it out of the trap on his first try.

"I was four under par for the day when the ball was in the air on the second shot and I was thinking about being five. When I walked off the green, I was there.

"That killed me."

Player, with Nicklaus and two others the only men to win the U.S. and British Opens, the PGA and Masters in a career, took the lead despite a bogey on the final hole, his second of the day.

"A 67 on this course with two bogeys, well, I really did play well. This is the toughest course I've ever played in America," he said.

Player needed only a par on the 459-yard, par-four final hole, a dogleg right with an elevated green, to stretch his lead to two strokes.

But he caught a fairway bunker on the right with his tee shot, had no choice but chip back to the fairway, was on in three and two-putted for the bogey that sent him off the green with his shoulder slumped and his head down.

"I really wanted to make at worst par there," he said later.

Player, twice the British Open Champion and winner of this one a decade ago, the Masters in 1961 and the U.S. Open in 1965, opened with a rush.

He one-putted four of the first five greens, went three under on that stretch of holes and played par golf the rest of the way on the bright, sunny day.

The 5-foot-7 physical fitness faddist, a rancher in Johannesburg when he isn't putting in some 150,000 air miles a year jaunting around the world, opened up with a 30-foot birdie putt on the first hole.

He wedged to eight feet and made the birdie putt on the second, saved par from a bunker with an explosion shot to five feet on the next, missed from 10 feet on the next and then canned another twisting, writhing 30-foot birdie putt on the next.

He cooled off then, making bogey from a bunker on the ninth and missing four birdie putts in the 12-15 foot range. He struck on two others in the 25-30 foot area, just missed on three more, then took the disheartening bogey on the 18th.

For a while it looked as if it might cost him the lead.

He was playing about three groups in front of the husky, easy-going Heard, who was one or two under-par most of the day before he ran into problems on the tough finishing holes.

"It's almost impossible to make birdie on those," said Heard, a two-time winner this season and one of the game's top young players.

He three-putted the 14th for a bogey and lost another stroke when he hit into the trees with his drive on the 16th and couldn't get home in two.

"I played pretty well overall, except for missing a couple of short putts," he said.

Riva Ridge fourth behind 11-1 shot

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP) — Freetex, an 11-1 outsider, scored a major surprise by winning the $100,000 Monmouth Invitational Handicap at Monmouth Park Saturday as Riva Ridge, the 1-5 favorite, finished out of the money in fourth position.

In shattering the aura of invincibility surrounding the winner of the Kentucky Derby, Belmont Stakes and Hollywood Derby, Freetex came charging down the middle of the stretch to overhaul pacesetting King's Bishop and win the 3-year-old stake by 2¼ lengths going away before a stunned crowd of $1,554.

Riva Ridge, considered the year's outstanding 3-year-old, was running neck-and-neck with King's Bishop at the head of the stretch but faded in the drive for the wire despite whipping by jockey Ron Turcotte.

King's Bishop finished 3½ lengths ahead of Cloudy Dawn, who also closed fast to beat Riva Ridge by 1¼ lengths for the show spot.

Freetex, ridden by Michael Hole, ran the mile and one-eighth in 1:50 under 117 pounds and paid $24.40, $8.20 and $5.20.

King's Bishop, carrying 115 pounds with Eddie Maple in the saddle, returned $6.80 and $4.40. Cloudy Dawn, the 5-1 second choice who carried 117 pounds, including jockey Bill Hartack, returned $4 to show. Riva Ridge was the top weight at 126 pounds.

It was the first defeat of the Meadow Stables' colt on a fast track this year. He had lost twice previously on off tracks, including the Preakness at Pimlico that cost him the Triple Crown.

SARATOGA — Rokeby Stable's Key to The Mint reaffirmed his position among the nation's top three-year olds Saturday as he easily beat a strong field in the 45th running of the $57,250 Whitney Stakes.

The victory was the second in a row for the colt by Graustark-Key Bridge and the fifth in his last seven starts. He won the Brooklyn Handicap for older horses July 8 and the Withers Stakes May 31. Between those two races he finished fourth in the Belmont Stakes after being brushed on the first turn.

Key to The Mint ran the 1 1/8 mile distance in the excellent time of 1:49 1/5, only a second off the track record, and led the second finisher, Tunex, to the wire by two lengths. Loud finished third, three lengths behind Tunex. Among the also-rans were Triple Bend, Twist the Axe and Autobiography.

Key to The Mint, who was ridden by Braulio Baeza, returned $3.60, $3.00 and $2.40 as the 8-10 choice of the sunny afternoon crowd of 23,341. Tunex paid $10.00 and $5.80 and Loud paid $5.20. The $34,350 winner's share earned by Key to The Mint brought his career earnings to $272,896.

LIBERTY BELL—Chou Crote carried the silks of Emanuel V. Benjamin II to victory Saturday in the $55,350 Susquehanna Handicap.

The 4-year-old filly won by eight lengths over Grafitti. Alma North was third, 2½ lengths further back in the 1 1-16 mile test.

Chou Crote, carrying 124 pounds including jockey Robert Kotenko, covered the distance in 1:43 1-5 on a fast track and rewarded her backers in the crowd of 14,360 with $6.60, $3.80 and $2.80.

Grafitti paid $4.60 and $3.60 with Alma North returning $3.20 to show.

ARLINGTON — Kittiwake, carrying high weight of 122 pounds, closed strongly to win the $55,700 Matron Handicap by 1½ lengths Saturday before a crowd of 23,225 at Arlington Park.

Blade O War, a 40-to-1 shot, edged Barely Even for second in the 1½-mile grass race for fillies and mares.

Belle Geste, the Canadian champion and 6-5 favorite, finished fifth in the field of 10. She raced head and head with Barely Even until the last turn, when she faltered.

Kittiwake, ridden by Robert Woodhouse, earned $33,200 for owner Taylor Hardin of Newstead Farm, Va.

Del Mar mark set by Dancer

DEL MAR (AP) — Street Dancer nosed out odds-on favorite Hill Circus and lowered her own track record for 1⅛ miles on the turf in winning the $27,100 Ramona Handicap at Del Mar Saturday.

Jockey Fernando Toro scored his fourth victory of the day aboard Street Dancer, who was aided by a five-pound weight advantage as she swept from behind in the stretch. Hill Circus, the 3-5 favorite who was England's top 3-year-old filly last year, finished second by 2¾ lengths over 21-1 longshot Countess Market.

The time was 1:48 1-5, three-fifths of a second faster than the record Street Dancer set in winning this race last year.

Hill Circus, top weighted in the field of nine fillies and mares at 122 pounds, set the pace into the stretch, with Street Dancer fourth most of the way. Toro got his mare moving on the outside in the stretch turn, and Street Dancer, carrying 117 pounds, got her nose in front in the final stride.

The victory was worth $15,700 to owner W.T. Brady.

Street Dancer, the second betting choice, paid $10,80, $3.40 and $3. Hill Circus paid $2.60 and $2.40, and Countess Market paid $4.20 to show.

Compton tips Charter Oak

Down 5-2 in the seventh, Charter Oak parlayed three walks with a pair of run-producing singles and a sacrifice fly, sending the game into extra innings but surrendered a bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the eighth, falling to the Compton Mohawks 6-5 Saturday night in the Connie Mack State Tournament at Blair Field.

Charter Oak appeared ready to secure victory, but pitcher Mike Dickerson gave up a leadoff single to Keith Arnold and opposing hurler Don Nash beat out a sacrifice bunt. The fourth error of the night loaded the bases for a decisive walk to Dave Chapman.

Even with the loss, Charter Oak's record remains a sensational 39-3 and pits it against Royse Insurance in a 6:15 duel tonight. Jim Motz, a southpaw from Wilson High is the likely choice to start for Royse but Chuck Phillips, also a lefty, could very well get the nod.

In the other contest, the Compton Mohawks will meet South Pasadena in a battle of the undefeateds at 8:30 p.m.

Jet Moore scores upset

Mr. Jet Moore, Ruidoso Downs' finest three-year-old and perhaps the nation's best sophomore colt, made 14,306 west coast quarter horse fans believers Saturday night at Los Alamitos Race Course as the invader showed his heels to nine with an easy victory in the $50,000 Go Man Go Stakes.

Not only did Mr. Jet Moore beat the West's finest and add to his $254,000 bankroll, but the Charles Smith-ridden colt established a Los Alamitos 400-yard track record of 19.75, easily bettering the 19.9 record held jointly by six horses, including Osage Rocket.

Charger Bar, anchored by 128 pounds, the highest impost of her racing career, stumbled coming out of the gate but the defending world champion quickly regained her stride and overcame the entire field, with the exception of Mr. Jet Moore, to finish second. Two-time world champ Kaweah Bar was third.

For Smith, it was his 699th victory in his fabulous career at Los Alamitos and after the race the 42-year-old veteran said, "I never used the whip once. I knew we had it coming out of the gate and I just looked back and laughed at those other guys."

Mr. Jet Moore, who broke badly and finished fourth in his first start at Los Alamitos after being shipped from New Mexico, returned $13.60, $5.40 and $3.80. Even money favorite Charger Bar paid $3 and $2.40 while Kaweah Bar awarded show backers $2.80.

Tempest Bunny, a three-year-old daughter of Joyous Jed, became only the second five-time winner at the current 79-night meeting by notching her ninth win of the year.

Tempest Bunny has gone postward only 14 times this year, winning nine of them and has exceeded $10,000 in 1972 earnings.

The Terry-Lipham-ridden filly broke poorly as the 3-5 favorite in the fourth race but came on strongly to nip Miss Te and Rebel's Queen in 20.14 for 400 yards.

The public choice paid $3.20 for the victory while Miss Te and Rebel's Queen returned $6.20 and $2.60 respectively.

In the third race, Kipty's Moose posted his first win of the year with a 20.14 400-yard triumph and paid $5.80 while promising two-year-old Reigning Star won the first race in 17.89, a clocking that topped Burma Shan's winning 350-yard time in Friday Night's $10,000 Los Ninos.

Golf classes

Heartwell Park golf course and Harry Thomas are sponsoring free junior golf lessons starting Tuesday. Only charge is for golf balls — $5 for six lessons. Students are also requested to bring their own No. 5 irons and putters.

The schedule: boys aged 9-12, 9-10 a.m.; girls all ages, 10-11; boys aged 13 through 16, 11-noon.

Experienced Vikes have coach hopeful

The coaches don't want to be pinned down this early, but there is considerable optimism about the 1972 football season at Long Beach City College.

The reason? Experience.

When drills start in three weeks, coach Gary Jacobsen will welcome back nine offensive starters and seven from his 1971 defensive unit.

Not only will Jacobsen have a solid nucleus of know-how, but he will be able to play personnel at positions where they perform best.

For example, Bill Cecil who was first in scoring, second in rushing and fourth in pass receiving while alternating between two positions in 1971, will be in the spot where he is most effective—tailback.

At the same time, Rick Gillies who led all receivers and earned a second-team league selection at split end will take over as wingback where he should be able to add to his total yardage.

Taking Gillies' spot on a permanent basis will be Allen Brown whose limited performance there last year caught the coach's eye. Although Brown is a bit small (6-0, 170), Jacobsen considers him too good to be on the bench. "Has good speed, and catches the ball in a crowd," he says.

Although going into more detail about his offense, the LBCC coach is happy about his defensive prospects.

Two of the more important defenders could be a pair of linebackers: Dave Stanley, 6-2, 215, a converted fullback, and Rich Breeze, 6-1, 230, a defensive tackle last year.

The Vikings open their 1972 season at home against Grossmont Sept. 15.

Teen-age bullfighter returns to Tijuana

A teen-age sensation, a returning veteran, and Mexico's great Indian matador comprise the cartel today at the bullring by the sea, Plaza Monumental de Tijuana.

The toreros will be 17-year-old Rafael Gil (Rafaelillo), the youngest matador in the world; Eliseo Gomez (El Charro), wearing the suit of lights for the first time in several years; and the grand maestro from Puebla, Joselito Huerta. Beginning at 4 p.m. they will each face two bulls.

Comets schedule track tryouts

The Long Beach Comets, a track team for girls of all ages, are now accepting applications for cross country. Age groups and distances are: 9 and under, 1 mile; 10-11, 1¼ miles; 12-13, 1½ miles; 14-17, 2 miles, and women's division, 2½ miles.

Tryouts will be held each day at 4 p.m. at Recreation Park across from the Wilson High tennis courts.

Pro grid briefs

Cardinals — Backfield coach Bill (Thunder) Thornton resigned as a coach. Lineman Chuck Hutchinson will return to camp.

Eagles — Wide receiver Ben Hawkins is bothered by a dislocated toe. Bobby Maiors may miss season. He is hospitalized with fevers and chills and doctors can't find cause.

THE FIAT 128 FOUR-DOOR SEDAN BRINGS YOU GOOD NEWS FOR YOUR KNEES.

The trouble with most small sedans is that while they help solve the serious problems of space on the road, they create serious problems of space inside the car.

One of the most remarkable things about the front-wheel drive Fiat 128 you see pictured above is that, while on the outside it's 10 inches shorter than the Volkswagen Beetle, on the inside it borders on the cavernous.

For example, in the front, you get the exact same headroom you get in the slightly more expensive Cadillac DeVille, more hip room than a Toyota Corona or a Dodge Colt, and the same leg room as a Chrysler Newport.

And in the back, where small cars are really small, you get 2 inches more knee room than the Volkswagen Beetle, 10 inches more hip room than a Chevy Vega, ½ inch more headroom than a Lincoln Continental, and more room to get in and out of the back door than any four-door sedan we know of.

And you get all this for $2,089.00.

(This is the manufacturer's suggested retail price POE the West Coast. Of course, transportation, state and local taxes, optional equipment and dealer preparation charges, if any, are additional, as with any other new automobile.)

All of which is one of the big reasons why, in Europe, where the average family averages more people than in America, they buy more Fiats than any other car.

Issue substitute for Golden Eagle

For a change of pace today, let's look at the situation in the National Parks and the recreation areas administered by the United States Forest Service. In doing so, we should go beyond the the great parks of the west, namely Yosemite and Yellowstone, each of which is having to limit its visitors at times through the busy summer period when the traveling pressure is really heavy.

Numerous calls have come to me in recent weeks about the Golden Eagle Passport which in previous years could be bought for $10 and which would permit the holder to enter any national park or recreation area under the supervision of the U. S. Forest Service.

For people who have invested heavily in campers and trailers and who have turned their sights on the forests and mountains and the beaches, The Golden Eagle Passport means much. If it were a business and run as such, the entire program would be simple, but unfortunately, some sticky-fingered politicians got to the act and this year's Golden Eagle Passport was delayed in a mass of bills and Washington chit-chat.

Along came the Democratic National Convention and everything was shoved aside. Now, however, it is passed and has been signed by President Nixon, but the passports have not as yet been sent to the National Park Service. The NPS, anticipating that, already was issuing a substitute passport for the same price which would be good—and still is—until the Golden Eagles were ready.

THE GOLDEN EAGLE SUBSTITUTE is available at all National Parks, and it may be converted into the real Golden Eagle when that is ready. One of the factors about the Golden Eagle, or the substitute, gives persons 62 years of age and older the right to enter any of the national parks or recreational areas heretofore described at no charge.

However, the passport does not entitle the elderly or senior citizens the right to camp free or use other facilities for which there is a charge. There is a reduced rate for the seniors. Not having seen a copy of the passport, I can not tell you about all the details.

Most of the people who have called me about the Golden Eagle have seemed to be upset because they had planned vacations earlier before the Golden Eagle Passport measure had been approved and signed.

It might be well for Congress to give a thought to this problem. We have many citizens, seniors and younger, who plan vacations the year 'round and they naturally would like to have the benefit of a passport that would get them into the parks and recreational areas.

This Golden Eagle Passport can not be used for admission to private and state parks; it is for use on the national level only. If you are not familiar with all of the national parks, I would suggest that you get such a list from the National Park Service or look up the list in the library.

PEARLS FROM THE OCEAN—San Diego: There is more than just a bit of griping going on at the landings here these days, and rightfully so. Just when the albacore bite was going great, the northwest winds knocked fishing into a cocked hat. Then a blow from below hit the same area, and the albacore— you certainly can't blame them—hunted calmer water and more bait.

The whole thing affected fishing and skippers had to cruise as far as 125 miles to find schools, and that, my friends, is approaching the limit for the normal party boats that run out of San Diego. The passenger count fell off and the fish count yo-yo'd from 100-plus to nearly 1,000. That's enough to give passengers and skippers and operators of the landings the jitters.

Lloyd Cooper of Lakewood returned after a successful fishing trip with Paul Burkhart, who runs a small sportfishing boat out of Fort Bragg. Cooper caught four nice salmon, lost four others and practically had the boat to himself when the other passengers went down with mal de mer. Paul told Lloyd that fishing had been slower off Bragg than usual. Also, he said that it was most unusual for most of his passengers to get sick.

The Aug. 1 rundown on the salmon situation from Olympia, Wash., shows that ochos and kings are moving into Sekiu and Pillar Point. The Neah Bay catch remained static, which meant that it was good and even Port Angeles anglers were averaging a fish per man on the fleet out of that port.

MINIS FROM THE LAKES—Wohlford: Catfish are biting well, but other fishing has slowed to a crawl. One angler took five channels ranging from 2 to 11 pounds; two other fishermen caught 25 pounds of channels. All were using cut mackerel for bait.

Irvine: Temperature reached 111 degrees on three or four days and the anglers were discouraged, to say the least, although the catfish bite is still on. The lake will be closed on Wednesdays and Thursdays, beginning Aug. 9. The lake will remain open each day, but all trout plants have been suspended.

Nacimiento: This lake is having one of its most successful seasons in its comparitively short history. White bass are hitting lures and bait. Incidentally, this is the only body of water in California where fishermen may try for white bass. Other species are biting well even though the temperature is running from 90 to 105 degrees.

Nitehawks-Jets begin playoffs

By CHUCK MEDICK
Staff Writer

With identical records of 30-6, the Long Beach Nitehawks and Warner Electric Jets of Lakewood begin a best two-out-three playoff for the Western Softball Congress title tonight at Mayfair Park, 8:15.

The Jets, who have won 19 of their last 21 starts under new manager Lannie Rupp, will send Ed Klecker to the mound. Klecker is looking for his 23rd league win against 6 losses.

Manager Red Meairs of Long Beach can counter with Bob Todd (12-2), Roger Teske (12-2) or Bob Wills (6-2). Teske should have the inside track on the starting assignment.

Neither team is without power. Lakewood's Bill Hardy, after a bout with monoucleosis and playing against doctors orders, wound up the season with a .395 average. Wills led the Hawks in batting with a .388 average.

Klecker had an earned run average of 0.40 while Teske and Todd wound up with a 0.72 mark.

After tonight's game the scene shifts to Joe Rodgers Field for the second game which will be played Friday, 8:15 p.m. The Nitehawks will be the host team if a third game is necessary next Sunday, also scheduled for Joe Rodgers. Admission for tonight's game is 50 cents for adults. Children are admitted free.

Lucrative gambling divides a poor Compton

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

Take a city with the highest crime rate in the state, add a case of financial doldrums, and then open the way for legalized gambling.

This is Compton — a city in trouble.

About midafternoon Tuesday August 8 — if councilmen approve the second reading of a 23-page card club ordinance — the way will be cleared for Compton to become the county's second gambling city. (The council approved the first reading 4-1, Aug. 1, and there has been no indication that the vote will be any different this week.)

By Sept. 8, draw poker, panguingue, and "card games not prohibited by state law" would be as legal as they are in Gardena three miles away. Three $75,000 licenses could be ready for clubs that could enrich city coffers by as much as $300,000 a year.

If the ordinance becomes law, big money is ready to move into Compton. One group is ready with $2 million to build three plush "pan" parlors, and other investors wouldn't be hard to find. Already the city clerk's office has been deluged with inquiries about how to get the licenses.

The city's financial health, according to City Manager Howard Edwards, is marginal now, and if it doesn't improve soon, deficit financing will be necessary next fiscal year — "if we continue to provide the same level of services."

The current budget is $15,168,282 and includes about $6 million from federal programs and a reserve fund of $875,555.

The city is eligible for a new federal revenue sharing program, Edwards says, but there wouldn't be any help from that source until at least Sept. 1973.

Meanwhile property taxes are frozen at $1 per $1,000 assessed valuation, and cannot be raised without a charter amendment. A ballot proposal to do this was soundly defeated last year.

These are the facts proponents will cite — along with reports of low tax rates in Gardena and increased city revenues everywhere card clubs thrive.

Opponents won't argue the need for money — only the means of getting it.

Church leaders, the NAACP, and city policemen are among the most worried.

The first group — the Compton Ministerial Association and the Compton Baptist Ministers Conference are long standing foes of card club proposals which have been raised intermittently during the past 15 years. They and NAACP members have already filed anti-card club petitions bearing 300 signature with the city clerk. More petition are expected before Tuesday.

These groups plan to be at the council meeting in force at 3 p.m. that day to try to convince their elected representatives not to pass the ordinance. If their effort fails, they have vowed to launch a referendum drive.

Whether or not opponents can have their say at the council meeting is not known. City Manager Edwards says the council is not required to listen to further discussion since there has already been a public hearing, and since the first reading of an ordinance is the traditional time for opponents to be heard.

MAYOR Dougla Dollarhide, who will preside at the meeting, has been unavailable for comment since the Aug. 1 vote.

However, opponents think they will be allowed their say, and if they aren't, they say this action will only add impetus to their referendum drive.

Typical of the opponents' reactions is the statement by Clarence Reed, president of the Compton

Auto insurance rates confusing--but it's all based on involved risk

By BILL DUNCAN
Staff Writer

If your home in Long Beach butts up to the Orange County border, your neighbor across the county line is probably paying a lot less for his automobile insurance than you, even though the garage where he parks his insured car may be directly across the street from yours.

The amount he pays may vary from $49 to $160 a year less than your auto insurance.

Why such a variance in insurance rates?

The simple answer, according to an Allstate Insurance agent, is that Orange County has fewer automobile accidents.

It also has fewer cars than does Los Angeles County and is beyond a magical dividing line that establishes insurance rates.

INSURANCE companies base rates on what the industry calls "loss experience," or, in other words, the number of claims an insurance company has to pay.

"There are just more accidents in Los Angeles County than in Orange County," said a state official who watchdogs insurance rates.

The whole of Los Angeles County has higher automobile insurance rates than those charged in Orange County, or any of the neighboring Southern California counties, but even in the county itself rates are higher in some areas than in others.

For instance. Long Beach automobile insurance rates are cheaper than those in Metropolitan Los Angeles. Rates in Pasadena are even lower than in Long Beach.

There is a different rate charged in San Diego County, and in Ventura, Santa Barbara, Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

For the layman, most of the rating system is so much insurance double talk, but it is based on solid statistics. It varies so, that even the terrain you live in has something to do with how much you are charged for automobile insurance.

FOR EXAMPLE, in Inyo-Mono counties, drivers pay a higher rate for collision insurance than those in Los Angeles County. The reason is that the terrain is mountainous and when a collision occurs the car involved is usually totalled.

"Rating is very complex facet of the insurance business," said Harold Dickson, an insurance executive with the Automobile Club of Southern California. "We try to be as fair and equitable as possible and when you are dealing with as many automobiles as the Automobile Club, nearly one million insured cars, the experience in rating is usually very accurate." It is so accurate, said another insurance executive, that the rates charged by insurance companies for the same area will vary very little. "Some may sell cheaper to be competitive," he said, "but on the average you will discover the rates are fairly uniform. If you get a cheaper rate, you usually sacrifice some coverage to get it."

There are inequities, however, and not just between the cheaper rates charged in Orange County as compared to those charged in Los Angeles County.

For example, the county is divided in zones so it is possible that a dividing point in Inglewood may be down the middle of a street — one side will pay a lower rate than the other.

"The breaking point has to happen some place," said Dickson.

AUTOMOBILE insurance is figured similar to fire insurance, said Hal Wallace, an agent who handles both fire and auto insurance.

"If I'm going to write a fire policy for a home in the brushlands, you can bet the rate is going to be higher than a comparable home in Long Beach. The risk is higher and insurance is based on risk. The same would apply to insuring a driver who lives in Anaheim where the loss ratio is smaller than in Long Beach."

What happens if that Anaheim driver has an accident he caused in Long Beach?

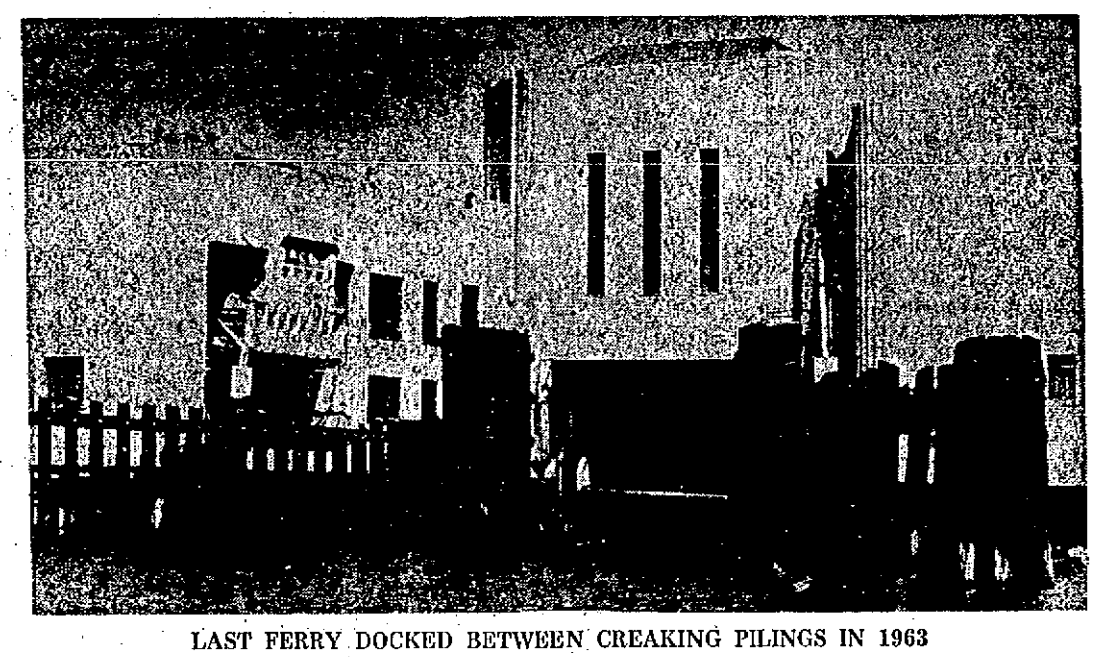

"That accident is charged to Orange County," Dickson said. Automobile insurance is sold in a variety of ways, which deepens the confusion over rates.

The cheapest policy, called IA insurance, is on the car used by a housewife for shopping trips. The next cheapest is on the vehicle driven to and from work, so long as the distance is short. It increases when the commuter drives a longer distance, because, insurance people say, there is "more exposure to accidents."

And even higher if a driver under 25 years old uses the vehicle.

Cost is also based on the model and year of the vehicle insured. Cadillacs cost more than Fords.

There are also rates for high-risk drivers and low risk drivers. Some insurance companies even lower the rate for non-smokers and non-drinkers.

LAST FERRY DOCKED BETWEEN CREAKING PILINGS IN 1963

TERMINAL LANDMARK

Ferry Building to be razed

The 31-year-old tunnel-shaped Terminal Island Ferry Building, used by 69,282,138 riders of the San Pedro-Terminal Island "nickle grabbers," is about to become a victim of port progress. The Los Angeles Harbor Department is razing the building and satellite structures to clear the way for construction of a barge-ship wharf. During the 22 years the building served as the island terminal for the two ferries, Islander and Ace, 11,011,655 autos and trucks bottlenecked down to a single one-way lane while stopping at the tollhouse to pay for the channel crossing. All fares for crossing in either direction were collected at the island ferry building. The last ferry docked between the creaking rows of pilings Nov. 15, 1963, the day the Vincent Thomas Bridge opened. Demise of the ferry service cut off the means for mainland workers, mainly cannery workers, to reach the island on foot. The State Toll Bridge Authority would not permit the ferry service to compete with traffic across the new bridge. There is currently an effort being made to persuade the state agency to relax its restriction to allow operation of a pedestrian-only ferry between the mainland and the island, location of seven fish canneries.

You rang for ice, sir?

TWO MEN WHO do research for the Rand Corporation think there is a cool way to solve the water shortage in Southern California.

They want us to lasso icebergs in the Antarctic, hook them up into long trains and tow them up here.

The voyage would take about ten months, delivering fresh water at a cost of $25 an acre-foot.

This compares with the current $60 per acre-foot paid to bring us water from Northern California.

I DON'T THINK it would all be quite so simple as it sounds.

It seems to me there would be pitfalls right from the start.

In the first place, who owns the icebergs?

Little America has a claim, but only a claim.

A lot of other countries have Antarctic interests, including Australia, Britain, France, New Zealand, Belgium, Sweden, Norway, Argentina, Chile and the USSR.

Chile and the USSR alone might be enough to put the whole project in the deep freeze.

And another thing—if you lasso an iceberg, what have you got?

You have latched onto one-fifth of it. The other four-fifths are under water, dragging anchor.

THE PRIME ICEBERG season arrives whenever there is a good thaw, which is not exactly every other Wednesday.

Where can you find an experienced iceberg wrangler?

The U. S. Navy would call for volunteers and years later a little boy would climb onto his grandfather's knee and pipe:

"Grandpa, what was your rating when you were hauling icebergs?"

And Gramps would have to answer:

"Cowboy, Iceberg, 2nd Class."

Then there's the Sierra Club. It would raise a hue and cry about desecration of the wilderness.

A Penguin Protective League would be organized overnight, with a slogan lettered on the parkas of the members:

"Don't Drag Our Cool Feathered Friends into Hot Water!"

PPL would picket the Metropolitan Water District.

THERE WOULD BE some advantages.

During their 10-month voyage the iceberg jockeys could be issued a daily ration of martinis, or enough to tow a train of 'bergs up the Los Angeles River at low tide.

The Metropolitan Water District could add variety to the inspection tours it offers to the Chamber of Commerce, and other boosters.

Instead of tracing the pipelines to Arizona the happy inspectors would watch the roundup of the supercubes at Little America.

On either trip they would still come home by way of Las Vegas.

It would be nice to have water pouring out of the tap below the usual temperature of 92 degrees.

However, it would take three days to heat enough water for a shower.

By 1989 we would have used up all of the icebergs from the Antarctic and half of those from the Arctic.

Little America would be the new Riviera, with three Hilton Hotels and a Holiday Inn.

It would be the only resort in the world with waiters hinting for tips in English, French, Belgian, Scandinavian, Spanish and Russian.

The researchers from Rand Corporation should think about that before things get out of hand.

Democratic ruin predicted

H. L. Mencken, the sage of Baltimore, was the most brilliant of America's political writers, although not always the most prescient of its political analysts.

In search of relief from the gray prose that floods over us all in a modern election year, we turned to some well-aged Mencken columns the other day. We found what we expected in the way of caustic comment — "Very few presidents have had IQ's as low as Grant's: even Harding was appreciably brighter" — but we also found some passages that Democrats today might like to take as an omen. Since there is little enough to cheer Democrats these days, we thought we would pass them along.

"THEIR PARTY," Mencken observed, "is no party at all but simply an illogical and uncomfortable compound of irreconcilable factions . . . The two sides hate each other with a hatred that is bitter and incurable. Each on occasion has gone over to the Republicans, openly and with loud hosannahs, to beat the other. Neither would hesitate to do it again tomorrow.

"I see no way to compromise the differences between these factions over platform and candidate. They are at the opposite poles, and will remain there. A full half of them go home convinced the standard-bearer is a fraud and a scoundrel, and virtually all of them are strongly against the platform. . . .

"The history of the party is one long record of ambushes, treasons and kidnappings. It has always turned upon its own leaders, and it has always deserted and made a mock of its so-called principles."

NO ONE, Mencken added, "really likes" the Democratic candidate, "not even his own ostensible friends, and no one quite trusts him. . . . He was not only a man of relatively small experience and achievement in national affairs, he was also one whose competence was plainly in doubt and whose good faith was far from clear."

Both bookmakers and "practical politicians" put the odds against his victory at 10 to 1, Mencken reported.

Nor was Mencken writing out of some deep and venomous Republican conviction. He announced that he would personally vote Democratic to get rid of the incumbent GOP president "and his camorra of Republican blacklegs."

MENCKEN ADDED that he feared "there will be insufficient Americans of like mind." His conclusion: "The Democrats seem to be committed irretrievably to fraud and imbecility. They will keep on making an indecent spectacle of themselves until they bring their party down to ruin, and maybe the nation with it."

And why should that contemporary-sounding commentary comfort the party of George McGovern? Because the year in which Mencken wrote it was 1932 and the candidate was that most successful Democrat of them all, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Should racist be censored?

"Hard cases make bad law," the lawyers say, and certainly the proposed radio censorship of J. B. Stoner in Atlanta is about as hard a case as can be imagined.

Stoner is running for the Democratic nomination for U.S. senator. He has taped radio commercials replete with racial epithets that make them repugnant to decent people. He apparently has no chance of winning the Democratic primary Tuesday, but he has ample chance to exacerbate racial tensions in Atlanta.

Consequently, Atlanta Mayor Sam Massell has appealed to the radio and television stations to reject Stoner's commercials. The stations contend that it is illegal to censor political commercials, although they say they deplore Stoner's.

In general, it is best to let extremists have their say. It is easier, however, to enunciate that doctrine in Long Beach than it would be in Atlanta, where Stoner's racism could inflame unstable members of both the black and white communities.

If the commercials continue, however, and if they have no palpable effect except to contribute to a massive defeat for Stoner, democracy and racial justice will have been served. And the people of Georgia will be entitled to extra pride in their state.

Some funny goings-on in Sacramento

SACRAMENTO—Members of the legislature, individually and collectively, perform deeds which appear peculiar from time to time, and sometimes enough of those peculiar deeds occur close enough together to demand notice.

Last week was an example. As the session neared its midsummer recess, the legislature had before it measures which, in effect:

—Flagrantly violated the clear meaning of a government code section.

—Offered a cash incentive to obey the law.

—Inserted the state into a struggle between competing businesses, joining one enterprise against another.

LIKE MANY EMPLOYERS, the state rewards employes for money-saving suggestions. Government Code Section

Bob Schmidt

VIEW FROM OUR STATE BUREAU

13921 states that an employe may be awarded an amount equal to 10 per cent of the money saved by his suggestion in the first year following implementation of that suggestion.

State employes have been led to understand that the word "may" actually means "shall."

Some 10 years ago a water project engineer made a suggestion that was implemented and is saving the state an estimated $868,200 yearly. The Board of Control, which administers the merit awards program, generously gave the employe, Fred Clawson, $150, and, after some protest, agreed to ask the legislature for $5,000.

After many years, San Diego County Assemblyman John Stull put in a bill to give Clawson his 10 per cent, $86,820. The bill was approved by the Assembly, but the Senate Finance Committee cut the award back to $32,950. This past week the Assembly went along with the lower figure.

William R. Gianelli, director of the Department of Water Resources and Clawson's boss, opposed the award entirely, saying Clawson was hired specifically to make such suggestions as he made. The legislature disagreed, but once having made that policy decision ignored the accepted interpretation of the code section it had written long ago.

A PROPOSED constitutional amendment, which cleared the Senate before running into a snag on the Assembly floor, would actually give a tax write-off to businesses that elected to obey the state's antipollution laws.

Making the write-off available will induce businesses to install costly antipollution equipment, sponsors of the measure contended, and the resulting benefits to society will exceed the cost of letting businesses write off the cost of that equipment.

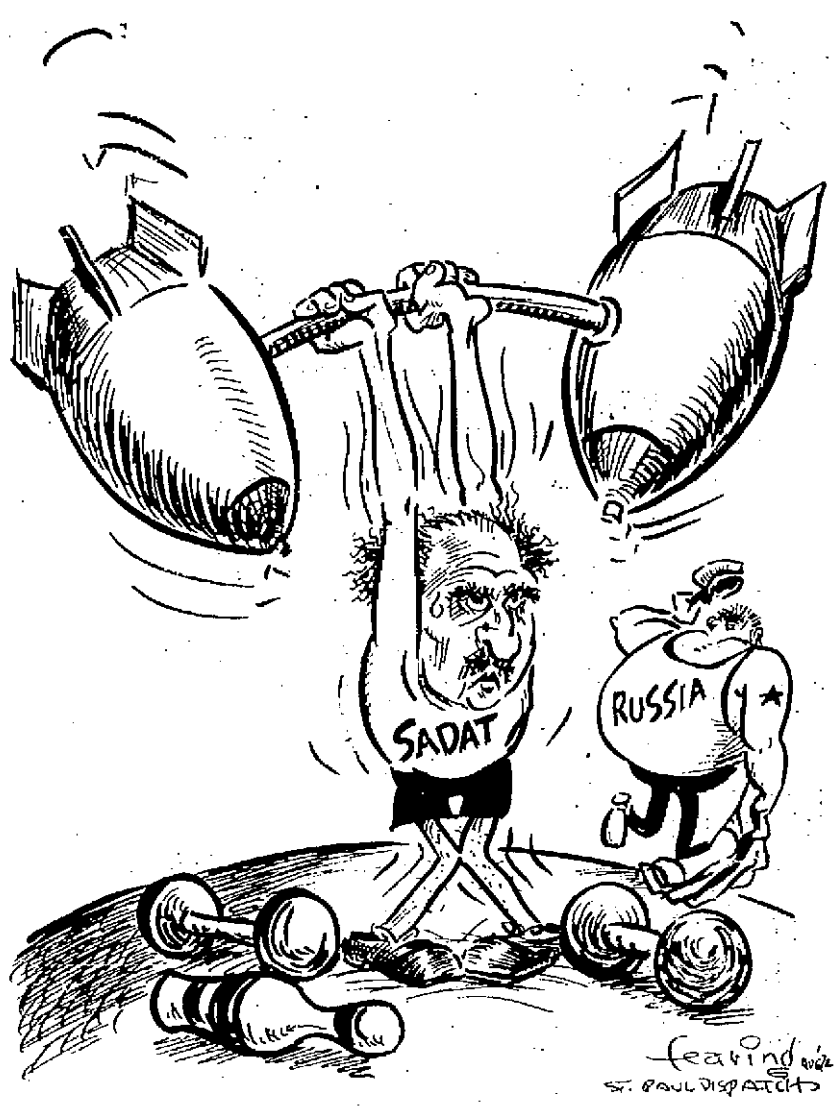

To implicate the picture somewhat, the legislature earlier this year approved a measure making loans available to businesses for installation of antipollution equipment.

For most people who think the existence of a law compels obedience, and who feel that the penalties awaiting violators are a deterrent to potential lawbreakers, the concept of inviting compliance by proferring money is a novel idea. In addition, of course, that lost revenue is going to have to come from someplace.

FINALLY, SOME morticians in San Diego thought they were losing business to a society offering low-cost funerals to subscribers. The society would cremate bodies and scatter the ashes at sea, at a fraction of the cost charged by funeral parlors for their services.

But the state, at the urging of San Diego Sen. Jack Schrade, is taking steps to put the societies out of business.

Remember when there used to be something called free enterprise?

Examine candidates

EDITOR:

I agree with your comments on Eagleton's lack of candor in not informing Senator McGovern of his past medical history before the Democratic convention.

I also feel, and very strongly, that all aspirants for high office, especially the presidency and vice presidency, should be forced to undergo a complete as possible physical and mental examination by a panel of the most competent and impartial experts in both physical medicine and mental health.

Is it not more than passing strange that any lunatic with the backing and all the money can run for the highest office in this land, and hold the lives of all its citizens in the palm of his hand, while an applicant for a peace officer's position must take a formidable battery of physical and mental tests before he is even considered for the job?

Long Beach MRS. LEONARD F. MORELAND

Who benefits most?

EDITOR:

Is the new 20 per cent Social Security raise supposed to help the needy or to add more to the people who already are making a decent living?

If a single person who is getting along on about $125 a month adds 20 per cent, this will add up to $149. If another person who has made top wages during their life receives a 20 per cent raise, their Social Security will amount to $220 to $264 a month.

Who is getting the most benefit—the person who is barely able to make ends meet or the person is who getting along nicely on Social Security?

The litter at Anaheim Bay and the Colorado Lagoon is a disgrace. People want recreational facilities and then they destroy them.

This is truly the decade of the "slob," juvenile and adult alike. Can't litter laws be enforced?

No cause for pride

EDITOR:

A writer in this column referred to the Vietnamese as "those poor animals" in Hanoi. It is precisely this kind of attitude toward human beings who happen to be Asians that permits this war to continue.

This, the richest country in the world has spent nearly a decade dropping more bomb tonnage on the Vietnamese than any country in the history of warfare. This is not a proud achievement.

Fortunately there are many Americans who, like Jane Fonda, know our war against the Vietnamese people is a tragic blot on America, equalled only by our slaughter of the American Indian, who, like the Vietnamese, fought for their own soil.

Long Beach MRS. E. DAWSON

Just keep cool

EDITOR:

The days are hot but what other spot could we find in this lovely nation of ours where we could go to the beach and cool our heels and feel like millionaire Hughes?

So keep saying and believing, "cool it—cool it."

Clean up the Pike

EDITOR:

We appreciate your leadership in the effort to stop gambling in our city and to clean up the Pike area. We reproduced your editorial of July 21 in a letter to our members and they voted to request the city government to do a complete job of cleaning up the Pike area and to stop gambling in the city.

We are trying to get other organizations to support the effort.

Secret health reports used to purge foreign service

As difficult as the recent ordeal of Sen. Thomas Eagleton has been, the debate over his suitability as a vice presidential running mate for Sen. George McGovern has been in public.

Many governmental employes are dismissed each year on the basis of medical and psychiatric reports which are never made public. In some cases, the employes who are dismissed never get a chance to see the governmental reports which were the basis of their dismissals.

EVIDENCE GATHERED by the American Federation of Government Employes (AFGE) indicates widespread rigging of medical records as grounds for firing foreign service officers. The report said the State Department isn't the only government department engaged in this practice.

Recent reports of two other groups have corroborated the use of false documentation in connection with unfair arbitrary action by personnel officers.

One of the other reports is by liberal crusader Ralph Nader's study groups on the civil service system. The other is by a subcommittee of the traditionally conservative American Bar Association (ABA).

SENATOR EAGLETON admitted his mental problems and voluntarily sought medical help. He at least has been in control of access to his own medical records.

Deputy Undersecretary of State William Macomber, who has been in charge of departmental personnel administration for the last three years, has opposed enactment of legislation that would guarantee public hearings for foreign service officers, the right to call witnesses and examine records, and the right to a truly independent hearing board.

Clark Mollenhoff

THE EVIDENCE has been convincing to Democrats and Republicans ranging from such liberals as Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., to conservatives such as Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, and Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio.

When a government employes' union, a group headed by Ralph Nader and the ABA are playing essentially the same tune, it is reasonably certain that the conclusions are not based upon either ideological or partisan considerations.

Nader's report concluded there was widespread falsification of records and perjury involved in the firing of civil servants who displeased their superiors, slaughter of the American Indians, who,

The subcommittee of the conservative ABA investigated only the State Department, but found "a grim record" that appeared "a consistent, deliberate policy of denying to foreign service officers and employes the right to a hearing of their grievances by an impartial hearing officer or panel."

THE ABA REPORT noted that a former State Department personnel officer admitted several hundred grievance cases arose during his seven-year tenure and that "a hearing was granted in only one case." That hearing was granted only as a result of White House intervention.

"Not only have these deprivations (of due process) violated the legal rights and dignity of the individuals involved, causing them untold personal anguish and suffering and, in some cases tragedy, but they have inhibited, if not crippled the efficiency, and effectiveness, and morale of the foreign service, a key instrument, if not the mainstay, in front-line defense of the United States in the field of foreign relations and diplomacy," the report of the ABA administrative law section said.

The ABA commented caustically that Macomber's administrative reforms put forward as substitute for the new legislation "fail to provide such basic guarantees as the right to a hearing, the right to representation at all stages of the proceeding, the right to a transcript of the hearing, the right of access to documents relevant to a grievant's case, the right to call witnesses under the department's supervision or control, and to cross-examine witnesses."

The ABA noted "a further serious deficiency" in Macomber's procedures in the "lack of assurance of an independent board or panel as the hearing forum." It noted that Macomber's office would have a role in selecting all of the outside members of the panel and that others would be selected from employe groups directly under his authority and control.

"On balance, and in view of all the background and circumstances of the long and excruciating struggle of foreign service officers and employes to secure fair, just, impartial and even-handed consideration of their grievances, it would be almost unconscionable to further delay guaranteeing to these deserving public servants the fundamental elements of administrative due process to which, under law, they are entitled but of which they have been wrongfully deprived for too long already.

SENATOR EAGLETON HAS at least had the opportunity to have his case weighed in public.

Contrast this with the secret tribunals that have taken place in recent years in the State Department where personnel specialists have denied hundreds of employes the basic right to a grievance hearing, and secreted documents that in many cases would have revealed the serious rigging of records.

Even when the wronged employes sought publicity on their cases, little more than a whimper got through to the public. Without a right to records and a public hearing, it was largely the word of a high State Department official against what was usually pictured as a "disgruntled and slightly unbalanced" chronic malcontent.

Press inquiries into such cases are usually met with a bureaucratic admonition that "a mental problem" is involved, and requests for specific proof on the "mental problem" is always met with an explanation that such medical records are "confidential, for the protection of the employes."

Senator Eagleton was fortunate he didn't have such "protection" from a big brother personnel office.

BERRY'S WORLD

"If you can't sleep, Ralph, try thinking of the Republican convention!"

L.A.C. Says

By L.A. COLLINS SR.

Not what you earn but what you save

There has long been a saying that "It is not so important what you earn, but what you save." It would appear the people are adhering to this principle as the growth of savings becomes greater each year. But actually many families are not adding to personal savings. The large amounts of savings are accounted for by the families in income brackets above $7,500 a year.

It is believed emphasis on importance of saving has been decreased by Social Security old-age pensions—and by prepaid medical and hospital insurance. It is argued that these social securities are in fact savings. The family would have to personally save for the part of medical bills which are now paid for from insurance programs. Part of these costs are deducted from the worker's pay. Or they are entirely paid for by the employer. This also applies to federal pensions or that of added private retirement plans.

THERE IS ALSO a more or less compulsory factor in the way the majority of people are purchasing homes. With small—or no—down payments, they pay for the home by monthly installments. In many cases the interest, taxes, insurance and principal are included in one monthly payment. The homeowner often does not even see the tax bill. He does not know the amount of his interest payments. His only shock comes when he is told he must increase his monthly payments because taxes or insurance cost have been raised.

This easy way of virtual compulsory savings extends to purchases of automobiles, home appliances, clothes and even vacation trips. Many families operate finances on the basis of how much they can pay out on such projects. The idea of personally saving the money before it is spent does not occur to them.

The result of this trend is that the people are paying out a large portion of their income for interest charges. They often find that the usefulness of the products so purchased has little value by the time it is paid for. But by that time they are ready to buy another to be paid for months or years later.

CHILDREN ARE raised in an atmosphere of the family living beyond its actual earnings. Today's comforts and pleasures are to be paid for in the future. The idea that government will take care of their old age and medical bills becomes more prevalent. There is no need of personal savings because government or a union contract does it for them. It is natural that children raised in this atmosphere have little conception of the value of money or habits of personal savings.

It is tragic when families waken to the fact that old-age pensions do not cover the needs of old-age retirement —or that they are not fully covered for some catastrophic illness in the family. It is equally tragic to awaken to the fact that easy credit has led them into a situation where their income cannot keep up with the payments.

For almost 40 years we have lived under New Deal-Fair Deal policies which have brought the people to this state of mind. The boom inflation period of the past 10 years has brought wage increases faster than higher living costs. But along with this has come a demand for even higher living standards.

THIS IS A NATURAL aspiration of a people. But there is a grave doubt as to whether it has been good for the people. As many of them have lost their responsibility for individual saving they have become more dependent on having others do it for them. The danger is that the trend will lead to complete dependence on government, which in the end will destroy the right for individual responsibility and incentive.

Only heat hits cities in summer

(Editor's note: The author is a member of the editorial board of The New York Times.)

By JOHN A. HAMILTON

This is another of those deceptive occasions when, on the surface of things, a return to the past may seem like progress of sorts.

THE TALK OF the hot summer this year has been more like the talk of a decade or so ago. The "hot" refers once again to the humidity and temperature rather than to social problems and urban unrest.

While no one can be sure the present trend will continue until fall, the record shows that the nation's cities have been remarkably tranquil so far this year.

There has been a gradual decline in urban rioting over the past few years and explanations for this decline vary. The police tend to share a once-burned, twice-shy theory. Once a city has been scarred by a riot, saddened by its tragic human losses, there seems to be less chance that rioting will soon recur. Historians who detect parallels between domestic and foreign violence suggest that the de-escalation of the Vietnam war has caused a de-escalation of urban rioting as well. Some sociologists who explained earlier rioting in terms of a "revolution of rising expectations" offer the view that the Nixon administration's "benign neglect" may have dampened expectations.

NEW YORK CITY'S commissioner of youth services, Ted Gross, believes that "improved community relations" have helped defuse otherwise explosive situations.

The Lemberg Center for the Study of Violence at Brandeis University detects what a spokesman calls "the institutionalization of violence"—the movement of violence from streets to schools and prisons.

The violence now, however, does not seem to be concentrated in the summer; it does not involve whole urban communities. This is refreshing. What is deceptive about this calmer summertime is that all the difficult social problems exposed so vividly by the urban rioting nonetheless remain.

ACCORDING TO THE Bureau of Labor Statistics, unemployment remains inordinately high for minority groups. In June, for example, it said that there was a national 28.7 per cent unemployment rate for nonwhite youths between 16 and 19 years of age. The New York City Health Department reports lower infant mortality rates, considered a poverty index but naggingly high out-of-wedlock birth rates. Last year one in five births in the city was illegitimate.

The Census Bureau also reports an increasing disintegration of black families. It says that 32 per cent, or almost one-third, are now headed by females. The blacks have made some employment improvements — they hold more white-collar jobs in New York City than ever before—but blacks tend generally to earn less than whites and females to earn less than males. The black, female-headed family is at the bottom of the economic pile.

There is tinder for trouble here. The lack of urban rioting must not be allowed to mask it. And, even without this rioting as a reminder, there is work to be done.

Fruit flies set example for us

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Charles Sutton

The year was 1969. It could as well have been 1972, for the philosophical differences that divided the scientific community then still divide it into the same ecological camps today: the optimists, and the doomsayers.

Dr. Jonas Salk, an optimist, addressed an aerospace conference in Anaheim that year. He told the assembled scientists and technicians that notwithstanding the population explosion man would somehow come through in the end.

COMPARING THE human species to a fruit fly population, the developer of Salk vaccine said man would instinctively apply the brakes to his own growth when the time required it. A self-regulating biological mechanism of sorts, the same device that comes into play when a fruit fly colony is threatened with extinction through overpopulation — would make itself felt among humanity's masses, he said. The rising population curve would bend over and level off.

The scientist wouldn't predict precisely when this would happen, but he added confidently: "It's simply in the nature of things."

The self-regulating mechanism, like an intuitive response to danger, was already operating, in his opinion. It was operating most dramatically, he thought, among the young, where new attitudes and a new life style were evidently taking hold.

ELSEWHERE THAT YEAR, Dr. H. Thomas Harvey, associate dean of the School of Natural Science and Mathematics at San Jose State College, offered a different prognosis. "Chances are," he said, "we'll be extinct."

Harvey, a pessimist, declared that "99 per cent of all species that have inhabited the earth are extinct: it's not unusual for organisms to create conditions they can't tolerate."

It looked like a case of "You pays your money and you takes your choice."

Three years later, that still looks like the case. Science remains divided. The pessimists feel man is doomed unless he drastically alters his life style and curbs his procreative powers. The optimists believe technology will save us from our predicament, even if we don't change our ways radically.

SALK WAS A curious optimist. Unlike the other optimists, he based his faith in the indomitability of man not on technological considerations but on cultural and biological ones. He saw in many of the youth the beginnings of a new kind of man: one who places cooperation above competition, and who is concerned more with prolonging the life of the species than the life of the individual.

In a sense, the issue of survival is a question of whether man will try to accommodate himself to nature, or continue to rely on his mastery of it. But as ecology becomes increasingly intertwined with politics the question of survival becomes more difficult to isolate from the issues that inevitably flow from it.

We're beginning to discover that our day-to-day options are more numerous and more complex than we first imagined. In any event, ecology, for all its philosophical implications, is no longer the exclusive property of the scientists. It is the property of all of us, for it is all of us who must make the hard decisions that lie ahead. We discovered that painfully in the bitter struggle over Proposition 9, the Clean Environment Initiative.

Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger apparently had the same sort of thing in mind when he decided to sponsor a three-day conference on "the critical problems of survival in our environment." The conference — billed, rather dramatically, as a Survival School — begins Monday in Los Angeles' Ambassador Hotel. It will be open to the public without charge.

PRECISELY WHAT direction it will take — if it takes any at all — is impossible to predict. But it seems fair to say that this year's meeting, compared to a similar one convened a few years ago by Governor Reagan, will be more hard-headed, more inclined to deal with the costs of environmental housecleaning.

Among those scheduled to speak at the conference are John W. Abbott, executive secretary of California Tomorrow, and Lester Lees, director of the Environmental Quality Laboratory at Caltech.

As they see it, the conference will have to consider more than environmental policy: it will have to weigh the social implications of that policy.

In the future, for example, it may not be enough for environmentalists to fight for a moratorium on land development in a given area. They may also have to consider how to alleviate the plight of the carpenters and electricians who would be put out of work as a result of the move.

IT SEEMS OBVIOUS that we're approaching a period when environmental policy will have to be closely tied to social and economic policy. Whether this will mean a greater or lesser reliance on technology remains to be seen.

One thing seems likely, though: the introduction of economic and social policies will probably sharpen the difference between conservative, liberal and radical elements of the environmental movement. That, in all probability, will mean politics as usual.

PRESIDENT NIXON gives Pat 32 yellow roses, one for each year of their marriage. It's a nice gesture and probably worth the risk of losing the average-husband vote.

You never saw such zucchini

SCRABBLE, Va.—These are vacation days for me, after a manner of speaking. Column deadlines have to be met, and radio-TV commitments have to be kept, but this period between political conventions offers time to find pleasure in the glories of gardening and in the life and times of Rappahannock County.

The best of all ways for a man to find pleasure in the glories of gardening is to find pleasure in the glories of his wife's gardening. This relieves him of both responsibility and labor, but permits him to share equally in the harvest. By dispensation of Providence, my wife has green thumbs, while I have—ah, thumbs. She works; I admire.

WE ARE NUTS, in a modest way, on this business of organic gardening. Such gardening involves an abiding commitment, to paraphrase the Prayer Book, to the earth: All things come of thee, O soil, and of thine own have we given thee. Just about anything that grows goes back—and more besides.

This means compost: grass cuttings, shredded leaves, kitchen garbage, and because we live in cattle country, an occasional seasoning of dried meadow muffins. The stuff mounts up, rich beyond the dreams of J. Paul Getty, and up here we need it.

For the Good Lord, when He got around to making Rappahannock County, was thinking in terms of rocks and red clay. Without compost, the most patient raking yields nothing but sullen clods. But once a few cartloads of compost have been dug in, and turned over, and dug in again, the plot begins to smile and the earthworms appear. One of these days, so help me, I shall compose an Ode to the Earthworm. He may be the humblest of God's creatures, but he is a thing of beauty all the same.

EARLY THIS YEAR we bought some 2 x 6 planks, and against the advice of Organic Gardening magazine, which is no more infallible than the rest of the press, coated them firmly with creosote. The magazine says creosote will kill every tender root that comes in contact with it, but it's not necessarily so. Anyhow, we built half a dozen in-the-ground frames, each 6 x 12 feet, and another frame 6 x 27, and heaped them knee-deep in compost. Behold our Virginia plantation.

Now, in early August, the lettuce has come and gone, and the snap beans have had it, but everything else is going superbly. We planted one box in black-eyed peas, the Noble Legume, and will harvest the first luxurious mess this weekend. The tomatoes, cucumbers, lima beans and cantaloupes are producing in abundance. Zucchini is what we grow best. You never saw such zucchini. Not even Mr. Burpee, the seed man, ever saw such zucchini. These are zucchini by Cellini; they are works of art.

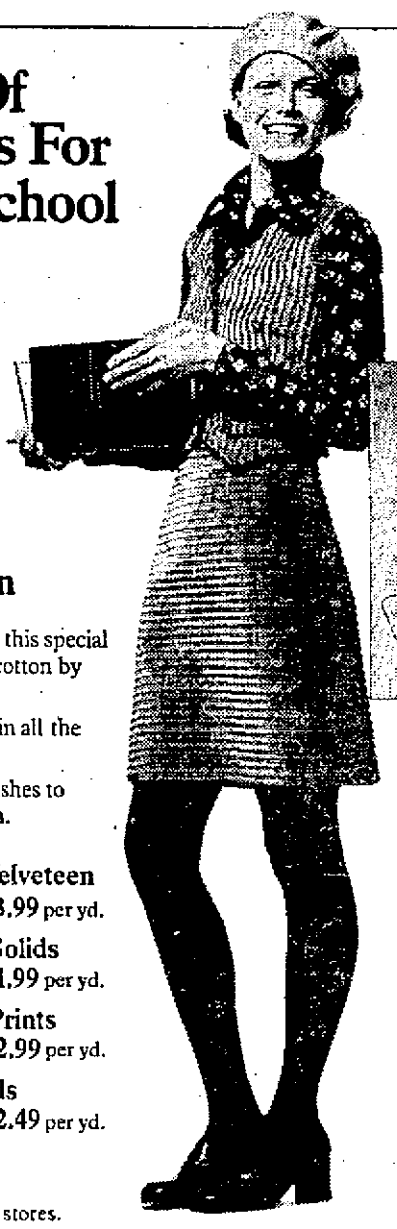

As one consequence, the kitchen smells heavenly most of the time. It smells of vinegar and dill and the spices that go into chutney. The pantry shelves are glowing topaz and emerald. My function is to sit at the kitchen counter and applaud.

MEANWHILE, ONE reads the Rappahannock News and the Piedmont Virginian, to find out how our war against Progress is going. We are doing fairly well. One of the splendid things about this beloved country is that Rappahanockers positively oppose Progress. We will have none of it. With only two exceptions, in 1880 and again in 1920, our county has lost population in every census since 1850. We are down to 5,199 now, and it makes a man quietly proud. We are dead set against subdivisions, supermarkets, big dams, power lines, and all Civic Improvement.

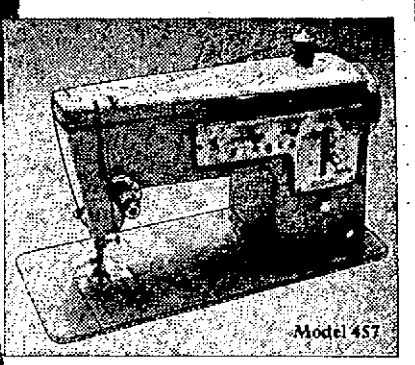

The lead story last week had to do with a bear that broke into two houses at Broad Hollow, a few miles away. He tore up a door screen and ate a can of bacon drippings. I read the piece aloud to my wife and then glanced out the kitchen window: No bear, but just then a doe and a buck leaped a rail fence in Mr. Mainwaring's pasture, as gracefully as Fonteyn and Nureyev, and waltzed slowly out of sight. After a while, the quail marched up for dinner. Miami Beach, I will tell you, is ten thousand miles away.

THE FLAGS OF THE color guard created a V-like frame for Rep. Craig Hosmer (R.-Long Beach) Saturday when he spoke at the commissioning of the USS Bristol County. The tank landing ship is the 20th commissioned by the Navy and th e 17th activated in Long Beach. The Bristol County will be based here.

700 aboard 3 warships home

Saturday was homecoming for 700 men on three Long Beach warships.

The missile destroyer USS John Paul Jones, destroyer escort Francis Hammond and the destroyer Higbee returned from a demanding seven-month deployment with the 7th Fleet in Southeast Asia.

The vessels were involved in a variety of operational tasks.

In February, while the Higbee proceeded into the Tonkin Gulf for naval gunfire, search and rescue and carrier escort duties, the Jones and Hammond were in the multinational exercise Seahawk with other Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) allies.

WHEN 7TH operational tempo increased after the North Vietnamese invasion of South Vietnam, the ships were ordered to provide pinpoint naval gunfire support for beleaguered South Vietnamese troops.

They also struck targets along the North Vietnamese coast.

The Higbee survived a direct hit by a 250-pound bomb delivered by a MIG17 and wounded three crewmen. She returned to Subic Bay, Philippines, for repairs and was back on the gunline a month later under the command of Cmdr. R. R. Zulkoski.

The MIG17 was downed an hour later by a Terrier missile f om the frigate USS Sterett.

Hammond, commanded by Cmdr. P. J. Doerr, spent much of the deployment on carrier escort duties and for another month provided gunfire support for allied forces.

The Jones, who during combat flies a replica of the Grand Union which was hoisted first by the ship's namesake Dec. 3, 1775, maintained tradition by engaging 550 enemy targets, inflicting serious damage. The Jones' skipper is Cmdr. R. A. Christian.

ON MAY 8 all three ships fired a daylight mission against military complexes in the Haiphong Harbor area.

Hours later the Navy laid its aerial mines.

Capt. R. D. Pace, commander of Destroyer Squadron 9, returned also Saturday with his staff aboard the Jones.

Other squadron ships are the Badger, still overseas; the T. E. Chandler, just out of overhaul; and the newly commissioned Brewton.

DON WILLIAMSON, president of the Bellflower Host Lions Club, bared an arm to become an advanced donor to the Red Cross Bloodmobile, which will be in Bellflower Wednesday. At left is Mrs. Clair Burkhart, a member of the board of directors of the Tri-Cities Red Cross Unit.

Red Cross Bloodmobile to visit Bellflower Wednesday

The Bellflower Host Lions Club is sponsoring a visit from the Red Cross Bloodmobile Wednesday.

Don Williamson, club president, said the Bloodmobile will be at the Bellflower Odd Fellows Hall, 15720 Clark Ave. from 3 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

"We are hoping to collect 150 pints," Williamson said.

Those wishing to contribute are asked to contact the Tri Cities Red Cross Office at 10251 Artesia Blvd., Bellflower.

Burglar steals $230

Leonard Brownjohn of 6527 Johnson Ave. told Long Beach police Saturday burglars forced a bedroom window in his home and took $230 in cash.

TV set stolen

Burglars forced the front door at L and P's Furniture Co. at 4507 Barker Way and took television sets and lamps valued at $325, police said Saturday.

20th tank landing ship commissioned

The Navy has now commissioned its 20th and last in a series of new tank landing ships.

The USS Bristol County, the 17th activated in Long Beach, was commissioned Saturday at Long Beach Naval Shipyard by Rear Adm. V.G. Lambert, commander, Naval Base Los Angeles-Long Beach.

Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, gave the commissioning address.

The 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing Band from El Toro provided the music in the 62-minute ceremony, and appropriately too, for the Bristol County is in Long Beach's Amphibious Squadron 7 and has facilities to carry 800 combat ready Marines and their equipment.

CMDR. Donald L. Waggoner is the ship's first commanding officer.

Congressman Hosmer said that "today we are aware of the reality that the Communist world is no longer unified and monolithic. Rather it is strained inside by major centrifugal forces.

"This realization has seen the U.S., under the Nixon Doctrine, now recognizing defense priorities like this:

"Continental defense, protection of communication lines, maintenance of alliances, protection of U.S. overseas interests and maintenance of a capability to assist in local conflicts when advisable."

Hosmer added that there has been a "new look" in the world since the People's Republic of China was recognized by the United Nations.

NOW THE People's Republic is looking west toward Russia as its greatest peril and Russia is looking east in the same way.

"The remarkable acquiescence by the Soviet Union in the last few days to withdrawal of its forces from Egypt may be in response to a perceived need for arrangements in Europe and the Mediterranean while the problem of Asia is dealt with," the congressman declared.

Bristol County is named for a county in Rhode Island with a 300-year seafaring tradition. — Buck Lanier

Golf gear stolen from parked auto

Roy Goodwin of 4801 Clair Del Ave. told Long Beach police Saturday that while his car was parked near his home burglars forced a wind wing and took golfing equipment valued at $275.

Council to decide Compton's gambling future

"We are trongly opposed to legalizing card clubs in our city. We conducted an investigation and found that the amount of revenue the proponents claim will go to the city will all go for extra police protection that will be needed to take care of the problems that always accompany such a move.

"IT IS A known fact," Reed said, "that the crime rate increases, the dope traffic increases, and prostitution increases when this kind of thing comes into a town. And it's a known fact that no more industry will come in once a town has card clubs."

Already this year, there have been 31 murders (four of them unsolved).

The all time high was 29 in 1969.

"If things keeps on at this rate, we could double the 1969 record before the end of the year," a gloomy homicide sergeant admits.

In addition to the highest per capita homicide rate in the nation, the ciyt has the highest car theft rate (5,713 last year), and the highest incidence of crimes of violence — rape, armed robbery and aggravated assault — of any town of comparable size in the state.

A POLICE force of 142 works for a lower wage than counterparts in any city of comparable size, and the drop out rate is now about three a month. Those who quit move on to jobs where the pay and benefits are better, and none of them have any trouble getting jobs, according to former co-workers. "After you've worked in Compton you've really had experience," they say.

There are two men on the homicide division handling the 31 murders, one man no the vice detail, and downstairs on the complaint desk the calls sometimes back up for several minutes at a time. Despite this, the city proposed that the force be cut by 19 this year.

As one sergeant put it at morning briefing late this last week:

"If you think we have trouble now, watch what happens if the ordinance passes."

One high commanding officer estimated that the force would have to be doubled to adequately cover the increased problems: additional patrols, investigating license applications, and the expected general rise in crime associated with gambling losses and arguments.

CARD CLUB proponents deny that any such troubles would materialize. They quote the Gardena police chief who has said for many years that the clubs have never posed extra police problems.

One of the proponents is councilman Wilson Buckner who in May, 1970, first urged the group to legalize card clubs "to take advantage of statet laws allowing games of skill." He estimated a minimum of $250,000 annual revenue based on license fees — plus gross revenue shares and fringe benefits of new business which might be drawn to the city.

Subsequently, the city studied the issue intermittently for two years, held a public hearing in Feb. 1972, and three months ago asked the city attorney to draft an ordinance.

WHO IS READY to establish Compton's newest industry — legalized gambling?

Los Angeles attorney James Gordon, a Wilshire Boulevard barrister with a 26-year practice, represents, along with his Compton co-counsel Phil Carter, a group of about 20 stockholders who are ready to build three-pan-quingue palaces.

"These are all Los Angeles county people," Gordon says. "Some of them are former clients. None of them have interests in Gardena. None of them are interested in draw poker clubs — they'd rather leave that to Gardena . . . Three corporations would be formed as soon as the ordinance is passed, and the three clubs would be comparable to the nicer ones in Gardena."

Gordon says he has suggested that the principles endow a Compton Boys Club where invited "name athletes" would come to give lessons to local youths.

COMPTON'S ordinance, patterned after the Gardena law, includes slightly higher percentage fees to be paid the city, yet Gordon says the initial thinking of his group is that the "pan" limit would be $5 a game (it is $20 in Gardena.

Gardena's six clubs gross about 18 million a year and pay $1 million each year to the city in revenue taxes—plus substantial contributions to civic projects.

What kind of customer volume would be necessary to make the big profits traditionally accumulated by gambling enterprises?

"These clubs would be designed for and patronized by out-of-towners," says Gordon.

COMPTON'S working people, a majority of them middle and low income, traditionally have played cards for money in homes and garages, and local residents say that's the way it will always be. However, a game minimum of 50 cents or $1 which Gordon says his group has considered, could change the existing local custom.

Why does Gordon's group plan to offer only Panguingue?

"There's nothing to explain its popularity except that it exists," the attorney says "On a recent holiday at Elsinore, for instance, I counted 300 people lined up at 11 p.m. to get into a pan club. I know the games are always crowded in most of the 15 other cities in the state where it is legal."

GORDON continues: "This group I represent is very concerned about establishing the right kind of operation in Compton. They want it to be properly run — not the kind of thing where Internal Revenue would be breathing down their necks."

He concludes: "After all, Californians are not opposed to gambling, according to the polls. And people are going to gamble. . . Look at the success of off-track betting in New York, the profits in Las Vegas . . .

"Let's face it — this can be the answer for cities with financial troubles. It's the coming thing," he declares.

Two Southland firms win $32-million atom fuel pact

Two Southern California power companies will share a $32.7-million contract for atomic fuel at the San Onofre Nuclear Generating Station in San Clemente, it was learned Saturday.

San Diego Gas and Electric Co. and Southern California Edison Co., joint owners of the nuclear plant, will share one of three contracts signed by the Atomic Energy Commission to provide uranium-enrichment services to four electric power companies across the nation.

Total value of the contracts is $670 million.

Largest of the contracts, $634 million, went to the Carolina Power and Light Co. Under the agreement, the AEC will provide enriched uranium for seven nuclear reactors in three generating stations over the next 30 years.

An AEC pact with the Rochester Gas and Electric Co. for $2.8 million is for uranium to feed a nuclear power station in Ontario, N.Y.

Elephant killed after trampling circus trainer

SUDBURY, Ont. (AP) — Tina, a killer elephant, was led to a garbage dump Saturday, shot with a high-powered rifle and buried in a pit.

The 11-year-old animal killed an assistant trainer Friday. She was shot by an officer of the Ontario Natural Resources Ministry.

Tin's owner, Dolly Jacobs of Tacoma, Wash., said the animal had to die because no zoo could be found in Canada or America that would take her. Tina was described as "a really bad animal."

The elephant trampled to death Chester Longe of Tresham, Ore., as he unchained elephants in the Canadian International Circus, which was here for a weekend stand.

Suspect in wife slaying free on bail

HOUSTON (UPI) — A real estate executive accused of shooting his estranged wife 13 times on the driveway of their home because he was despondent over her divorce action was released on bail Saturday, one day after the killing.

Authorities found Rene Harriet Mandell, her body punctured by 24 bullet holes, lying on the driveway Friday.

William Max Mandell, 44, was arrested a short time later and charged with murdering his 36-year-old estranged wife. He was released Saturday on $50,000 bond.

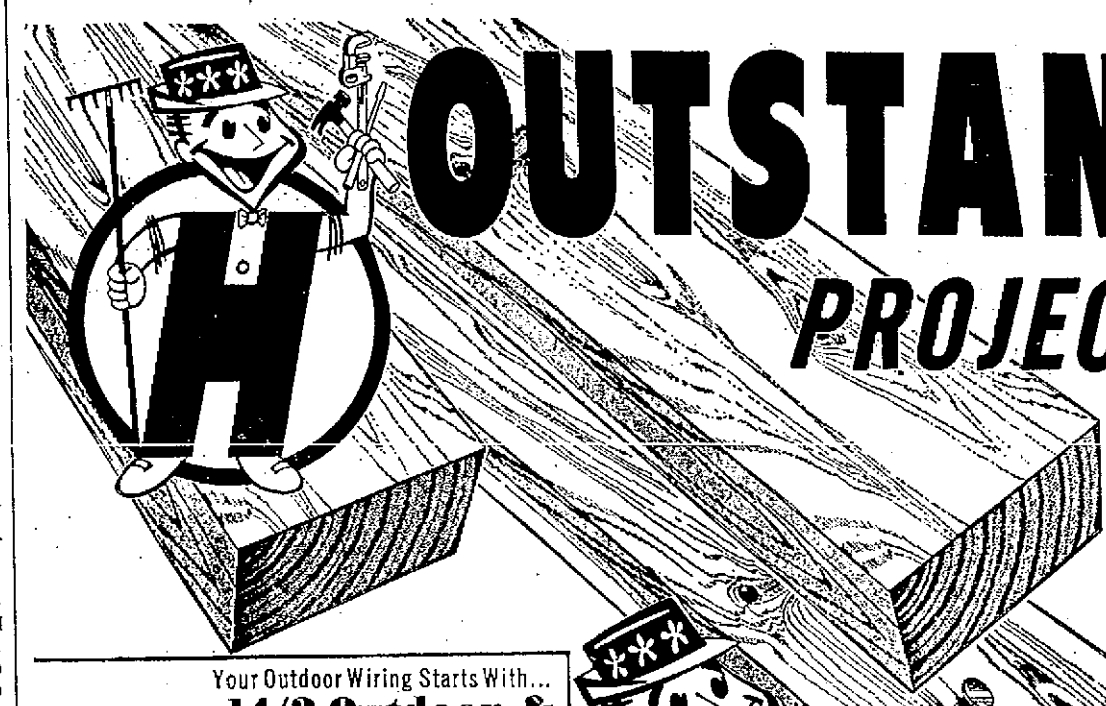

Sam S. Minter, Mrs. Mandell's attorney, said the real estate executive was despondent over the divorce petition she had filed two months ago.

Mandell surrendered to police without resistance. Officers said they took a revolver, an automatic and a full clip of automatic pistol ammunition from Mandell.

Father and son meet in prison

LONDON (UPI) — Henry Collins, 44, and his father had not seen each other for 35 years. Prison brought them together again.

Police said the elder Collins was serving time at London's Wandsworth Prison for handling stolen goods when his son showed up there on remand after pleading guilty to a begging charge.

JOEY, 9, WINS PRIZE -- DATE WITH RAQUEL

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — A date with Raquel Welch was Joey Randia's prize when he contributed $200 to a flood relief telethon last month.

So Joey and Raquel had lunch together in a New York restaurant, chaperoned by the 9-year-old boy's family.

"I was going to bid on a pair of skates," the Cherry Hill Little Leaguer said, "but when they said I could get a date with Raquel Welch, I changed my mind." He said he raised the $200 by saving his allowance and gifts.

Jane Fonda -- the revolution from a 'proper young lady'

Editor's Note: When Jane Fonda made her first movie, an acquaintance described her as "a proper young lady." She's still young, but the descriptions have changed. She's called revolutionary, Communist and even traitor by some. Mary Campbell asked her about that transformation prior to her trip to Hanoi.

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — What path did Jane Fonda take from Daddy's little girl to Hanoi?

Jane, daughter of Henry, did her first acting, just after high school, with her father in summer stock, in "The Country Girl" in Omaha and "The Male Animal" on Cape Cod. She did her first movie, "Tall Story," with her godfather, Josh Logan producing and directing. An acquaintance says she was, then, "a proper young lady."

Those days, spearheading the traveling anti-Army FTA Show, showing up in North Vietnam for two weeks, bragging that her suitcase contains a few tops and a couple pairs of slacks. She is called a lot of things, but "proper young lady" isn't among them. Some think she's a Communist or a revolutionary or guilty of treason.

"I DON'T think I know enough to say I am a such and such and so and so politically," she says, as she stops in New York en route to Hanoi.

"I'm not a revolutionary. I'm an actress with revolutionary politics."

Rep. Fletcher Thompson, R.-Ga., asked the attorney general to bring treason charges against Miss Fonda, saying that Radio Hanoi had quoted her as urging U.S. military personnel in Vietnam to disobey orders. Before she left for Hanoi, she said, "Who are we (the cast of the FTA Show) to tell soldiers? We don't have to go to the brig. I don't think that our job is to tell them not to fight, or what to do. We're showing them there is support of their antiwar sentiments."

The present Jane Fonda was born, full grown, 2½ years ago. She says, "I reached the age of 32 and discovered I'd wasted 32 years of my life. I realized it because of the war, because of the kind of questions that the Vietnam struggle is forcing us to ask ourselves about who we are, what our country means and what we're doing."

THERE'S no doubt, she says, but that she'd have developed revolutionary politics sooner if she'd been living in the United States. But in 1965 Miss Fonda married French film director Roger Vadim, whom she met when he directed her in "Circle of Love" in Paris. She settled into life in France and family life, which included daughter Vanessa, born in 1968.

"So I split. I think it's sad so many people want to leave America. I think you should come back to your country when it is going downhill.

"I got off the plane in Los Angeles — I had been in India on the way and Indians were on my mind. Ramparts Magazine was on a newsstand there. On the cover was an American Indian woman looking angry and the words "Red Power." I thought, what is this? It blew my mind. I hadn't known anything; I couldn't believe what we had done to the Indians.

"When I get an idea, I usually plunge in. I plunged.

"In trying to make up for 32 wasted years I went very fast and tried to make contact with as many people as possible." Miss Fonda spoke out on women's rights, demonstrated on behalf of welfare children and California farm workers and arranged bail for some Black Panthers charged with illegal possession of weapons. Then, she says, she decided to concentrate — "on ending this war — helping to have that happen.

"The war relates to everything. What we're doing to Vietnam is exactly what we did to American Indians, not only in terms of killing them off and destroying their land but pitting them against each other. We're destroying their culture. That is racism and genocide and we have a history of that."

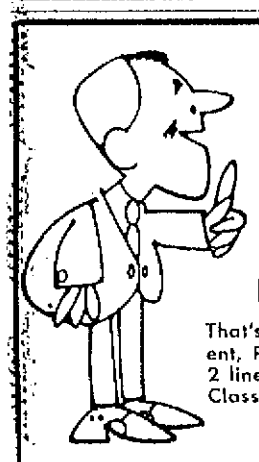

THE ACTRESS'S vigorous pronouncements have been criticized as "politically naive but sincere" and worse. Indian singer Buffy Sainte-Marie has said that Jane Fonda has hurt some causes by not knowing enough about them. Miss Fonda says, "I read a lot. I don't know everything, obviously If you're a movie star and an uppity woman and miss a fact or, make an error, people come down very hard. I don't mean to come off like I know everything.

"What I feel is based primarily on observation and what I've read."

So is the next step the violent overthrow of the American government?

"To me revolution means rapid fundamental social change. I don't believe that the kind of change that is necessary is going to happen through evolution. Who wants violence? I don't. I hate violence. But I don't think it is going to be up to us to decide The American government fashioned a war against the Vietnamese people. It doesn't allow the Philippines or Latin America to live in peace. So why does anybody think the U.S. government, working in the interests of corporations, is going to let the American people live in peace, the moment we begin to threaten their interests?

Jane Fonda was nominated for an Oscar for "They Shoot Horses Don't They?" last year but did not win. This year she won for "Klute." Some have speculated that the climate in Hollywood has become more accepting of an actress with revolutionary political ideas. Miss Fonda says, "I guess they just thought I gave a better performance. I thought so, too."

Legend of Hank Williams is ever present in his son

BY MICHAEL WILLARD

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — He is thin-haired and lanky like his father and his songs are wailed with a certain heartache. The shadow of the legendary Hank Williams is ever present.

"I think daddy left me with some of his talent," said Hank Williams Jr., 23, as he sucked cool soda pop over a sore tooth he has been nursing. "But I wouldn't say he left me with all of it."

IT WAS New Year's Day, 1953, when Hank Williams' life of triumph and torment was cut short at age 30. He was found slumped in his Cadillac on a lonely highway, dead of a heart attack.

Nearly 20 years later, his sandy-haired son peered through dark glasses in a room maintained by his manager. On the couch, Williams' pretty wife, Guen, was watching a soap opera on color television.

"I guess you could say I was born on stage," said Williams as he lifted the drink. His diamond-studded ring, shaped in the form of a "W", glistened.

The young singer was wearing fresh-pressed blue denims jeans and a chocolate brown workshirt. He spoke in a slow, easy drawl — a "haunting" resemblance to his father, one music publisher remarked.

"No, I don't believe I was ever exploited," answered Williams after pondering the question a half minute. "I wanted a guitar at five but my mother held me back."

Three years later, however, the training and grooming of Hank Williams' son began in earnest, apparently following a script dictated by legacy with the approval of high-powered recording executives.

"IT WAS really a big thing with them. They wanted to get out the first thing of Hank Williams' son," recalled the performer. "I began working about 30 to 50 shows a year and meeting everybody in the business."

At 14, the singing teenager was working more than 200 shows a year and had recorded his first song for MGM, his father's "Long Gone Lonesome Blues."

"My voice was still changing at the time and I personally didn't think it was too hot," Williams said. The record sold more than 300,000 copies.

If Hank Williams Jr. did not have his father's name, would he be a success?

Again he thought for a long moment. "If my name were Joe Smith, I might not have any talent," he said. "I wouldn't be the son of a legend in country music.

"The big name put you on the stage, but if you didn't produce you wouldn't be on it very long."

YOUNG HANK has produced. Beginning with "It's All Over But the Crying," he has written three songs which have become No. 1 hits. He is consistently at the top of the country charts.

Still, he has had only one gold album signifying a million dollars in sales and that was for "Your Cheating Heart," recorded as a sound track for a movie about his father. The album consisted of the then 16-year-old son singing his father's biggest hits.

On the other hand, more than a million copies of the late Hank Williams' records were sold in 1968 in Japan alone.

"The people who come to my performances know Hank Williams Jr. They knew Hank Williams. And they know there is a lot of him in me," said the singer who inherited a legend for a legacy.

EARL WILSON

265-lb. James Coco underweight

NEW YORK — James Coco, who now weighs 285, "almost 100 pounds too much," and goes on prolonged fasts, may have to fatten up if he accepts a role they're pressing on him — that of Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle in the famous 1921 Hollywood scandal over the death of actress Virginia Rappe.

"I did a lot of reading about it and I'd like to do it," the plenty plump Jimmy said the other afternoon after returning from Italy where he, Sophia Loren and Peter O'Toole filmed "Man of La Mancha."

In Arbuckle's third trial," I mentioned to Coco, "the jury acquitted him and also wished him success in what was practically an eulogy."

Coco nodded several of his chins. "But what happened to the man is more important. It still didn't convince the public. He wanted to get back on stage and do his vaudeville act. But they would yell 'Murderer' and 'Beast,' and boo, and throw things at him. There was nothing left for him to do but die of a broken heart."

ARBUCKLE weighed 320, had a $26,000 Rolls-Royce, and was a lovable clown who suddenly became a monster. Coco would like to help clear his name for that part of the public that doesn't remember it was cleared in the third trial...51 years ago.

Coco was in Italy for seven months enjoying the companionship of Sophia Loren doing "La Mancha."

"That is a pro, that is one lady, a great broad!" he said. "I played poker with her constantly. She beat me all the time. She is a lousy loser and a nasty winner. She gloats. She told me she was expecting again which probably means she will not be moving for nine months."

"HOW WELL did you handle the music?"

"We all did our own voices. Sophia's and mine are in. They might dub O'Toole's. I never heard him do the big song."

Coco, a 47-year-old bachelor from the Pelham Bay part of the Bronx, who has won an uncounted number of acting awards, claims he didn't put on a lot of weight in Italy. "I was so nervous about riding my mule that I couldn't eat regularly."

Sipping an iced coffee, Coco said, "I got kinda fond of that mule. Peter O'Toole said he was going to buy me a mule for Christmas."

Coco was departing for Easthampton where he's taken a house. He's near the Dustin Hoffmans, Al Pacino and the Dick Cavetts. Coco's interested in the Presidential campaign — pro-McGovern.

He picked up a huge bag, as he started for Easthampton.

"What's in the bag? Your lunch?"

"Food," he scoffed. "FOOD! Now he was contemptuous of it. "Shaving gear — and an apple."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A comic who'll marry soon was told his bride would wear something old, new, borrowed and blue. "Great," he said, "...she can use my act."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Someone described a day when everything went wrong: "It was the kind of day that should have quit when it was still morning."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "You can easily judge the character of a man by how he treats those who can do nothing for him." - Malcolm S. Forbes.

EARL'S PEARLS: One of the B'way bookies believes that two heads are better than one — and has the coin to prove it.

A businessman complained he didn't have enough beers in the day to do his work. "Give up smoking," he was advised. "...and then the days will seem endless." That's earl, brother.

1 million bellyachers a year

Nourish dietary knowledge, avoid food poisoning

By CHARLES HINCH
Staff Writer

Fourteen golfers staged a match in Long Beach sometime ago. Losers had to cook dinner for the winners.

But the winners turned out to be losers that night because something went wrong. The guests came down with food poisoning.

With nausea, dizziness and cramps, the sufferers joined an estimated one million other Americans who each year fall victim to an illness whose underlying causes, say health authorities, are carelessness and lack of knowledge.

"HARDLY anybody can tell you the temperature inside his refrigerator," said L. G. Estes, director of the division of environmental health for the city of Long Beach's Department of Public Health, "but it's something everybody should know. Readily perishable foods should be kept at 45 degrees fahrenheit or less.

"But not too much less," he added. "Lettuce and eggs will deteriorate at 32 or 33 degrees. If apples freeze they'll start rotting from the center outward."

In August and September, when the mercury can stand at 100, householders are opening their refrigerators far more often and the interior temperature can rise above the acceptable level before they realize it, health department officials pointed out.

STATISTICS aren't kept on simple, individual cases of food poisoning in Long Beach (of which there are believed to be hundreds each year) but records on so-called "outbreaks" in which a number of persons become ill are maintained.

Figures for the last four years show that there were seven stricken in a single outbreak last year; 25 in another in 1970; 38 in still another in 1969 and 160 in two outbreaks in 1960. The latter resulted from food served at a wedding reception and a graduation dinner.

City health officer Dr. I. D. Litwak has a number of brochures which detail the preventive measures housewives and food service workers can take. The booklets also discuss some of the more common methods of food poisoning.

"BACTERIA thrive under the same conditions that people enjoy," says one of the booklets. "They need warmth moisture and food to survive and reproduce. Temperatures from 45 degrees to 140 provide ideal conditions for growth of pathogenic (disease producing) bacteria.

"Bacteria prefer many of the same foods we do," the brochure continues, "particularly those which are high in protein and moisture — such as milk, milk products eggs, meat, poultry, fish, shellfish — and such products as cream pies, custards and potato salad. Because these foods support the rapid growth of pathogens, they are considered potentially hazardous."

In the preparation of poultry (whether for salad, fried chicken or roast duck), Estes said, "every fried chicken or roast part of it should be heated thoroughly to at least 165 degrees to destroy any salmonella bacteria which may be present.

"There is only one way to be certain that these products have been properly heated and that is to use a thermometer," Estes continued. "It should be inserted into the center of the thickest portion of the meat."

ESTES said often the temperature at the center of the turkey will not reach 165 degrees and the giblets in the stuffing can introduce the salmonellosis organism into the human system.

Trichinosis, a tiny parasitic worm, is found in the muscles of pork. It is transmitted to humans when the meat is raw or undercooked, Dr. Litwak said.

All pork or pork products, Estes said, should be heated to an internal temperature of at least 150 degrees.

"In the case of custard, bake it in the serving dish or crust. Unless the completed pastries or custards are to be served immediately, refrigerate them promptly at 45 degrees or below and keep them at this temperature until served."

The common sources for botulism, Estes said, are home canned meats and low acid preserved foods such as string beans, beets, corn and the like which have been prepared by the so called cold pack method.

The temperatures of the method, he continued, cannot always be relied on to destroy botulism spores; thus, professional canners use high temperature plus pressure methods; and homeowners seeking to avoid the deadly disease can use pressure cookers.

ESTES pointed out that not once had he used the term ptomaine poisoning. It was once used as a synonym for botulism, he said, but it has fallen from favor with professionals because of its lack of accuracy.

A few "nevers" offered by Dr. Litwak and Estes include:

Never use your hands to mix foods when sanitized utensils can be used. Never work with food when you have infections because the germs may be a source of foodborne illness.

Orange Co. shakedown intimated

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Three investigators are working full time on the "criminal aspects of an alleged shakedown of a Fountain Valley farmer for official Orange County favors, it was learned Saturday.

They have collected a mass of evidence, including tape recordings of conversations dealing with the payment of $5,000 by rancher George Murai in a "setup" arranged by the investigators after he complained that he was being "pressured" for money.

Murai leases 213 acres of the county-controlled Mile Square Regional Park at Fountain Valley. He raises crops under a five-year lease currently up for renewal.

He told Supervisor David L. Baker of Garden Grove that he was being solicited for money, and Baker reported the incident to Dist. Atty. Cecil Hicks, who assigned the three top investigators to the case.

He said their work deals with "potential criminal" offenses and not with civil matters.

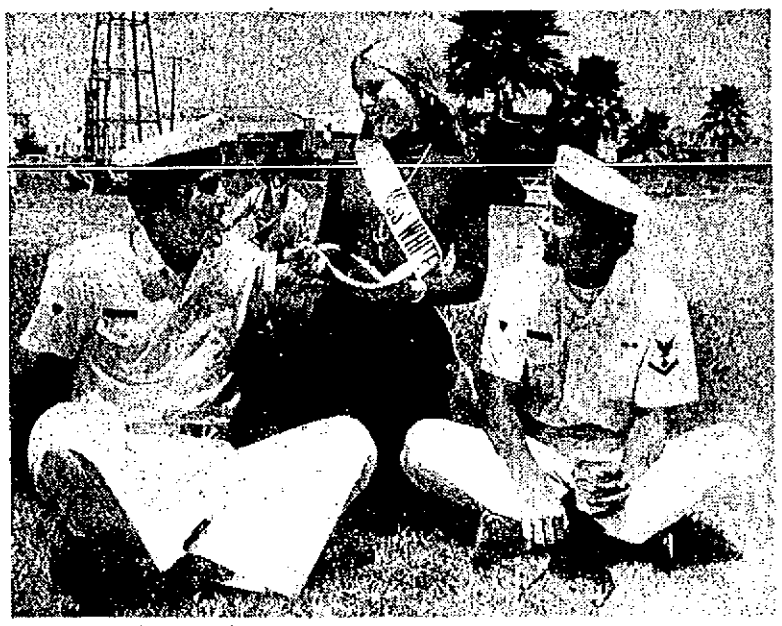

Hicks assigned Dpty. Dist. Atty. M. R. Capizzi to present the evidence to the Orange County Grand Jury on Aug. 22. He indicated that it will take two or more days for the testimony from 40 witnesses, including county supervisors, their aides and officials from west county cities. Supervisor Robert W. Battin of Santa Ana told the press that he is "one of those the grand jury is centering on," adding that if he is indicted, his campaign for re-election "is down the tubes."

Battin had first backed a plan to divide the farm lease into three to "encourage more bidding" but surprised his colleagues Tuesday by proposing that Murai's lease be scrapped and the farm land be planted with Bermuda grass.

In a press conference, Battin said he "had been told that Mr. Hicks hates my guts," but said he has faith that he will get a fair hearing.

Hicks replied that "there is nothing personal" in the investigation and denied that he has animosity toward Supervisor Battin.

"It's an investigation like any other," Hicks explained. "It's not directed against any one person," adding that "it is a potential criminal investigation."

NEW MISS WHITE HAT

Lovely Linda Richards of Lakewood took over as Miss White Hat for 1972-73 when Debbie Pierce asked to be replaced for personal reasons. Linda was first runnerup in the Independent Business Men's Association contest. The Coast Guard, celebrating its 182nd anniversary with a Terminal Island Base picnic Friday, invited the new representative of the area's enlisted men to attend. Her hosts were Electricians 3.c. Fred Vassar, left, and Bruce Rock. Linda will be crowned officially on Sept. 26 and her picnic escorts plan to be there.

Health Center dedication at Fullerton State slated

Groundbreaking ceremonies for a $2-million Student Health Center at California State University, Fullerton, are scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

Construction of the 25,000 square feet, one-story building is expected to be completed in the fall of 1973.

Located immediately east of the Physical Education Building, the health center will contain 22 physicians' examining rooms, four nurses - treatment rooms, two emergency rooms and two day-rest rooms.

Other facilities include an ophthalmologist examining room, otolaryngologist examining room, psychiatric suite, clinical laboratory, pharmacy, x-ray room, physiotherapy unit, computer room, medical library, conference room and main office.

Participating in the dedication ceremonies, in which an extra-heavy gauze bandage will be severed by an oversize scalpel, will be: James B. Sharp, associate vice president; Dr. John W. Davis, Fullerton urologist and chairman of the Student Health Center advisory council; Dr. William H. Wickett, Jr., center director, and Dawn Kehoe, a student assistant at the center.

The general contract for construction of the building was awarded to Mallcraft, Inc., of Sherman Oaks on a bid of $1.22 million. Separate contracts for landscaping and equipment are expected to raise the total to about $2 million.

The center presently located on the fifth floor of the Letters and Science Building, has a caseload of 300 patients.

Police officers' motorcycle safety course to be started in Anaheim

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

In an effort to cut down the number of accidents involving motorcycle officers the Anaheim Police Department has instituted a new course in how to handle a motorcycle safely and efficiently.

All of the city's motorcycle officers, plus the three sergeants assigned to the squad, are undergoing intensive monthly training sessions designed to improve their skills at driving their cycles under adverse conditions.

The course is patterned after the one given by the California Highway Patrol at its academy in Sacramento.

The Anaheim program is conducted by Sgt. Dwight Clark, who has just completed the 82-hour CHP course, and emphasizes highway and enforcement skills in addition the basic riding skills.

This involves taking the cycle through a series of "obstacle courses," set up with traffic control cones at the gigantic Anaheim Stadium parking lot, including S-curves, several zigzag courses which must be negotiated at varying speeds and a "braking area" where the cyclist is required to stop in a predetermined distance from a predetermined speed.

"It may look like fun", Sgt. Clark says, "and sometimes it is. But it's still a deadly serious business."

He points out that the CHP, through this type of training has cut its accident ratio from 21.1 accidents per million miles in 1968 to 11.89 accidents per million miles in 1971. Their goal for 1972 is 11.7 accidents per million miles.

Anaheim's record for accidents per million miles presently is 30.66.

"We hope to cut that considerably," Sgt. Clark says.

He is quick to point out that part of the reason for the city's high accident rate is the fact that more than one third of the motor squad officers have been replaced by new officers since last January.

In addition to the local training program the department is also studying a plan to send all of its motorcycle officers to the CHP academy for the full course.

In addition to riding skills the program, like the CHP one, also emphasizes basic preventive maintenance of the machine itself.

"CHP tests have shown that as long as the motorcycle is properly maintained," Sgt. Clark says, "only the rider can cause it to go out of control, even at high speeds.

"This was effectively demonstrated for our class at the academy by an instructor who skidded to a stop from 85 miles an hour using only the rear brake."

Consequently motorcycle officers are encouraged to make "preflight" checks of their machines before each shift.

Sgt. Clark emphasizes the importance of his course with a simple statement of fact, based on accident studies conducted by the CHP:

"Enforcement riding is the most dangerous of all motorcycle riding — even more so than motorcycle racing."

Concert series closing with Latin flavor

The final performance in the Summer Concert Series sponsored by the Southeast Recreation and Park District will be held at Norwalk Park at 2 p.m. today.

The musical group "Home Brew," playing Latin rock music, will conclude the series, which has provided free family entertainment for the past four Sundays. School.

Mission Viejo Casta del Sol for adults

Grand opening is under way at Casta del Sol at Mission Viejo, a new $15 million adult neighborhood in the northern hills of the Orange County community.

Designed for adults over 45 with no children under 21, Casta del Sol will feature its own $500,000 recreation facility, and will overlook a new 18-hole executive golf course.

Exceptional view sites are available in the first phase of 419 homes, on 92 acres overlooking Saddleback Mountain and the Oso Creek Valley.

Designed by Grossgold Associates, Inc., Seal Beach, Casta del Sol homes will be offered in two-bedroom, two-bedroom-with-den, and three-bedroom designs.

Prices will range from $26,995 to $34,995 with conventional financing available.

Nine models are available, each with four distinctive exterior elevations. Four of the nine may be purchased as single-family homes, while the five other models are available as duplex, triplex or fourplex. In either case, the home purchase includes the land.

Recreational facilities, designed by Craig Combs & Associates, Newport Beach, include a custom-designed pool, a hot therapeutic pool, shuffleboard, boccie bowling, physical fitness room, billiard and card rooms and kitchen facilities.

Membership is also available in all the other $3-million recreation centers in Mission Viejo.

Casta del Sol homes feature carefree all-electric kitchens with continuous-clean ovens, dishwasher and disposal.

Standard features include a fireplace, decorator-selected light fixtures, full insulation, luminous kitchen ceilings and an automatic garage door opener. Also included are "stubouts" for a built-in barbecue, an ice maker and an outdoor barbecue.

Carpeting is standard in the living room, hall, master bedroom and adjoining dressing area and closets.

Heavy shake roofs are also featured, although mission barrel tile roofs are available on some models as an optional extra.

Plan D, the Dona, features two bedrooms, two baths, living room, and a large multi-purpose area and kitchen, with an attached patio and a covered storage area.

Plan F, the Flora, is a three-bedroom, two-bath model with a spacious master suite featuring a dressing area, two large wardrobes and a compartmented bath.

Living and dining rooms have vaulted ceilings.

Plan J, the Juanita, is a three-bedroom, two bath home with a vaulted ceiling in the living room. The third bedroom easily converts to a study or den. The kitchen opens to a covered patio with an enclosed storage area.

Casta del Sol model homes may be reached by taking the La Paz exit of the San Diego Freeway to Marguerite Parkway, then Marguerite left to Casta del Sol Road.

JERROLD MILLERS . . . sure first at California Homes/Irvine

Couple sure No. 1 at California Homes

Being "Number One" involves sacrifice but the rewards are worth it — just ask Linda and Jerrold Miller of Anaheim who camped overnight in front of the California Homes-Irvine sales office to make sure they got the exact home and lot they wanted at the 10 a.m. grand opening of the new "Limited Edition" series of Presley Development Company homes.

Armed with doughnuts and blankets, the Millers arrived at the sales office on Walnut Avenue at 7:30 p.m.

"It was a beautiful night, complete with gentle breezes through the orange groves and even a cricket serenade.

"We were a bit cramped," said Miller, a Disneyland executive, "with Linda in the back seat of our Camaro and me stretched across the bucket seats in front — but we wanted to be first in line when the sales office opened."

AND FIRST they were. When salesladies Jean McGuire and Luanne Kralick unlocked the doors at 10 a.m., the Millers were at the head of a line of more than 30 buyers who had begun arriving at daybreak.

By noon, 20 homes, valued at $800,000, had been sold, setting a new two-hour record for the Newport Beach-based home-building firm. (A previous record of $512,000 was set in September 1970 when 16 homes were sold between 10 a.m. and noon at the grand opening of a unit of Parkside Estates in Fountain Valley.)

The new "Limited Edition" series, so named because only 137 homes are being offered on oversized lots adjacent to a greenbelt and a proposed two-acre park, includes five floor plans and 19 elevations, ranging from three to six bedrooms and two to four baths, with up to 2330 square feet of living area.

PRICES begin at $34,995 and include shake or mission tile roofs, fireplaces, shag carpeting, king-sized master suites with mirrored wardrobes, patio kitchens with ceramic tile, hardwood ash cabinetry and self-cleaning ovens, two- and three-car garages, wet bars, cathedral ceilings, cultured marble bathroom vanities with oversized mirrors, ceramic tile and cast-iron tubs, and complete fencing.

VA, FHA and conventional financing is available, with $100 total move-in cost for qualified veterans.

Villa McFadden has new features

Convenience of location, quality craftsmanship and competitive pricing are among the features of Orange County's newest condominium development — McKeon Construction's Villa McFadden in Santa Ana — in its preview opening.

Villa McFadden is on McFadden near S. Lyon, just one-half mile west of the Newport Freeway. Upon completion, this modern $3 million apartment home complex will cover more than 10 acres and will consist of 156 two-bedroom units.

Homes at Villa McFadden are offered under conventional financing terms at a price of $18,995 each, with a down payment of only $995 required.

THOSE who visit Villa McFadden today or during the next few weeks will be eligible to compete for a $1,000 cash prize or expense-paid trips to Hawaii or Acapulco.

Visitors to either of the other two Orange County McKeon projects — Casa De Capistrano and Huntington Beach, respectively — are likewise eligible to enter the contest.

Entrants must be 18 years of age to compete. No purchase is necessary.

ADDITIONALLY, the first of two contest drawings will be held today in the Villa McFadden sales office. The second drawing will be conducted later.

Standard home features offered to Villa McFadden buyers include plush wall-to-wall carpet, central heating, ceramic kitchen and bathroom, tile, insulated double walls, covered garages, underground utilities, inlaid vinyl linoleum in kitchen and bath, and a built-in electric kitchen with range, oven, hood, fan and garbage disposer.

A pool and cabana comprises the recreational areas, to be situated in two locations within the development.

Sales representative at Villa McFadden is Paul Johnson.

Mesa Verde shop center in expansion

Construction is underway on two one-story buildings and a connecting mall at the Mesa Verde Shopping Center at Adams and Harbor Boulevards in Costa Mesa.

The work involves expanding the existing shopping center by the addition of two retail shop shells and extending the mall area to the new buildings. The 37,800-square-foot building project is being handled by the Strauss Construction Company, Inc., of Los Angeles, for Harbor Boulevard Leasing Corporation of Costa Mesa.

Completion of the $420,000 expansion program is slated for December.

Gives notice

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois Central Industries, Inc., said the Federal Trade Commission has given notice of proposed complaints that could order the company to divest itself of the recently acquired Midas-International Corp.

Three grand openings going at Mission Viejo

Three grand openings are under way at Mission Viejo as new units are launched at New Madrid and Aliso Villas, and the final unit opens at New Eldorado, longest-running project in the community.

New Eldorado opens its 27th and final unit of 51 homes in an area off Trabuco Road, near Marguerite Recreation Center and a new shopping center under construction.

Since New Eldorado opened five years ago, more than 1,700 homes have been sold. The final unit offers four individual models, with a wide variety of floor plans and exterior elevations. When completed, the total number of homes in this project will be 1,776.

Designed with the youthful buyer in mind, Eldorado Homes are easy to maintain, have plenty of room for a growing family, and large yard areas for outdoor living.

NEW ELDORADO Homes are priced from $27,750 to $31,250, and offer three to four bedrooms and two baths.

New Madrid Homes, priced from $33,995 to $45,500, have had remarkable success, marking nearly 650 sales agreements in 16 months since opening in late Februaray, 1971.

The Casa Sandia plan 640 at New Madrid is a four-bedroom, two and one-half-bath home with an optional upstairs galleria study.

It features a two-level 27-foot master suite including a romantic fireplace and an expansive 27-foot family room also with a fireplace.

New Madrid homes are offered in three to five-bedroom, two and three-bath models.

THE FIFTH unit at Aliso Villas offers several new features. A dishwasher, shag carpeting and exterior wall insulation are included at no extra cost, and every unit is prepared for air conditioning, including all lines, ready for an instant hookup.

Aliso Villas is located in the rolling hills of northern Mission Viejo, near the intersection of Los Alisos Boulevard and Jeronimo Road. More than 225 units have been sold in slightly more than a year.

Prices range from $18,500 to $21,900.

Aliso Villas offers both two- and three-bedroom, one- and two-bath models in single-story or two-story floor plans. Standard features include step-down living rooms, walk-in closets and powder rooms.

All units have sliding glass doors opening onto either patios or sundecks, a private entry and enclosed garage.

Each home has its own separate, private utility area. Landscaping, home exteriors and common facilities are maintained by the community for a modest monthly fee.

ELDORADO model homes are located on Chrisanta Drive near La Paz Road.

New Madrid may be reached viaa the La Paz Road exit of the San Diego Freeway, left on La Paza to Marguerite Parkway, then left on Marguerite to the model homes.

Aliso Villas models are located at 23133 Los Alisos Boulevard, in the northern sector of the community.

FHA, VA and Conventional financing are available at New Eldorado and Aliso Villas. Conventional financing is offered at New Madrid.

Plans expansion

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Milacron, Inc., will spend $17 million to expand output of plastics processing machinery and of copper clad laminated circuit board. The expansions ultimately will add 650 workers to the company's payroll.

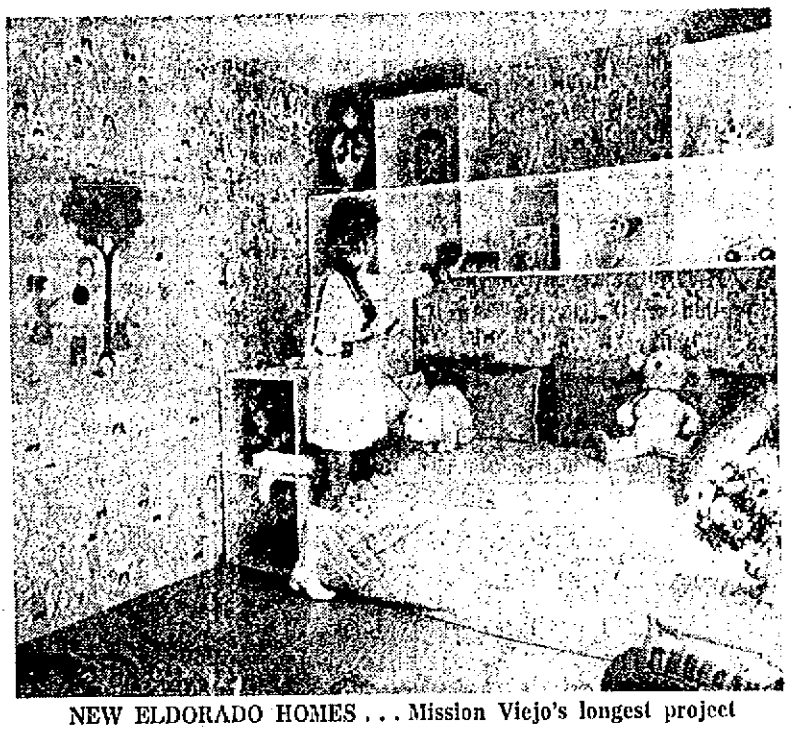

De Falco building in Bakersf'd

John A. DeFalco & Associates, Inc. of Anaheim, has completed plans for a 255-space mobile home subdivision at Pacheco and South Union Ave. in Bakersfield.

Investors are the Penrod Corporation of Sherman Oaks. Target date for opening the park is Dec. 20.

The park will be of the luxury type, completely modern, with most spaces 50 by 80 feet or larger. Streets will be 30 feet wide, or more, and will have rolled concrete curbs.

A 3500-square-foot clubhouse, costing $70,000, will contain assembly hall and dance floor, card rooms, hobby shop, billiard room and kitchen. The surrounding play area will have heated swimming pool, sauna baths, and therapeutic pool.

6-month net loss at Boise

Boise Cascade Corporation has reported, that after deducting a net extraordinary charge of $200,000,000, or $6.42 per share against second quarter income, it recorded a net loss of $196,070,000, or $6.30 per share for the first six months of 1972.

Net operating income in the first six months of 1972 was $3,930,000, or 12 cents per share, compared to the $4,740,000, or 14 cents per share, restated, earned during the same period last year.

These results include operating losses of $16,700,000, or 54 cents per share from businesses being discontinued, compared to similar losses of $5,670,000, or 19 cents per share which occurred during the same period last year.

Net operating income in the second quarter of 1972 was $1,510,000, or 4 cents per share, compared to the $3,760,000, or 11 cents per share, restated, earned during the same quarter a year ago.

Watt's Country Estates in preview

Preview opening festivities, including an exclusive fashion show, thoroughbred horse jumping exhibition and drawings for numerous door prizes, today will highlight the first of two Sunday preview openings of Ray A. Watt's $24 million San Diego Country Estates, a new residential-resort community located 44 miles northeast of San Diego.

Highlight of the day's activities will be a fashion show featuring "Clothes for the Country."

The fashion show was arranged in conjunction with the La Mesa Junior Women's Club to support local charities. Proceeds from the food and drink concessions, also run by the women's club, will be donated to charity.

Adding music and entertainment to the day's festivities, which begin at noon and continue until 5 p.m., will be the famous Hurdy Gurdy Band of Pete Lofthouse and the Second Story Men.

Master of ceremonies is KOGO radio personality, Ernee Meyes. Country games, including softball, volleyball and horseshoes, for both young and old, will also be played.

LOCATED in the San Vicente Valley, four miles south of Ramona, San Diego Country Estates is a master-planned 3,200-acre community nestled amid rolling hills studded with giant oak and sycamore trees.

The estate will combine a 6,630-yard 18-hole par-72 golf course, a $700,000 country club, an International Equestrian Center, tennis courts, swimming pools, miles of natural riding and hiking trails, overnight guest lodge and extensive equestrian facilities.

"San Diego Country Estates was envisioned as a place where people could see and enjoy the total environment," said Donal MacAdam, president of American Land Systems Co., the sales and marketing agent.

"With the rapid growth of urban areas, there are few places where people go, enjoy and live in harmony with nature. This is why we feel that San Diego Country Estates will be so popular."

THE TWO "Sunday in the Country" preview openings will be open to the public and free of charge with all proceeds going to local charities. Soon San Diego Country Estates will be an exclusive, private community for owner-members and their guests only, but for two Sundays, it's wide open.

Take the San Diego Freeway south to State Highway 78 (two miles south of Oceanside), proceed east through Escondido to Ramona, turn right on Main Street, then left on 11th St. (which becomes San Vicente Road). Continue south four miles to entrance.

Goal set for Ojai park

Construction has started on a 125-space mobile home park in Ojai, at the southeast side of Woodland Avenue and Rice Road.

The park, designed by John A. DeFalco & Associates, Inc., Anaheim, has an estimated construction cost of $395,000.

Investors are R. Keillor and Warren Scott of El Monte. Target date for completion is October.

All spaces will be a minimum of 50 by 70 feet. A 3200 square foot clubhouse is estimated to cost $70,000.

Facilities will include kitchen, assembly hall, card and hobby rooms, heated swimming pool, therapeutic baths, saunas, shuffleboard courts, and lounging areas.

Urge separate standards for light, heavy construction

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Real Estate Editor

National Association of Home Builders is urging approval of a Senate proposal for separate safety standards for the light residential construction industry and the heavy construction industry.

Testifying before the Labor Subcommittee of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee in Washington, NAHB President Stanley Waranch, of Norfolk, Va., said "we are in complete agreement with the objectives of occupational safety and health legislation."

However, Waranch said severe problems are faced by builders and remodelers of homes and apartments of three stories or less without elevators, because they have been placed in the same category with "those who construct skyscrapers, bridges and highways for purposes of the safety regulations issued under the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970."

Waranch attributed these problems to the action of the Labor Department in applying to "all construction, standards originally developed pursuant to the Construction Safety Act of 1969.

"The Federally contracted for or assisted construction covered by that Act is predominantly heavy construction," Waranch said.

"Thus the standards developed under that Act were designed with only heavy construction and its problems and hazards in mind. They were also developed without any consultation with representatives of the light residential construction industry, and the Advisory Committee established pursuant to the 1969 Act contained at that time no light residential builders."

Waranch credited the Labor Department with several NAHB-suggested revisions but criticized its "refusal to recognize the fundamental differences between light residential construction and heavy construction."

He urged "correction of this injustice" by approval of S. 3630, which would direct the Department to adopt separate standards for the light and heavy construction industries.

Mixed pace

California's building pace slowed during June, dipping below its month-earlier strong showing, despite sharp regional increases in homebuilding.

Security Pacific National Bank experts said that during June, California's building permit volume approximated $758 million, down from May's level of $767 million.

In contrast to this decline, new housing in California surged upwards to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 267,100 new dwellings, indicating a pronounced increase over the May forecast of 267,400 new units.

Although Northern and Southern California registered healthy May-June increases in building permit volume, Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys posted monthly declines.

Statewide permits for homebuilding and remodeling, the residential sector of the bank's report, totaled $511 million during June; in May, this sector stood at $515 million.

Continuing June's trend of mixed patterns throughout the state, Northern and Southern California reported comfortable gains in residential activity, while Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys registered monthly declines.

"Volume for conventional single family dwelling authorizations advanced sharply to $309 million during June, compared with May's level of $275 million," said Assistant Vice President John H. Owens, administrator of the bank's studies section.

"All of June's residential slump centered in the multiple dwelling unit sector — comprising duplexes, triplexes and apartments — and marked this sector's lowest level since October of 1971," Owens summarized.

"During June, permits for multiple units approximated $164 million, indicating a marked decline from May's $208 million level."

Alterations and additions continued their recent advance, rising from the month-earlier reading of $32 million to slightly more than $38 million for June.

In assessing California's nonresidential building scene, Security Pacific Bank's monthly report indicates a slight May-June downtrend, as permit valuation dipped from $252 million to $247 million. Owens explained that a considerable portion of May's volume had stemmed from an unusually large number of major, multimillion dollar projects.

Within the nonresidential sector, new commercial building permits edged up from May's $112 million to $114 million; new industrial permits authorized during June totaled $39 million, compared with the month-earlier reading of $40 million.

Owens reported that miscellaneous nonresidential building — primarily for churches, schools, hospitals and public works buildings, plus various alterations and additions to existent nonresidential structures — comprised June's remaining $94 million. During May, these miscellaneous permits totaled $100 million.

Estimates of residential construction in Southern California's 10 counties continued on a recent upward trend, climbing to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 160,100 new units in June, compared with May's level of 158,900.

Building permit volume surged up from the month-earlier tally of $433 million to $449 million in June.

"Our analysis of Southland building activity for June," explained the bank's business studies administrator, "revealed improvements in both residential and nonresidential categories."

During June, residential permits rose to a record $288 million, versus the $281 million recorded in the preceding month. "Single family units provided the primary stimulus to Southern California's residential sector," Owens commented, "and offset a decline in permits for multiple units."

Nonresidential building and construction posted a similar monthly improvement during June, climbing from $152 million to $160 million.

Los Alamitos Center

Occupancy is set for Sept. 1 at the Los Alamitos Shopping Plaza, report owners Robert E. Singer and F. L. Martin.

The five-acre shopping center, at the corner of Los Alamitos Boulevard and Katella Avenue in Los Alamitos, features two 13,000-square-foot "Mall Buildings," designed in the Town and Country atmosphere, and a two-story, 22,320-square-foot executive office building featuring 11,000 square foot of shops on the ground level.

Presley-built homes in Ontario selling quickly

Grand opening sales at California Homes - South Ontario topped the half-million-dollar mark, with 75 per cent of the first unit sold out, it was reported by Presley Development Company, Newport Beach-based homebuilding firm.

"Response has been so favorable at the $3.6 million community," said Rich Peiffer, area sales manager, "that we expect to begin the second unit soon."

Furnished California Homes models are located on Francis Street across from Ontario High School and less than one mile north of the Pomona Freeway.

Fourteen elevations are offered in three-and four-bedroom plans with up to 1980 square feet of living area. Prices range from $23,895 to $32,000.

STANDARD amenities include carpeting, fencing, cast-iron tubs and sinks, cultured marble tops in baths and forced air heating. Fireplaces are included in some plans.

Patio kitchens feature dishwashers, garbage disposals, vinyl asbestos tile, hardwood ash cabinetry and ceramic tile. A pantry is included in some plans, plus a convenient outside serving counter.

Qualified veterans can purchase a California Home for $100 total move-in cost. FHA and conventional financing plans are also available.

CENTRALLY located with easy access from the Pomona Freeway, California Homes - South Ontario is within easy commuting distance of Los Angeles civic center and Orange County.

Ontario Motor Speedway and mountain resorts are a short distance from the Presley community, with Palm Springs and desert resorts being little more than one hour's drive away.

Presley Development Company has more than 20 residential communities under development.

Decorator touches at Huntington Towne Homes

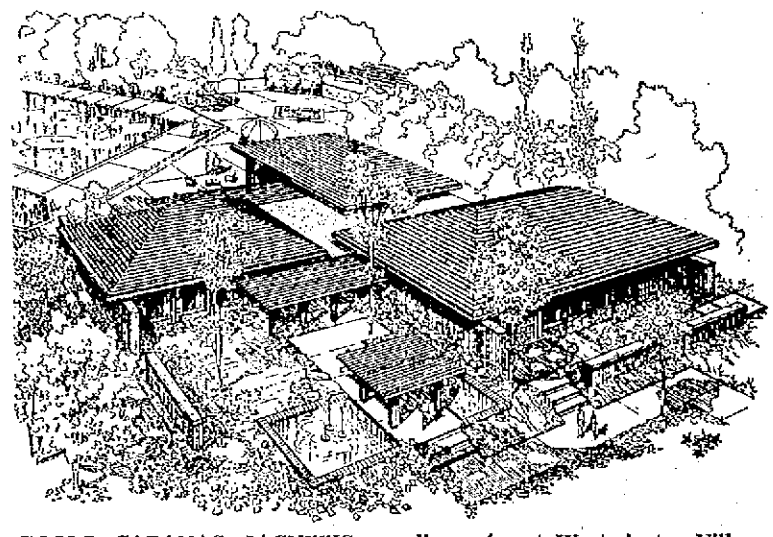

Huntington Town Homes owners will enjoy weekend recreation and relaxation without the worry of lawn and garden care, says Alex Graham, sales agent.

The condominium way of life is attracting young couples and even single people who prefer equity in homes of their own, as well as those who no longer need a big home now that the children have left.

Sprawling lawns and landscaped areas are all cared for professionally.

Two and three-bedroom plans offer a choice of single or two-story homes attractively grouped, with a recreation zone that includes heated pool for year round swimmers, play area and sand pits for children, beaches for fishing, surfing and boating minutes away.

Take Coast Highway south to Warner, east to first signal, left on Algonquin to Heil, right to sales office. Or, take Garden Grove Freeway to Bolsa Chica turnoff, south to Heil and right to entrance.

Garden & Greens' Unit 2 open

Westminster Village Gardens and Greens, the new townhome and patio home development by S & S Construction, has opened Unit 2.

"Public acceptance of our product has prompted this happy action," stated Mark Bader, sales manager.

Added to quality home construction are the plans for total community recreation at the Gardens and Greens.

The focal point will be a huge clubhouse, with an Olympic size swimming pool, lounge, billiard room, saunas, kitchen for private parties and an assembly room.

Elsewhere in the community there will be three more swimming pools and cabanas, children's wading pool, jacuzzi whirlpool and parks and greenbelts with play areas.

S & S Construction has introduced similar communities in Westminster and San Diego. In addition, S & S has major divisions in single family, multi-family housing and commercial property developments.

S & S Construction is subsidiary of Shapell Industries, Inc., a California headquartered company listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

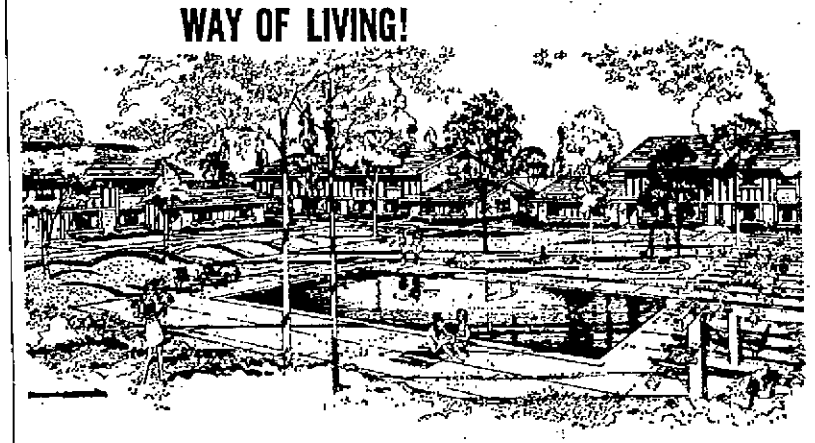

Westminster Village can be reached by taking the San Diego and Garden Grove Freeways to the Bolsa Chica off-ramp in Westminster, and continuing south one mile to the models.

Casitas Californias homes draw large opening crowd

John Nagel has been selected to head Fairway Chrysler-Plymouth automobile dealership in Downey, it has been disclosed.

JOHN NAGEL

Nagel is no newcomer to the automotive merchandising world. At one time the 37-year-old executive operated Pontiac Plaza in Seattle and also was at the helm of Jackson Goldie Ford in Oakland. Brand Motors in Glendale also was a Nagel-operated store.

The Los Angeles-born auto man, in describing his planned operation of the Chrysler-Plymouth dealership, located at 9250 Lakewood Boulevard, said:

"It is my sincere desire to make Fairway the finest automobile store in California. We are going to have the finest new and used cars available backed by the very best after-sale service. Our salesmen and managers are going to give each and every customer the full 'red carpet treatment'.

"We want our customers to be satisfied in every way with Fairway," Nagel concluded.

COLLEGE STUDENTS WENT to Florida in April for fun, but Chrysler Corporation took its 1973 intermediate cars there at about the same time to give the new fully isolated front and rear suspension systems their hot climate road exam.

Now, four months later, the 1973 intermediates will be back in Florida, this time with the full line of new 1973 Chrysler-built cars and trucks, for their highly important introduction to the nation's leading automotive newsmen on Marco Island August 16-18.

The April exam was part of a total evaluation of the new cars, which were driven more than 4,000 miles and included the testing of special rubber mountings used to isolate the suspension system from the metal unibody to eliminate a direct metal-to-metal noise path. Elimination of this path reduces road induced noise and vibrations, giving a quieter, smoother ride.

The new system, part of a six-part package called A-296 by engineers, was subjected to special testing in hot climate to determine how the rubber mountings would perform under high temperature use.

"We had completed more than two and a half years of development work in Detroit," explained Robert Frantz, supervisor of the sound and vibration laboratory. "The Florida work was truly an examination for the rubber mounts and the entire system."

While new in design for the 1973 Plymouth Satellite and Dodge Charger-Coronet passenger cars, the fully isolated suspension system is similar to that used on the full size Chrysler Corporation cars. Because of its newness and differences in isolation, close cooperation between the sound and vibration and suspension engineering laboratories was necessary to insure proper levels of ride and handling while reducing road noise and vibration.

More than 1100 persons attended grand opening ceremonies at Casitas Californias townehomes in Buena Park, with first-day sales topping $500,000, it was announced by Presley Development Company, Newport Beach-based homebuilding firm.

Four decorated models and a typical production unit at the $6 million community, located on Beach Boulevard one mile north of the Santa Ana Freeway, were on display.

The 227-unit community features models ranging from two bedrooms and one bath to four bedrooms and 2½ baths. Priced from $22,995 to $26,995, the units are available with VA, FHA and conventional financing.

A clubhouse, designed with entertainment and meeting facilities, features two eight-foot pool tables, casual furniture and kitchen facilities. Two 26-by-50-foot swimming pools and a 10-by-15-foot wading pool, plus play areas and camper and boat storage accommodations, have been provided for the exclusive use of resident.

EVERY townehome includes an enclosed double garage with laundry space, storage and entry into a private fenced-in patio.

Standard amenities at Casitas Californias include carpeting, concrete patio slab, built-in appliances, dishwashers, ceramic tile and hardwood ash cabinetry.

All utilities are underground, with municipal improvements in and paid for. Copper plumbing is standard, as are pre-wired telephone and television outlets with built-in antenna.

Exterior maintenance of townehomes, recreation and landscaped areas is the responsibility of a homeowner's association.

BUENA PARK is served by 19 elementary schools, six junior and two high schools, as well as 57 acres of parks and recreational facilities.

Nearby recreation attractions include Disneyland, Knotts Berry Farm, Movieland Wax Museum and Japanese Deer Park. Casitas Californias, just minutes from the Santa Ana and Artesia-Riverside freeways, is centrally located between the ocean and the mountains and desert, and is only a 30-minute drive to Los Angeles Civic Center.

Mulhearn seminars scheduled

Weekly seminars are being held, without charge, every Monday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the main offices of Bruce Mulhearn Inc. Realtor, 16911 Bellflower Blvd., Bellflower.

Classes are aimed at helping the pre-licensee decide whether or not he or she should enter the real estate field.

The Monday night sessions cover a variety of real estate related subjects over an eight-week period. Anyone wishing to attend may do so by merely reporting in at 7 p.m.

Cooling it

NEW YORK (UPI)—During the late 19th century, atomized moisturizing of air in cotton mills led to the invention of the "Air Washer" in 1897 and to Willis H. Carrier's device for automatically cooling air in 1906.

By 1970, 36.7 per cent of all households in the United States were kept cool by some 23 million automatic air-conditioning units.

Pilot plant

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Pittsburgh & Midway Coal Mining Co. announced it had signed an agreement with Rust Engineering Co., Birmingham, Ala., to build a solvent refined coal pilot plant at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Juicy process

LAKELAND, Fla.—Nearly 90 per cent of the Florida orange crop reaches the consumer in the form of processed products such as concentrated orange juice, sections and salads, according to the Florida Department of Citrus. Processors also use almost two-thirds of the state's grapefruit crop for such products with only one-third going to fresh fruit markets.

NAMED

Anthony Mance, Buena Park, has been named manager of the Larwin Realty office, 2351 W. Lincoln Ave., Anaheim. He was formerly sales manager for an Orange County realty firm.

Stocks in sale

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Consolidated Edison Co. said it had been granted authority by the New York State Public Service Commission to issue and sell up to five million common stock shares through a negotiated underwriting.

LA JOLLA TOWNEHOMES . . . in Garden Grove

La Jolla townehome units in preview today

The preview showing of builder William J. Krueger's La Jolla Townehomes community of two and three bedrooms, one and two-story homes will be held this weekend on Westminster Street, just west of Brooklurst Street, in Garden Grove.

The new development of 140 townehomes is within walking distance of almost every need known to the modern day family: three shopping centers with supermarkets, department store, drug store, variety stores, banks, barbers, delicatessans, beauty shops, service stations, car repair shops.

Schools from grade through high school are no more than three blocks away.

Garden Grove City Park with the famous Atlantis playground is just four blocks away.

The Garden Grove (22) Freeway, connecting with the San Diego (405) and Santa Ana (5) Freeways, is just a quarter of a mile distance.

LOCATION of La Jolla Townehomes could not be more strategic, says Dick Kurth of Kurth and Associates, exclusive sales agent.

"The homes are in an established neighborhood and priced far less — from $25,500 — than if a family were to purchase a single-family residence in the same place. And besides being in an established neighborhood with all services nearby, the homes offer families many features.

"Every home has either two or two-and-a-half baths, luminous ceiling kitchens with all built-ins, wall-to-wall carpeting, oversized two car garages, private patios between the garage and the living area and an extensive recreation center," he pointed out.

THE recreation area of La Jolla Townehomes includes a large heated pool, therapy pool, putting green, children's playground and a fully equipped clubhouse for parties, meetings and get-togethers.

Freedom to enjoy the recreation center and the convenience inherent in the location is also easily obtainable because all homeowners will be relieved of the exterior of maintaining the lawns, exteriors of the homes and the entire grounds, Kurth concluded.

The homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk.

ELEVATED
Art Guttman, Garden past president of West Orange County Board of Realtors, has been elevated to vice president of Bruce Mulhearn, Inc., Bellflower-based realty firm.

Hillrise 8th unit near end

Construction is nearing completion and immediate occupancy is available in the eighth unit of homes at Hillrise, Barclay Hollander Curci's "open space" community in Agoura, reports John Gause, BHC vice president.

Gause said of the 52 homes in the eighth unit, 12 are sold, while only 52 homes remain available in the entire community of 426 homes.

Prices range from $29,350 to $41,750 for the three-to-five bedroom, two and three bath homes. One and two-story selections are offered.

"Homes in the eighth unit are situated on the choicest lots in the community, overlooking the San Fernando Valley and a major portion of the green belt that constitutes some 30 per cent of the land area at Hillrise.

Virtually all the homes are on an extra-long cul-de-sac at the highest point in the community," Gause said.

LOCATED 500 feet north of the Ventura Freeway off Kanan Road, Hillrise has been recognized as a "pacesetting" open space community, displaying the developer's concern for the environment long before the concept was in vogue, Gause said.

He pointed out that the community was the first in Los Angeles County to have its initial design prepared for engineers by a firm of landscape architects with the intent of preserving and accenting the natural terrain.

As a result, the community is dotted with 250-year-old oak trees, large rock formations, rolling glens and natural walking paths. Bolstering this theme is an appealing layout of streets, which follow irregular courses, winding among the natural growth.

LATEST addition to the "open space" theme is a new ball diamond, built by the developer and turned over to the Hillrise Open Space Association for the exclusive use of residents.

Barclay Hollander Curci, Inc., has built and sold over 25,000 homes and homesites in Southern California over the last two decades.

ANOTHER LAKE FOREST LAKE
Luxurious homes of North Shores development are going up on 37-acre lake in Lake Forest. R. C. Jewell, Inc., builder, said reservations are being accepted for units, priced from $43,600 to $68,000. From Santa Ana Freeway, visitors should exit at El Toro Road, drive under freeway one mile to Jeronimo, left on Jeronimo to Canada, right on Canada to North Shores.

CHIEF
Harold Beer, Garden Grove, with quarter century of experience as auditor and chief accountant, has been named chief accountant of Walker & Lee, Inc., residential real estate firm.

Pumps out record

DETROIT (UPI)—American service stations pumped a record 97 billion gallons of motor vehicle fuel in 1971—an increase of 5.2 per cent over 1970, reports the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

State and federal motor fuel tax revenues approached $11 billion in 1971—with $3.8 billion going into the Federal Highway Trust Fund.

Gas discovery

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Mountain Fuel Supply Co. said it has made a natural gas discovery at Butcher Knife Spring in southwestern Wyoming.

Rancho Carlsbad in grand opening

Rancho Carlsbad, $5 million resort-mobile-home community, goes on public view today.

Gran opening activities are scheduled at 1 p.m., and will include a colorful ribbon-cutting ceremony, professional entertainment, prize drawings, refreshments and free gifts for visitors.

A project of Western Land & Development Corporation, Rancho Carlsbad is a 160-acre community located in a sycamore-studded, scenic valley east of Interstate 5 (San Diego Freeway) in the City of Carlsbad between Oceanside and Rancho La Costa in North San Diego County.

Planning and development of the 503-space community has taken more than 7 years.

Numerous new ideas and innovations have been included in the community.

In the center of Rancho Carlsbad is the main recreational complex. Located on a knoll overlooking the community, the complex includes the club house, Rancho Carlsbad Lake and the separate recreation center.

The clubhouse is a Spanish - styled 13,500 square foot structure.

David Dawes and Ronald Schwab are the principals in Western Land & Development Corp.

New Mexico ponderosa pine country developing

The Los Angeles-based planning and architectural firm of David Jay Flood & Associates, Inc., has been retained to master plan the development of a 2,000-acre recreational community in the ponderosa pine country of south central New Mexico.

Don Blaugrund, president of Alto Village, said the Flood organization also will develop feasibility and marketing studies. Basil Smith Engineering Company of El Paso is the project engineering firm.

Alto Village, at the foot of the Continental Divide, is about 140 miles north of El Paso and 170 miles south of Albuquerque on State Highway 37.

The community is near Ruidoso Downs, one of the nation's leading quarter horse tracks where the world's richest race — a $1 million purse — is held each Labor Day.

THE entrance to Sierra Blanca, one of New Mexico's largest and finest ski areas, is just across from the Alto Village property.

According to Jay Flood, president, the master plan for Alto Village will include the development of both living units and additional recreational facilities to supplement the Davis, Kirby & Player-designed golf course nearing completion.

The first phase of the project will be lot sales, said Flood, whose firm has master-planned the development of more than 50,000 acres of recreational communities in the past five years.

Overnight accommodations, such as condominiums and lodges, also are under construction.

"Alto Village's climate makes it an ideal site for summer vacations, while its proximity — less than 12 miles — to Sierra Blanca's ski slopes will make the community a winter resort as well," Flood said.

The Flood organization is involved in the master planning of major recreational communities in California, Vermont, Colorado and Montana.

Carmenita Village has immediate occupancy

At Carmenita Village, on Carmenita Road, between the Artesia and Santa Ana Freeways, in Cerritos, residents are said to be patting themselves for purchasing one of the two-bedroom, two story townhouse condominiums.

They purchased a home with air conditioning included in the sales price, says Alex Graham, president of Marketing Management Co., exclusive sales agent for De Ruff Construction Co., of Newport Beach.

"And we only have a few homes left to sell. They are available with immediate occupancy, so any family who has had-it-up-to-here with the hot weather, would do themselves a favor to visit our model home complex and obtain full details," Graham said.

The homes are priced from $19,700 with both VA no down and low-down FHA financing terms available.

In addition to air conditioning, carpets and drapes, all kitchen built-ins, front yard landscaping and sprinklers, private fenced rear patio and a large community pool, cabana and play area are all included in the sales price of every Carmenita Village townhouse condominium.

Models are open daily from 11 a.m.

Pi-Purge franchise to Advance

Jimmie Blanchard of Advance Plumbing, 2185 Walnut Ave., Long Beach, will service the Long-Wilmington-Signal Hill-Seal Beach areas for "Pi-Purge," a franchised chemical flush that is said to clean out water pipes.

The service involves the use of a newly patented non-toxic acid, Hexionic, that is effective in dissolving scale and corrosion, according to Price Berrien, of the franchising company, ZZ Corporation, Torrance.

In evaluating a job, Berrien said, the plumber will determine if a flush will restore good water pressure or, if needed, will recommend repiping.

Wins orders

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frigitemp Corp. said its subsidiary, Cool Chain, Inc., has won orders totaling $1.4 million for 200 marine refrigeration units from Flei-Van, Inc., and Strick Corp.

New motels

NEW YORK (UPI) — W. R. Grace & Co., said its French subsidiary, Jacques Borel International operator of restaurants, is considering establishing a chain of motels in Europe.

Obtains order

NEW YORK (UPI) — Babcock & Wilcox Co. has obtained a $36 million order from Baltimore Gas & Electric Co. for two oil-fired steam generators.

Resort home

PHOENIX (UPI) — Del W. Webb Corp. says it will start a $100 million resort home and recreation development on 5,000 acres near Branby, Colo.

Site chosen

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mobil Oil Corp. said its German affiliate has bought land near Wilhelmshaven as a site for a large new refinery with an initial capacity of about 160,000 barrels of crude oil daily.

Beach Homes For Sale

Studio townhomes at the beach in Huntington Harbour.

Harbour Pacific's luxurious studio townhomes offer you the best of beach living...and a lifestyle that's a far cry from ordinary apartments.

In fact, forget all about apartments. Harbour Pacific is something else. Each studio is large enough for four. With such features as a martini pit with fireplace, open-view balconies and patios, draperies, wall-to-wall carpeting, kitchen built-ins and a lengthy list of other custom ideas. The architecture is truly distinctive. And our people do the yard work and maintenance. You spend your time on the beach.

Outside, there's a world of fun. Try the bike paths, the volleyball courts and the therapy pools. Join the Huntington Harbour Beach and Tennis Club. We even have boat slips for rent. Let's see any apartment top that!

Or this: every payment you make helps build your equity or helps you reduce your income taxes. Instead of just throwing rent money away, you're making an investment in the future. And you're making it in Huntington Harbour. Look around the neighborhood. You'll see the value of that investment.

For closers, your townhome is ready and waiting this minute. Probably for less than beach-front rent. Come down today, though. We've been averaging over a sale a day...and we only have about 40 studios left, along with a few one-bedroom plans. That doesn't give you much time.

Especially if a lot of you are reading this ad.

Good-bye to big pattern alterations! Hello to better fitting garments with less work. That's the net result of the Spadea Multi Size Printed Pattern which gives you five sizes on one sheet of quality paper. Now you may combine the top of one and bottom of another size from the same pattern. "Swing Loose" in this Speedy jumper design that gives you a choice of necklines. Style I has a deep V and Style II is rounded and set far enough from the neck to make room for your favorite turtlenecks. Panel seaming makes a nice princess shape, and pockets are set in the side front seams. A zipper is placed in the center back seam. Any choice of fabric will make up beautifully. A-72202 is printed in Misses Sizes 8-16. Size 12 requires approximately 2¾ yards of 45" fabric for Style I and 2⅝ yards for Style II. To order A-72202, give name, address and zip. Send $2.00. Address SPADEA, Box N, Dep't LP-8, Milford, N.J. 08848. Pattern Book: Newest Spadea Designer Patterns — Section 1A — $1.00.

Equal OPPORTUNITY IN Housing -- You and Your Realtor

CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE ASSOCIATION

Code of Practices

The LONG BEACH BOARD OF REALTORS

subscribes to the policy that a favorable public attitude for equal opportunity in the acquisition of housing can best be accomplished through leadership, example, education and the mutual co-operation of the real estate industry and the public.

The following is hereby stated as the Code of Practices of this Board:

1. It is the responsibility of a Realtor to offer equal service to all clients without regard to race, color, religion, or national origin in the sale, purchase, exchange, rental, or lease of real property.
   a. A Realtor must stand ready to show property to any member of any racial, creedal, or ethnic group.
   b. A Realtor has a legal and ethical responsibility to receive all offers and to communicate them to the property owner.
   c. A Realtor should exert his best efforts to condlue the transaction.

2. Realtors, individually and collectively, in performing their agency functions have no right or responsibility to determine the racial, creedal, or ethnic composition of any neighborhood or any part thereof.

3. Any attempt by a Realtor to solicit or procure the sale or other disposition in residential areas by conduct intended to implant fears in property owners based upon the actual or anticiapted introduction of a minority group into an area shall subject the Realtor to disciplinary action. Any technique that induces panic selling is a violation of low and ethcis and must be strongly condemned.

4. Each Realtor should fee completely free to enter into a broker-client relationship with persons of any race, creed, or ethnic group.
   a. Any conduct inhibiting said relationship is a specific violation to the rules and regulations of this baord, and shall subject the violating Realtor to disciplinary action.

Rex L. Hodges Realty Celebrates 43rd Year of Real Estates Service

Rex L. Hodges Realty, one of Southern California's fastest growing multi-office firms is celebrating it's 43rd year of serving Southern California home owner Real Estate Needs. The year was 1929 and the nation was experiencing a financial turmoil when Rex L. Hodges opened his first Real Estate office in Long Beach.

Most businesses were closing and this didn't seem the proper time to start a new venture, but then Rex Hodges was a good businessman, and with his high level of Business standards and sound financial planing, The Rex L. Hodges Realty Company expanded and flourished.

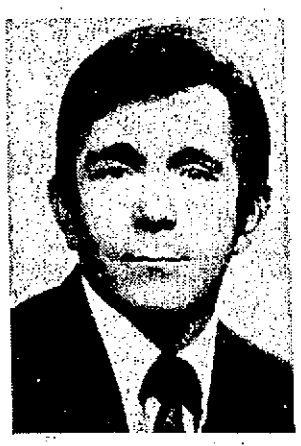

This solid foundation was further enhanced when Robert C. Westmyer assumed the Presidency, bringing expertise from a state association level as the Executive Educational Director of the California Real Estate Association. Real Estate has always been a part of Westmyer's life. "We truly believe in homeownership" said Westmyer. Buyers and sellers of real property truly need the assistance of a qualified company to provide the guidance and knowledge of property values to make an intelligent decision. Real Estate is today's best means of acquiring a hedge against inflation, besides providing families with a home and shelter.

Rex L. Hodges serves 45 communities employing over 200 Real Estate Salesmen who have Real Estate as a career. We are constantly training and re-training. In today's fast-paced world you have to provide the customer with a one-stop service. Today the customer demands many more services then here-to-fore provided by small companies. Rex L. Hodges pioneered the 'home trade-in program' in use today. Payment free equity loans are also an exclusive of Rex L. Hodges Realty. And it all started way back in 1929.

Company Announces Record Sales Promotional Program

As an adjunct to their expansion program, Rex L. Hodges Realty has announced a comprehensive promotional program unique in local real estate history. Newspapers, radio, magazines, merchandising aids, and a publicity/public relations campaigne will be used in a multi-pronged effort designed to increase the Hodges sales volume still higher than the current $7 milliion a month.

Newspaper coverage of Southern California will be supplemented by full page magazine advertisements in Time, Newsweek, U.S. News, and Sports Illustrated. Ads will stress Hodges size and leadership in serving real estate buyers and sellers for 43 years. The radio program on KIIS, KFOX and KEZY will broadcast news of Hodges activities on several major radio stations. Merchandising aids will include a new series of folders and displays for use by Hodges sales people, as well as easel mounted proofs of the magazine and newspaper ads. A free booklet titled, "Secrets of Savings Money When Buying or Selling a Home" will be offered on radio and will also be distributed to the public at all of the Hodges offices in Los Angeles and Orange Counties. A nationally - recognized marketing / advertising / public relations firm will prepare all of the materials to be used. They will also inform the press daily of news developments of all Hodges locations.

Bernie Jones, V.P.
General Manager

Real Estate Is Exciting Rex L. Hodges Realty

"There are no limitation, no clocks to punch when you choose Real estate as your profession," according to Bernie Jones, Vice President — General Manager of Rex L. Hodges Realty. Stop in any Rex L. Hodges Realty office and pick up a copy of "Welcome to Our World" a graphic picture of what its really like to sell real estate with a professional, firm where the door is open for you. The hours are a little longer than usual but the rewards are limitless. Our training program gives a new salesman in one month what formerly took 2 or 3 years and a lot of frustration to learn. A man or woman today can compete and not feel lost for lack of experience, Jones said. At Hodges there are no limits. Salesmen have every tool available such as Guaranteed Cash Sales, Home Trade-In Programs, Payment Free Equity Loans and counciling to prevent sales slump, a long time for all salesmen. Anyone who wishes a copy of "Welcome to Our World" can stop by any Rex L. Hodges office or call (213) 435-6381 or (714) 839-5501 and ask for a copy to be mailed to your home.

What Makes Hodges Realty Different?

In addition to Americanism, Mom and Apple Pie, we at Rex L. Hodges adhere to certain principles and practices which we feel add up to creating a company reputation and image beyond compare.

Here are a few of the features that have made us the leader in the field and permitted us to please 90,000 customers since 1929.

HODGES EQUITY LOAN -- GUARANTEE SALE -- and TRADE IN PROGRAM works like this:

1. SIX MONTH'S LOAN.
You can use your equity as collateral for a six month's loan from Rex L. Hoges Realty while awaiting the sale of your home.

2. WANT TO TRADE?
You can trade your present home for the home of your dreams through the Rex L. Hodges Realty, sometimes without additional cash or increased payments.

3. WAITING FOR CASH?
You can have cash advanced on your escrow when the Rex L. Hodges Realty is handling the sale of your property.

4. RENT TO BUY.
You can buy used homes with a minimum amount of down payment through Rex L. Hodges Realty exclusive rent to buy program.

5. BEING TRANSFERRED?
You can be guaranteed the sale of your home by the Rex L. Hodges Realty within a specified time limit. If it does not sell, we buy it for cash.

6. IMMEDIATE CASH.
You can sell your home today to the Rex L. Hodges Realty for cash. There is no delay waiting for financing.

*If any of these plans fit your present or future needs, please call the office nearest you for a confidential consultation.

INTRODUCING YOUR NEW CENTURY 21 INDEPENDENT REALTORS

Bob Bree Realty
23224 Crenshaw, Torrance

Bob Bree, Realtor
Noted for his many activities in the Torrance area, Bob Bree has been working in the Real Estate profession since 1965. He started his own company in 1968 and has served as an active participant in both the Torrance-Lomita and South Bay Boards of Realtors. He also has served as a member of the Grievance Committee for the Torrance Lomita Board. Bob also finds time to participate in his community's organizations with memberships in the Torrance Chamber of Commerce and YMCA.

Hattery Realty
429 East First St.
Long Beach

Phil Hattery, Realtor
Active in the business community for over 25 years, Hattery lists an outstanding record of civic involvement and accomplishments. He has served as President of the Chamber of Commerce, Long Beach Insurance Association and the Long Beach Symphony Association. In addition to his involvement with the Board of Realtors, Hattery holds active memberships in Downtown Long Beach Associates and the Long Beach Community Players.

Ken Peters Realty
2367 West Lomita Blvd.,
Lomita

Ken Peters, Realtor
Ken was selected as Realtor of the Year in 1962 and served as President of the Torrance-Lomita Board in 1963. He also served as a national delegate and state director to the Calif. Real Estate Association for seven years, is a past member of the state CREA legislative committee and served on the state Realtors planning and zoning committee in 1955. Peters is a member of the Torrance Masonic Lodge 447 and is presently serving as treasurer of the Lomita Chamber of Commerce.

Cardona Loa Realty
6532 Seville Avenue
Huntington Park

Fidel Loa, Realtor
Active in the real estate field since 1965, Mr. Loa has operated his own firm since 1970 in the Huntington Park/South Gate area. Prior to entering the real estate field, Loa spent 14 years as an educator in the Los Angeles and South Gate school system. He presently holds memberships in the Southeast Board of Realtors, CREA and NAREB. Loa's real estate office offers bi-lingual service to the many Mexican/American residents of the area.

Murphy Realty
21941 So. Avalon,
Carson

Marie Murphy, Realtor
Listing over 22 years in the Real Estate business, Marie Murphy received her license in 1950 and worked in the Torrance-Lomita-Carson area as a salesman until 1962. At that time she opened Marie-Murphy Real Estate in Carson and has operated it continually serving as an active member of the community. She has been a member of the Torrance-Lomita Board of Realtors since 1959 and has served as a member of the board of directors and as chairman of the membership committee. She also holds active memberships in both the Torrance and Carson Chambers of Commerce.

CENTURY 21 WINNERS CIRCLE

The success and acceptance of Century 21 as the fastest growing and largest Real Estate organization in Southern California is primarily due to the high professional sales standards employed by the over 225 Century 21 sales personnel. Each month your area Century 21 Realtor singles out the most outstanding individual for their accomplishments for the preceding month. The following salesmen are being honored for their achievements and join the select group of winners of the CENTURY 21 WINNERS CIRCLE award.

Peter Wall
The Land Office
3222 E. Broadway, 434-3461

With only six months as a Real Estate Salesman, Peter has already established himself as a top salesman for the Land Office. He brings to his profession an extensive background including achieving a Bachelor of Science degree in Business and Industrial Management. He previously has the business experience of being a bank loan officer, active stock broker and served as the loan officer for a major mortgage company.

Maxine Hart
Hunter Associates
1240 Wardlow Rd, 426-6577

For the past 20 years, Maxine has been active in the Real Estate profession with the last 2½ years as a Broker/Salesman. She, month after month, rates as one of the top producers for Hunter Associates and thus this year has participated in sales exceeding one half million dollars. Maxine is noted for complete follow thru and is regarded by her many clients as a truly dedicated sales person.

Sarah Torres
Humphries Realty Co. Inc.
9631 E. Alondra, Bellflower 867-2707

Since joining Humphries Realty, Sarah has consistently been a top producer. She has continued her Real Estate training with attendance at many classes and seminars. Sarah holds memberships in NAREB, CREA, Rancho Los Cerritos Board of Realtors and the California Professional Exchangers. As of August she is being promoted to the position of General Manager of both the Bellflower and Cerritos offices of Humphries Realty.

Charlotte Clark
Muntz Realty
5536 E. Second St. 439-2161

Den mother, Girl Scout leader, lifetime PTA member and full time Real Estate Associate with Muntz Realty keep Charlotte pretty busy; but not too busy to become the highest producer in both sales and listings for the Muntz office. Active in the Real Estate profession for the past 4 years, she holds an active membership in the Long Beach Board of Realtors. Believe it or not, Charlotte has time to pursue her hobby of collecting antique glass.

Chet Rose
Schwenn Realty
915 Redondo Ave. 433-0415

Twenty six years ago, Chet left Tennessee to come to California and went into business for himself. After many years of successful operation of a service business, he retired and started on his second career, real estate. Chet joined Schwenn Realty last year and this month is being singled out as the most outstanding salesman for the month of July. He is active in the Board of Realtors and the Long Beach Elks Club.

Betty Sumpter
Sparow Realty
5625 E. Willow 421-9478.

Being a full time mother to three teenage children and a full time salesman for Sparow Realty doesn't pamper Betty as she is rated as one of the top salespersons almost every month. In fact, Betty has been at the top of the list three out of the past six months for Sparow Realty. In addition she finds time to volunteer her time to such worthy causes as the Red Cross, United Crusade and the City of Hope.

Don Fleming
Blake Realty
5437 South St. 925-0451

First licensed to sell Real Estate in 1963, Don found himself very busy with his U.S. Army career. He retired in 1971 after serving for 21 years in both Europe and Asia. He also served as an Army Recruiter with a great deal of that time being in the Long Beach/Lakewood area. Since starting in Real Estate full time, Don became one of the most active producers for Blake Realty with over one half million dollars of transactions completed during the past five months.

REALTOR OF THE WEEK

JOHNNY WESLEY MILLER

Johnny Wesley Miller was born in Great Falls, Montana, and raised and educated in Eugene, Oregon. During World War II, he served with the Naval Forces in the Pacific in communications aboard destroyers. In eight years of outstanding service, he advanced from Apprentice Seaman to Lieutenant Junior Grade. Mr. Miller also had the honor of being assigned to a rescue team that freed 1400 Allied prisoners from a prison camp in Mukden, Manchuria.

After completing his service obligation, he served as an independent dealer for a local newspaper and was also employed by an electronic distributor as a salesman. Mr. Miller studied Real Estate at Long Beach City College and Cerritos Junior College. Active in civic affairs, he is now a member of Los Alamitos Chamber of Commerce, Long Beach Board of Realtors, and West Orange County Board of Realtors.

Mr. Miller enjoys fishing, golfing, and entertaining his friends playing the Hammond Organ.

The office of Johnny Miller Realty is located at 10921 Los Alamitos Boulevard in Los Alamitos.

RALPH STORY, STEPHANIE EDWARDS . . . conversation in the A.M.

Say what you will about housewives, they have a certain advantage over those of us who perform our work duties outside the home. I mean, consider all the television programs they have an opportunity to watch while we have to go about our daily chores. Not all of daytime TV is made up of "soap operas," either, not by any means.

There are a number of daytime shows I'd like to tune in, but I never get the chance. Take "Ralph Story's A.M.," for example. It's on KABC-TV (Channel 7) Monday through Friday from 8 to 9:30 in the morning. By the time it comes on I am already busy at work in the office, and if you think all TV editors have a TV set alongside their desk you are mistaken.

From my point of view, it would be much nicer if Ralph Story did a "P.M." show instead of an "A.M." program, but I suppose we've got to do something for the housewives or there aren't going to be many of them left in another few years.

Story is an unusual TV personality. He has been a radio and television newscaster most of his adult life, but he has never been just another pretty voice. Along with a melodic voice, he possesses a keen sense of humor. He has a way of making obscure happenings a delight and of making significant news seem perhaps not all that earthshaking, after all.

Long before "friendly news" became the thing, Story was an informal-type, friendly newscaster. He was never pompous.

Whimsical, droll, irreverent, satirical, tongue-in-cheek, impish: these are words that describe Ralph Story and his way of looking at the world.

As one who remembers "The Storyline" on KNX, "Ralph Story's Los Angeles" on KNXT and "Ralph Story's Human Predicament" on KNXT's "The Big News" and "Eleven O'Clock Report," I regret that about the only time I hear his voice these days is on the Western Airline TV commercials.

I did manage to get over to KABC one morning to see the tail-end of his show and to witness how the program is planned and put together. Early-morning freeway traffic being what it is, I didn't reach the studio until 9 o'clock, when the show was two-thirds over.

Stephanie Edwards, Story's tall, slender and attractive co-star, was presenting a review of Jackie Vernon's record, "Sex Is Not Hazardous to Your Health," about which she had some favorable words to say. As the three cameras focused on Stephanie (one of the cameramen is a young woman), Story relaxed in his barber stool in another part of the set.

Bob Banfield then gave one of his newscasts, which are regular features of the program, after which the program was interrupted for an ABC network news report that Hubert Humphrey would soon be coming on with an important announcement. (My visit to the show was on July 11, and Humphrey was announcing his withdrawal from the presidential race.)

During the interruption, I was taken on the set and introduced to Story and members of the production staff.

"We'll have a brief announcement from Hubert Humphrey," Story said to me, mocking the report. "Why, that's a contradiction in terms."

Though obviously somewhat nervous over how the rest of the show was to go if he had time to get back on the air, Story asked if I had any questions.

I wondered what type of show he considered "Ralph Story's A.M."

"Now, that's a good question," Story replied. "It has elements of a talk show — of Griffin or Carson. It has elements of a regular news show. I suppose it also has elements of 'Laugh-In' and 'Sesame Street.'

"It's a new type show. It's a mixture of news and conversation. It's either a newsworthy talk show or a talkworthy news show."

After dispensing those words, Story excused himself and conferred with some of the production people. I watched on a TV set as Humphrey made his announcement.

By the time Hubert left the air, there was just enough time for Story and Miss Edwards to sign off. The production crew rushed them out the front door, a cameraman close on their heels. They took a seat on a bench on the lawn just outside the building and made brief farewell remarks to the TV audience.

Normally, it would have been time for the crew to break for breakfast, but an interview guest who had been bumped by Humphrey was on hand, and everyone went back inside to do the interview for [illegible] was [illegible] Ernest Fleischman, artistic director of the Southern California Symphony Association.

Pretending it was the next day and that the Hollywood Bowl had opened its 50th season the night before, Ralph and Stephanie chatted with Fleischman for about 10 minutes about the Bowl's opening program, a performance of Verdi's "Aida," and about programs to come.

At the conclusion of "Ralph Story's A.M." each day, practically the whole gang gathers for a buffet style breakfast in a KABC dining room. After the repast, they move to a nearby office and map plans for the next morning's show. I was kindly permitted to share their food, observe their togetherness and sit in on their production meeting.

While Story and Miss Edwards stopped off at their dressing rooms to change clothes and freshen up a bit before joining the others at the big round breakfast table, the show's talent coordinator, Ginny Fosdick, answered a few questions for me. She informed me that "Ralph Story's A. M." had taken to the air Feb. 8, 1971 — "the day before the earthquake." She said it was a news-oriented show, with many interviews — "people like Gregory Peck and Charlton Heston have appeared" — and reviews of such things as movies, stage plays, books, records and concerts.

I was introduced to the show's producer, Howard Campbell. He is only 25 but, with his beard, could pass for a good bit older. He joined the show in June, returning from Ireland, where he had been writing and producing a film on the turmoil in that country. Earlier, he directed and was co-producer of "In Search of the Lost World," a GE Monogram special on archeology which has aired on ABC's "Monday Night Special."

One thing that struck me about the Story gang was that nearly all the others connected with it seem to be young enough to be Ralph's son or daughter. After all, he was a fighter pilot way back in World War II.

Miss Edwards arrived at the breakfast table before Ralph did, and as soon as he sat down he kidded her about her change of hair. "That's her Halloween wig she's got on now," he commented. "Just call her Little Orphan Annie."

I asked Ralph if he had ever been a newspaperman, and he replied in the negative. "I studied speech and English in college and was supposed to become a teacher, but got into radio instead." He said he was born in Kalamazoo, Mich., and while going to high school there started working for a radio station. He then worked his way through college at Western Michigan University as a part-time radio station announcer. After having successful radio shows in Buffalo and Los Angeles after the war, he moved into television and gained national recognition in the late fifties as emcee of "The $64,000 Challenge."

I asked if he does his own scripts and he said he does, but he pointed out that "you can't completely script an interview." He added: "We have carefully planned, ad lib interviews."

At the staff meeting, about 10 persons sat in chairs lining all four sides of a small room. On hand were Story, Campbell, Miss Edwards, two other young ladies — assistant to the producer Chris Dyerly and talent coordinator Ginny Fosdick — a cameraman or two, a writer or two, a trainee or two.

Most of them were planning to go to the Hollywood Bowl that evening for "Aida," and more than once during the course of the meeting they discussed who would go in whose car and where the cars would leave from and return to.

"Steph, I guess you and I will have to ad lib a review. Why don't you cover the opera and I'll cover the chickens and other fringe elements," Story suggested.

Big TV year for family

By JERRY BUCK

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Families are back in style on television, and nowhere is this more true than on "The Waltons."

There are 11 Waltons on this new fall CBS series which, with two other regulars, makes it the largest permanent cast on the air.

There is Grandpa and Grandma, the mother and father and seven children. That's one more child than on "The Brady Bunch," which may have started this movement away from one-parent families.

On its first show three years ago the Bradys — a widow and widower each with three children — got married. Since then the crop of widows on TV has been doing a disappearing act.

Of the new shows, "Maude," "Bridget Loves Bernie" and "The Paul Lynde Show" all come equipped with families. "The Bob Newhart Show" is about a couple working on starting one.

"The Waltons" is more than just the story of a family — it is based on a real family. Earl Hamner, the executive story consultant, re-creates his own boyhood in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia during the 1930s. Richard Thomas portrays Hamner, the eldest child, in the show.

"The sense of the family is strong within me personally and in our series," said Hamner, now 49. "That's the way I grew up. I don't know what accounts for it except that my mother and father loved each other and produced secure children.

"They never had a negative attitude toward us. They never said we couldn't do anything. It was a loving family. It was the kind of family everyone wishes he had and we were lucky enough to have."

When Michael Learned and Ralph Waite were signed to play the mother and father, Hamner's mother, Doris Hamner of Schuyler, Va., asked him to send pictures. She wanted to see what she and her late husband, Earl Sr., would look like. The elder Hamner died in 1969.

Miss Learned and Waite will be the fourth set of performers to portray the parents since Hamner wrote the family chronicle in "Spencer's Mountain." The novel was filmed with Henry Fonda and Maureen O'Hara. Arthur Kennedy and Theresa Wright were the parents in "Appalachian Autumn" on "The CBS Playhouse." Andrew Duggan and Patricia Neal were in "The Homecoming," the TV movie that was the pilot for the series. Since the series was scheduled the name of the family was changed to Walton.

"People often come by to visit my mother in Schuyler," Hamner said. "They want to see Spencer's Mountain."

"WAR AND PEACE," a mammoth 6½-hour Russian-made movie based on Leo Tolstoy's classic novel, will come to television on the ABC network in four parts starting Saturday at 8 p.m., Ch. 7. Weaving throughout the film is the love story of Natasha Rostova (Ludmila Savelyeva, right) and Anatole Kuragin (Vasily Lanovoe). His sister, Helene (Irina Skobtseva), intrigues to introduce the young people.

TOM JONES and Jennifer O'Neill are among the stars teamed for "The Special London Bridge Special," a musical fantasy on Ch. 4 at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday. Others in cast are Kirk Douglas, Elliott Gould, Hermione Gingold, Chief Dan George, Rudolf Nureyev, Jonathan Winters and the Carpenters. The hour-long show is a repeat.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

I WAS AMAZED by the letter from Mr. and Mrs. Randolph concerning the recent showing of "The People."

I am not yet a parent, but that time is not many years away. And I hope that when my children come, they will be able to watch such high-quality entertainment. And if it is unavailable on TV, I will surely introduce them to "The People" and other of Zenna Henderson's fine books of wonder and imagination.

I see these as very suitable for children, as a stimulus for the imagination and a hope for something better than that which now faces our troubled world.

HOW LUCKY can you get to miss the David Steinberg show? He has long been a favorite of mine, and I looked forward to his show. The first show: I stood it for a little over half-way before I turned it off. The second show: thinking it might improve, I tried it again, but didn't even make the half-way mark.

I also looked forward to Jerry Reed and some good toe-tapping hours on his

'TV censorship insane'

MADISON, Maine (AP) — Actor Robert Stack, who once starred in a violent television series, says modern television censorship is "insane" in its attitude toward violence and is driving the American public from its living room to even worse films at corner movie theaters.

"The tighter TV becomes, the looser motion pictures will be," Stack said.

Stack, who was here to appear in the drama "Remember Me," said he believes as antiviolence forces push against television, "the more 'Godfathers' we're going to get."

"The 'Godfather' is a very dangerous show," Stack said. "There's an implied empathy — people root for the criminal."

Stack says the television series "Untouchables" in which he starred as a federal agent fighting organized crime in the prohibition era of Chicago has a "point of view. The only way to show evil was to show what they (the criminals) did.

"I've always been dubious of people who try to protect the public's morals," Stack said. "That's what happened in Russia and China, and the state took over everything."

The only permissiveness remaining in television is in public broadcasting, Stack said, contending commercial TV is developing into "monkey-see, monkey-do business."

"You can't tell any kind of a story on commercial TV except Alice in Wonderland," he said. "It's insanity."

TV's critics have become so embroiled in their fight against violence on the air that nobody's "watching the number of underage kids standing in line at the "theater as theater."

He conceded that time slots on commercial TV are important and said family programs should be offered in the hours when young people are normally viewing. And, he said, more creative — and thus controversial — programs should be aimed at adults audiences later in the evening.

The BIBLE Says

Question: What about Women's Lib?

The teaching of the Bible is not very complimentary toward Women's Lib. God's established order is that the man is to have dominion over the woman. One of the reasons for this is given in I Tim. 2:13: "For Adam was first formed, then Eve." (Of course, those who do not believe that Adam and Eve ever existed, which includes many so-called "religious scholars," would reject this. But we are writing for the benefit of thos who care what the Bible says.) In the same passage, it says "Adam was not beguiled, but the woman being beguiled hath fallen into transgression" (v.14).

The Bible says: " . . . the head of every man is Christ; and the head of the woman is the man; and the head of Christ is God" (1 Cor. 11:3).

As far as woman's "place" in life, which is being questioned and debated today, the Bible teaches that woman is to be the counterpart and companion of man. In the beginning God said: "It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him" (Gen. 2:18). The word "meet" means "fit, suitable." Again, the apostle Paul says: "I will therefore that the younger women marry, bear children, guide the house . . ." (1 Tim. 5:14). This is God's unique place for the woman — as a mother and wife -- and those who seek to change this defy God's arrangement.

There is nothing in the Bible that suggests that women is of lesser intelligence or worth than man. But the discontent so widespread today has come about as the result of disrespect for God's word and a corresponding breakup of the family unit -- spurring "Women's Lib." Women can receive true freedom only in the same way as all of mankind — in Christ -- where "there can be no male and female; for ye are all one man in Christ Jesus" (Gal. 3:28).

The Story behind 'A.M.'

Miss Edwards, who has studied to be a concert pianist and an actress, ruled out that idea and said Story should do the main review.

"OK, you can do the voice embellishments," he said.

"I'll come in with this big operatic voice," she said with a laugh.

Said Ralph: "Remind me to take a note pad that I'll use during the first half hour of wine."

"You can even take a pen that lights up," suggested Stephanie.

"I won't need a pen that is lit," said Story.

"We'll have the Fleischman interview tomorrow, too," Campbell interjected.

Miss Dyerly offered a suggestion for a possible program topic regarding city employes unions.

"We will need to be able to give a complete rundown on collective bargaining for city employes," Story said. "Who's unionized, who isn't. The whole concept of city unionization. You might have trouble finding any one city councilman who could give all the answers about unions. The city administrator might be the man to get. Anybody know who the city administrator is?"

Nobody did.

"OK, call City Hall and find out who he is," Story directed.

Next, Ginny came up with an idea for an interview that she had gotten from an article in the Life-Style section of The Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram.

It was a story about a 62-year-old widow, Dory Halderman, who had suggested that old people get together and start a commune. She had asked interested oldsters to phone her so she could set up a meeting.

"She had her meeting," Ginny reported, "but she said the people got side tracked. She said the wind was blowing at Bixby Park, and the people were all blowing in each other's ear."

"Did she admit the meeting was a flop?" asked Story.

"Yes, she did."

"Oh, I like her," said Story. "We should try to get her."

"I asked if she'd be willing to come on the show, and she said, 'I get all balled up when talking, I wouldn't be any good on camera.' She asked if she could bring three friends," said Ginny.

"She mentioned a man named Richard. She said he talked a lot. She said people started walking away, but he talked a lot. She said, 'Personally, I can't stand him, but he talks'."

"Well," said Story, "if this Richard has a dream, he'd be a good interview. Check Richard out."

Next, someone brought up a subject which evidently had been discussed before. A group of movie-TV stuntmen felt that recent decrees on violence were putting stuntmen out of work and the group wanted to demonstrate with film the difference between action and violence.

"It's a good idea, but tell them they've got to bring it off themselves," Story said. "They've got two big reels, and we can't put it together for them, they've got to edit it down themselves.

"Violent is what I'll be tomorrow if we do this for them."

With that, the Story gang seemed to consider the next day's program all prepared, though it seemed to this observer that most of the proposed features were still up in the air.

There was another discussion of how everyone would get to the Hollywood Bowl, and Ralph said to Stephanie: "We have all evening to discuss our review over wine."

With the conversation turned to music again, Stephanie asked the gang: "Did you know I was related to Eileen Farrell?"

Eileen Farrell?

None of the gang would admit to having even heard of the woman.

After Stephanie explained that Eileen was a very big opera star, Story said: "Good, I'll introduce you as a student of voice, a relative of Eileen Farrell."

"Wouldn't it be great if someone would do a 'This Is Your Life, Stephanie,' another member of the gang suggested.

"I think we ought to put one of these meetings on tape, slip it in one morning and see if anyone notices the difference," another member of the gang said.

I often have wondered how that particular "Ralph Story's A.M." came out the next morning.

Maybe some housewives could enlighten me.

Olympics pose problem

NEW YORK (AP) — Time — as in prime — is always uppermost in the minds of television industry heads, but it doesn't usually cause the problem posed by the upcoming Olympic Games in Munich.

Consider it: If an American turns in a gold medal performance at 2 p.m. on the field, Californians would have to be awake at 5 a.m. to see it and New Yorkers might chance being late for work because of watching it at 8 a.m.

Obviously, neither hour would attract many viewers.

In fact, almost all the events will be contested at times inconvenient to American audiences.

The answer apparently is going to be a not-so-instant replay system.

For example: The 100-meter race, which normally draws a great deal of worldwide interest, is scheduled to be run at 11 a.m. Munich time.

ABC will be handling American coverage. Because live transmission would be seen in the United States between 2 a.m. and 5 a.m. the race and subsequent interviews with participants will be recorded and edited onto a master tape.

The master tape will be transmitted via satellite to the network's New York studios for broadcast between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m.

Because of the speed of electronic editing, the tapes can be updated as new material is bounced off the satellite.

In similar fashion, each of 100 countries will tailor its Olympic coverage to the time and interests of its native audience — a combined effort that is expected to reach the greatest television audience in history. The games run from Aug. 26 to Sept. 10.

Industry experts are saying the total television audience may approach the one billion mark. About 300 million throughout the world were video witnesses to the first moon landing in 1969.

German television authorities estimate that 95 per cent of all televised events will be viewed via tapes.

More than 100 color television cameras and 91 color video recorders, including the instant replay equipment, have been assigned to the Olympics.

Some 2,500 television technicians, announcers and officials will be mobilized to operate this big battery of equipment.

SPECIAL

YO SOY Chicano (28), 8:30 p.m. — Various contemporary Chicano leaders explore their different approaches to the problems facing Mexican-Americans — from the problems facing field workers in California farms to the struggle to reclaim land granted to Spanish-surnamed citizens of New Mexico. Historical aspects also are examined.

COMEDY Pilots (2), 9 p.m. — Van Johnson, Bert Convy and Kenneth Mars are stars of three separate pilot films being repeated during the normal movie slot.

MISS BLACK Teen-Age America (5), 9:30 p.m. — Hal Jackson and June Kelly are co-hosts at Madison Square Garden as girls from 13 to 16 vie for fame, cash, trips and wardrobes. Taped July 28, hour includes entertainment by Bobby Hebb and the Stairsteps.

EDWARDO MORENO portrays Ricardo Flores Magon, a key figure indicative of the Chicano struggle during the early part of this century, in "Yo Soy Chicano," a major hour-long documentary to air on Ch. 28 Friday at 8:30 p.m.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

show. I sure was disappointed. Why in the world don't these people stay in their own field that they became popular with? It seems as soon as they get a show they change their style completely.

I did enjoy the Bobby Darin show and also the "Wow" show.

Merv Griffin's show is all that's saved the day this summer. Merv is really a "blah" personality, but at least some of his shows have lively guests. We like Joe Flynn so much, but wish he'd give up on "Charo." She spoils the show for us. In fact, we just turn it off when she's on.

Mrs. Rodarte

(I thought Steinberg's third show, with James Caan and Bernadette Peters as guests, was quite amusing. I missed the first two. I think Bobby Darin puts on a very entertaining show. Jerry Reed didn't get my viewing after his first two shows; his music's good but he needed better humor. —B.M.

I FAILED to see anything wrong with ABC's TV movie "The People." I don't know why the Randolphs would think it harmful to children — it was based on a story I read in either a junior or high school textbook.

WAR & PEACE (7), 8 p.m. — The $100 million Russian-produced Oscar winner gets a 7½-hour screening, over a period of four consecutive nights. It's Tolstoy's classic epic of four families in Russia during the 1805 war with Napoleon, with later segments airing Sunday at 9, Monday at 9 and Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

MISS CALIFORNIA (11), 8 p.m. — Bill Welsh and Bob Parkinson are at the Ambassador where 42 girls compete for the right to represent the state in the Miss USA pageant, whose winner, in turn, goes on to the Miss Universe pageant. Kim Christina Hobson of San Francisco is on hand to crown her successor, and Enzo Stuarti is musical guest.

6 Glad You Asked That!

8 What Now, Dr. Spock?
Literally millions of kids were brought up under the concepts outlined in the 1940s when Dr. Benjamin Spock first taught the country about raising children through his internationally famous, "The Pocket Book of Baby and Child Care." Recently, many people have accused Dr. Spock of setting forth the precepts that have caused kids to revolt against the establishment. Dr. Spock disagrees in an interview by Elizabeth Edwards.

12 Way Back When
The glittery nostalgia of the old-time circus is captured in a series of posters from the late 1800s and early 1900s when the circus was the entertainment highlight of the year.

14 Diary of A Male Housewife
Freelancer Charles Downey agreed to baby sit his three-year-old toddler and be "lady" of the house for two weeks. His experiences (often hilarious) led him to "love" Women's Lib.

18 Rex Reed
For the summer of '72, critic Reed thinks the movies are the worst he's ever seen.

Wells Report

What Did I Ever Do To Don Ameche?

"No, I'm in a phone booth in the hotel lobby. I said a phone booth — boy, this is certainly some connection. I stopped by the Convention Message Center between sessions, and there was a message to call the office. I've been trying to get you for 20 minutes. Your lines have all been busy."

Probably the receptionist yakking with her mother again. The old bag calls every hour on the hour. Who was it that called the telephone the greatest nuisance among conveniences and the most convenient of nuisances?

"No, I won't be able to meet with him until sometime Thursday. What other calls were there? I see. Well, I'll call the first two when I go back to my room before lunch; there's a session I was interested in that I'm missing right now. Who's Mr. Ramford? He said I'd recognize the name, huh? Well, I don't but if he said it's urgent I'd better call him. Give me the number again."

If I can find something to write it down with. Why do all pens always vanish from your pockets the moment you enter a telephone booth? You'd think a big conglomerate like IT&T could chain pens inside their phone booths. After all, the banks do it. Ah, here's a pen. But there's nothing to write on.

"Just a minute till I get something to write on."

I'll tear one of the preliminary pages out of the telephone book and write on it. Gee, there aren't too many pages left in the front of the book.

"OK, give me the number. 672-0041. Is that area code 213 or 714? You don't know. OK, I'll talk to you later."

Let's put in a dime and try it as a local call.

It's not a local call. Figures.

Better lay out my change. Sorry, mister, you'll just have to wait for this booth like I had to wait. Oh, oh, a buck thirty-five, but no nickels and only one dime. The rich get richer. Actually, IT&T is the only conglomerate I'm on speaking terms with.

"Forty cents, operator?" That quarter gong sounds like the lead bell on the Engineer Bill show. You'd think for a quarter they could give you a better sound than that.

"Yes, operator, I know I put in 50 cents. No, I don't have time to give you my name and address. Just apply the extra dime to the unpaid telephone bill from the 1968 Democratic Convention. Tell them it's from an anonymous donor."

It's been a bad year for the telephone trust any way you look at it. Dita Beard. Martha Mitchell. Democrats.

You'd think even a lady lobbyist for a telephone conglomerate would have honored the old slogan, "Don't write, telephone." Particularly a lady lobbyist. Wonder if IT&T ever checked out Dita Beard to see if she owns Xerox stock.

Remember how close you used to be to your mother, Ma Bell, Dita? You can still be by long distance.

"Oh, hello, Mr. Ramford, please . . ."

"Hello, Mr. Ramford, please. He's on the other line? Yes, I'll wait."

I remember learning all about it from this movie I saw as a kid. Don Ameche as Alexander Graham Bell in glorious Technicolor. They always filmed Don Ameche in Technicolor, even when bigger stars like Clark Gable and Robert Taylor only rated black and white. I think it must have been Ameche's rosy cheeks. They'd be wasted in black and white. Anyway, here's Don Ameche as Alexander Graham Bell. He's just invented the telephone and he's testing it. He picks it up and says very solemnly, "What hath God wrought?"

If he had even guessed at the answer to that question, he wouldn't have bothered to pick up the phone. What hath God wrought? Dita Beard, Martha Mitchell, carpeting solicitors, FBI wiretaps, that's what.

"Thank you. Yes, I'll still hold on." That secretary has a color telephone on her desk. You can always tell. It makes their voices richer and sexier. I haven't worked out a way of identifying the color yet, though.

Still, it's just as well that color telephones weren't around to compete with Ameche's rosy cheeks in Alexander Graham Bell's day.

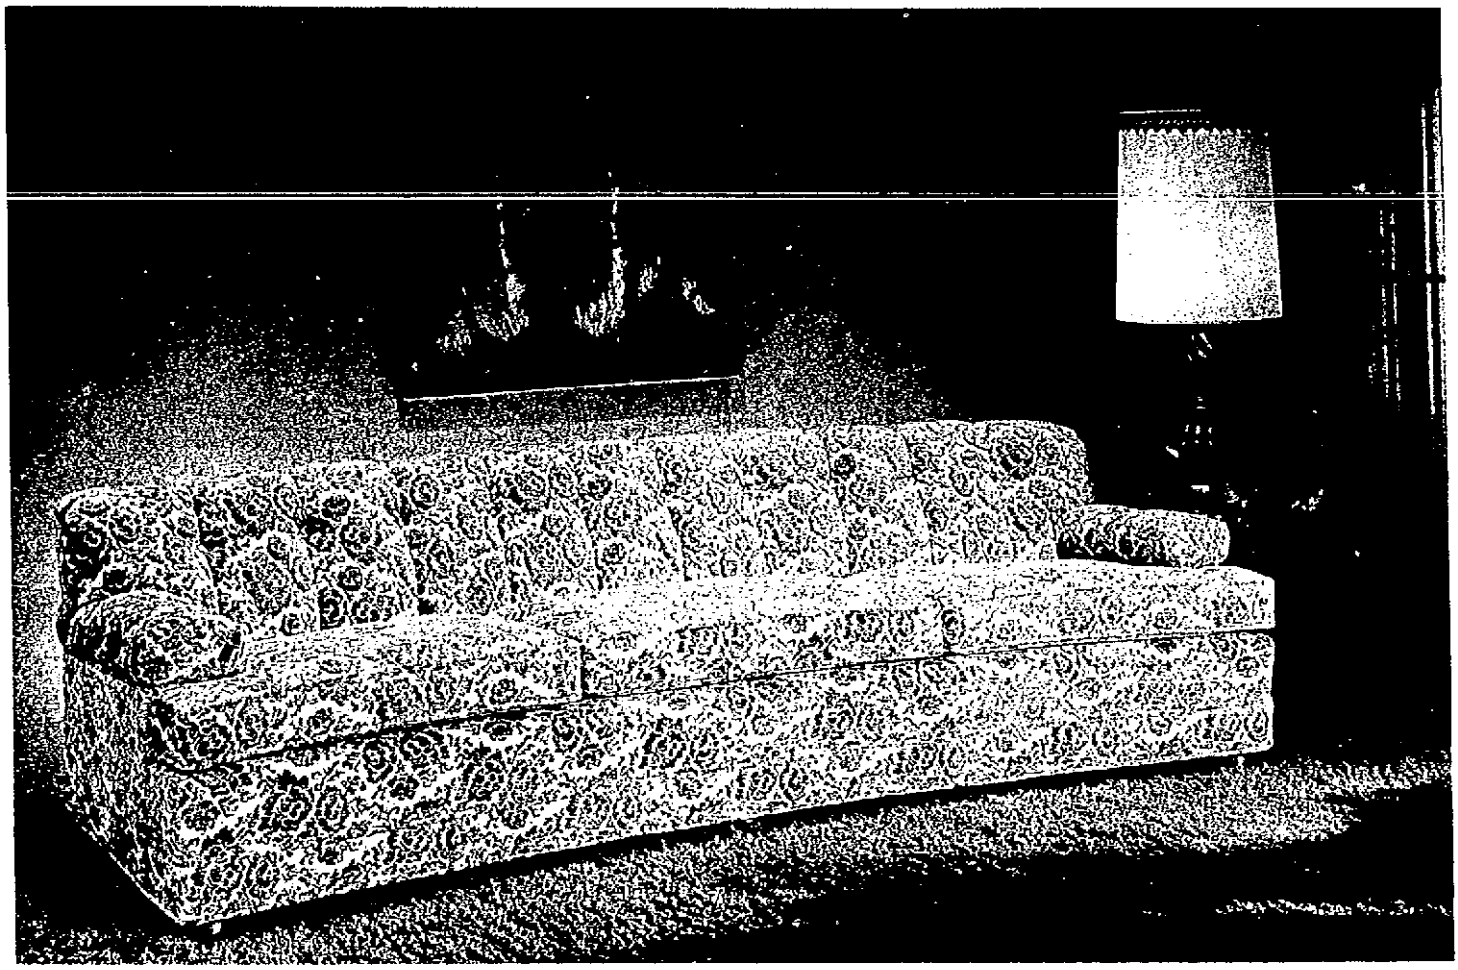

I'll bet Ma Bell really has a soft spot in her corporate heart for Martha Mitchell. It's not just the size of her phone bill; it's what she has done for extension phones. What the Eisenhower administration did for golf, this administration has done for bathroom telephones.

"Thank you. Hello, Mr. Ramford. This is Bob Wells returning your call. We sat next to each other at the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick luncheon? Yes, I think I do remember. What? No, my investment portfolio is in good shape, Mr. Ramford. Yes, I'm perfectly satisfied. No, I don't think so. You'll have to excuse me, Mr. Ramford. I'm calling from a phone booth at a convention and there's a line of people waiting to use the phone. Goodbye."

What hath God wrought? □

Henry Kissinger . . . too busy even to write postcards.

Liberace . . . takes along his own piano.

Sacha Distel . . . he's married.

Q: I've heard that White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger has been offered an advance payment of $500,000 for the rights to a book about his secret meetings with the Chinese, Soviet and other world leaders. Anything to this rumor? — Warren B.T., St. Louis.

A: There's no doubt that some day Kissinger will write such a book. And, guided by a know-how tax attorney, will become an instant millionaire. But right now he's too busy even to write souvenier postcards.

Q: Stop a fuss and tell us — does Liberace take his own piano on tour? And has he any gold records? — Mrs. George W. Underwood, Indianapolis.

A: Yes, five. Liberace usually travels with a collapsible Baldwin piano and candelabra. On special occasions, such as the debut of "The Liberace Show" in England several years ago, his Twenty Grand Baldwin was air-freighted from Cincinnati to London. Covered with the plexiglass top he has custom-made to fit any grand piano.

Q: Is it true that Sacha Distel, like Richard Burton, supposedly romances all his leading ladies? — Mrs. Angela Dutton, Atlantic City, N.J.

A: While you can't compile his hits, runs and errors without a score card, there's at least one who couldn't care less. Comments Olivia Newton-John: "Perhaps a lot of older women go for Sacha, but he's not my type of man. Besides — he's married."

Q: Jack Lemmon seems to have lost a lot of weight. How? On the Stillman water diet? — Irma Lerner, Rockaway, N.Y.

A: No water for Lemmon. "I dropped 15 pounds fast," Jack told Cathy Post. "Twice a day I had a large raw vegetable salad with a dressing of oil and vinegar and lots of garlic. Not only is garlic good for the stomach, it's also a test to find out who your true friends are."

Jack Lemmon . . . a diet of garlic.

Erich Segal . . . didn't write the other "Love Story."

ed that!

Richard Benjamin . . . plays the role "carefully."

Q: In going through a movie book I noticed there was an old British film titled "Love Story." Its theme was somewhat similar to today's hit book and movie. I wonder, is it just a coincidence or did Erich Segal also write the 1944 film? — Gary Wilhelm, Phoeniz, Ariz.

A: Mr. Segal would have to have been a whiz kid to have written the original "Love Story," since he was only 7 years old at the time. The English film starred Stewart Granger, Margaret Lockwood and Patricia Roc.

Q: Why does a nice clean-cut young man like Richard Benjamin stoop to play such a filthy character like "Portnoy"? What did the actor do in his youth? And how does the film treat such a touchy subject as masterbation. — Mrs. Patricia T., Kent, Wah.

A: "Very carefully," the actor chuckles. "Actually I hesitated when I was asked to make the movie. But after reading the 'Portnoy' script I had no complaint. Done in good taste, I felt it could be amusing, not tawdry." Benjamin's early career was varied. He jumped from playing in a Joseph Papp Shakespeare Festival production of "Taming of the Shrew" (salary $10 a week) to acting as an NBC tour guide. Like an earlier guide, comic Henry Morgan, he got bored and sacked for spicing the real spiel with wisecracks. Morgan's last official act was leading a crowd of sightseers through a door — leading to the Ladies' Room!

Q: That dog who catches Frisbees on TV commercials — does it have to belong to a union? — Naomi Williams, San Antonio.

A: Yes. Mimi is a member in good barking of AFTRA.

WHAT NOW, DR. SPOCK?

By ELIZABETH EDWARDS

When my children were growing up, Dr. Benjamin Spock was my best friend. If the baby ran a fever, my toddler refused to go to bed or my first-grader decided he hated school, all I had to do was thumb through my dog-eared copy of The Pocket Book of Baby and Child Care to find the solution.

Solid, sensible, calm — Dr. Spock reassured me from the pages of his book that I was capable of being a good parent. With his help I survived — and mostly enjoyed — the traumas, the pleasures, the endless emergencies and the sheer physical labor of being the mother of three young children.

However, old friends and children never stay the same. The respectable baby doctor — mentor to a generation of parents — has become an antiwar activist and symbol of rebellion to the younger generation. The man who served in the Navy during World War II and who would fight "if another Hitler came along" encourages today's young men to question a war that he believes has "no shred of legality." The conservative Republican who cast his first vote for Calvin Coolidge is running for president as the candidate of the People's Party — a party that is liberal, radical or left-wing according to one's political point of view.

The children reared under Dr. Spock's watchful eye with such high hopes and great freedom have changed too: they are now young adults. Which of them are Dr. Spock's legacy — the idealistic boys and girls serving in ghetto areas and working for political candidates or the rock-throwing, drug-taking teenagers tearing up an auditorium after a concert?

I've changed too. No longer the nervous young mother absorbed only with her own family, I — like Dr. Spock — have expanded my horizons. As a high school teacher and freelance writer, I am concerned with and about other people's children and the kind of world my generation left to them. And I wonder what Dr. Spock thinks of the young people he — and millions of American parents — helped shape. Does he still believe the promise impicit in his book — the promise that children brought up with love and flexibility instead of with rigid authoritarianism will bring about a new and better world? Has he entered politics out of hope or despair?

Fittingly, it was Dr. Spock's presidential aspirations that provided me the opportunity to meet him personally and probe these questions. He came to Southern California to raise funds and win new supporters for the Peace and Freedom Party which is working closely with the People's Party and running the same candidate.

The place: a fund-raising cocktail party at the Long Beach home of a "Spock for President" fan. The candidate arrived unannounced and unaccompanied by secret service men, press agents or an entourage of any sort. My first thought was that Dr. Spock is an unlikely-looking "symbol of rebellion" with his neatly trimmed white hair, his clean-shaven face, his dignified demeanor and conservative dark blue suit.

Later Dr. Spock spoke, dispensing advice on how to solve the country's problems in the same "common-sense" way he told us how to bring up our children. His theme is that the institutions of the country — the schools, the hospitals, the police — must be under the direct control of the people they serve . . . that only a return to direct democracy can rescue the country from control of profit-motivated industrialists and their purchased politicians.

Obviously no "fat cats" have purchased Dr. Spock. Instead of Cadillacs, chauffeurs and hired staff, he relies on "volunteers" to get from place to place. He had agreed to an interview, but the only time he could give me was while being driven from the political event in Long Beach to a similar one in San Fernando Valley. The good doctor had already given two speeches that day and had another to go as well as a radio interview, yet he answered my questions with the same exuberant attention he gave to his political supporters.

Judging from the predominantly youthful faces observed among his Peace and Freedom followers, Dr. Spock apparently is relying on young people to institute the needed reforms in this country. But can a political party depend on today's young men and women when so many of them seem more interested in turning their backs on the "establishment" than in reforming it?

"It's true," Dr. Spock admits, "that many young people, particularly those who have decided their society is so rotten they don't want to play any effective part in it as citizens, want to go off somewhere and discover their own lifestyle."

Dr. Spock doesn't see this as a negative trend. "This attempt of young people to live simply and by brotherly love is actually a revolution — a lifestyle revolution. I think it is the most significant revolution going on at the present moment. And I wouldn't call it 'copping-out' or 'turning-off.'"

Then changing one's own lifestyle is all a young person needs to be concerned about?

Dr. Spock shook his head emphatically. "The philosophical revolution is the most important, but I disagree with the idea that all that needs to be done is to change yourself. While making these discoveries about what you think your life should be, you should also be working within the society as a whole in politics and the community to make changes."

He believes young people must be committed to changing society as well as themselves, "because the country can't afford to wait the 30 or 40 years it will take for the lifestyle revolution — spearheaded by the young — to reach the majority of the American people."

Before then, he fears, the United States might be destroyed by a nuclear bomb because of a "continuation of our arrogant imperialist foreign policy or blow apart domestically because of increasing racial and other hatreds."

He continued: "When students do get involved and try to make changes, their protests don't always seem directed to the greater betterment of mankind. I'm thinking of the fiery speeches I've heard, the lists of 'demands' and demonstrations over such relatively minor items as tastier cafeteria food, longer lunch hours or the right to be late to class.

"This kind of protest against petty regulations evaporates quickly when young people become adults. And, it is true, rebellions like these don't lead to a permanent improvement in society.

"What a dilemma. A parent or teacher who dictatorially denies a young person any say is not preparing him to make his own decisions. Yet permitting young people to question everything can wear out even the most patient adult and result in energy-consuming conflicts over unimportant issues.

A democratic education from the beginning is probably the best way to avoid this dilemma, thinks Dr. Spock.

"From nursery school through the university young people should become accustomed to managing themselves and their affairs on a democratic basis. Otherwise they aren't going to be ready to function in a democratic society."

SPOCK

He suddenly switches from low-key child care expert to zealous politician as he points out the serious results of bringing up children in an authoritarian manner.

"One of the shocking things happening at the present is that masses of people are supinely allowing the authorities and those who pay the election bills of the authorities to decide everything. The result is more involvement in wars, more economic injustice, more and more pollution. If all decisions are left to the authorities, then what's the use of having a democracy?"

Suppose all the authoritarians see the error of their ways and become more permissive. Won't teenagers who have been controlled by authoritarian teachers and parents suddenly run wild when the controls are lifted?

The word permissive, it turns out, is a no-no. "I've been whacked all over the place as a permissivist," explains Dr. Spock, "and I don't think I'm one at all. Besides, the word permissive means something different to everybody."

His caution is understandable. Vice President Spiro Agnew reportedly believes Dr. Spock and his permissive philosophy have encouraged the revolutionary tendencies of youth. While no two people agree on what permissiveness is, much less what its impact has been, Dr. Spock himself has revised his famous baby book in the areas of discipline.

In the forward to his revised Baby and Child Care, Dr. Spock explains: "When I was writing the first edition between 1943 and 1946, the attitude of a majority of people toward infant feeding, toilet training and general child management was still fairly strict and inflexible. Since then a great change in attitude has occurred and nowadays there seems to be more chance of a conscientious parent's getting into trouble with permissiveness than with strictness. So I have tried to give a more balanced view."

We get the word permissive out of the way – deciding instead to use democratic or understanding management — and go back to my worry that, as the nation's secondary schools and colleges and parents have become more "democratic," the young people often have reacted with hostility instead of self-discipline and cooperation.

"There will," Dr. Spock admits, "be some disruption and disorganization when a young people's institution goes from a highly autocratic to a more democratic system. This change has been shown in many cases to lead to an unleashing of all kinds of resentments on the part of the young people—often against the people who are most sympathetic to them."

Dr. Spock has no magical formulas. He believes some degree of disruption is inevitable as a school relaxes its formerly authoritarian ways. But he also is an optimist.

"In the long run — weeks or months — children will respond to a more democratic system and be reasonable."

The transition period can be made less painful, he advises, by making changes gradually and by lots of honest discussion between students, teachers and administrators.

Honest discussion and interactions between the older and younger generation can help both to grow and change. If Dr. Spock at age 68 could write a public recantation describing his conversion from a "male chauvinist" to an ardent defender of women's liberation, it isn't too late for a 15- or 16-year-old to change from a young Archie Bunker, a "turned-off" flower child or a mindless conformist.

If everyone is capable of change — no matter his age — then teachers of teenagers are in a particularly good position to affect the attitudes of their students, aren't they?

"They affect the attitudes of their students profoundly. Both of my sons went to excellent schools and became broader, wiser, more human people as a result of the good teaching they had. Many concepts — tolerance, cooperation, recognition of feelings — were dealt with in a more effective way earlier than my wife and I could have taught them."

I feel better. Even Doctor Spock couldn't be the perfect parent. But his answer brings up another question: Do liberal or radical teachers ever deliberately encourage students to protest as some conservative politicians have charged?

"Some teachers do have such a rankling sense of injustice as a result of their own lives. In a sense, they are stirring students up to protest in a way the students didn't discover for themselves," says Dr. Spock.

The solution? "Teachers have to distinguish between their own particular emotional angles and what really is important for other pupils as future citizens.

"If the teacher is an understanding and truly liberal person, his pupils will sense they are allowed to think about and discuss things that are not necessarily conventional academic matters.

"What the students come to by themselves, in a favorable atmosphere created by the teacher, is different from the teacher imposing his own particular social discontent on the class."

Once a young person has discovered a social injustice and is committed to eradicating it, how far should he carry his indignation? Write his congressman? Carry petitions? Demonstrate? Occupy a building? Break a law? Riot?

This would be a simple question to answer in a totalitarian nation, but in an open society like ours there are no simple formulas. In his book, Decent and Indecent, Dr. Spock tries to answer the question, "how far dissent?" He writes: "Each individual has to painfully make up his mind on the basis of how his conscience weighs the injustice, his own interests and his estimated future peace of mind."

For Dr. Spock his personal crisis of conscience came during the war in Vietnam. His antiwar activities — which included the sponsoring of a declaration of support to draft resisters entitled "A Call to Resist Illigitimate Authority" — resulted in his indictment and conviction on a charge of "conspiracy to aid, abet and counsel violations of the Selective Service law."

To Dr. Spock his activities were not only permissible under the First Amendment but necessary under the Nuremberg principle — the idea that a citizen must work against a war he believes in good conscience to be against international law. His conviction was subsequently overturned by a U.S. First Circuit Court of Appeals.

Dr. Spock has fought a lot of battles, written a lot of books and made many speeches in his 69 years. Now he is tired and closing his eyes; he slumps back against the seat. I wondered what motivates this man to subject himself to the abuse, the physical fatigue and the emotional strain of a political tour. He has enough honors to last him a lifetime; he has retired from his post as professor of child development at Western Reserve University; and his Baby and Child Care is the best-selling book in the United States — second only to the Bible.

I had one more question: Do you really think young people are capable of or idealistic enough to clean up the mess left by the older generation?

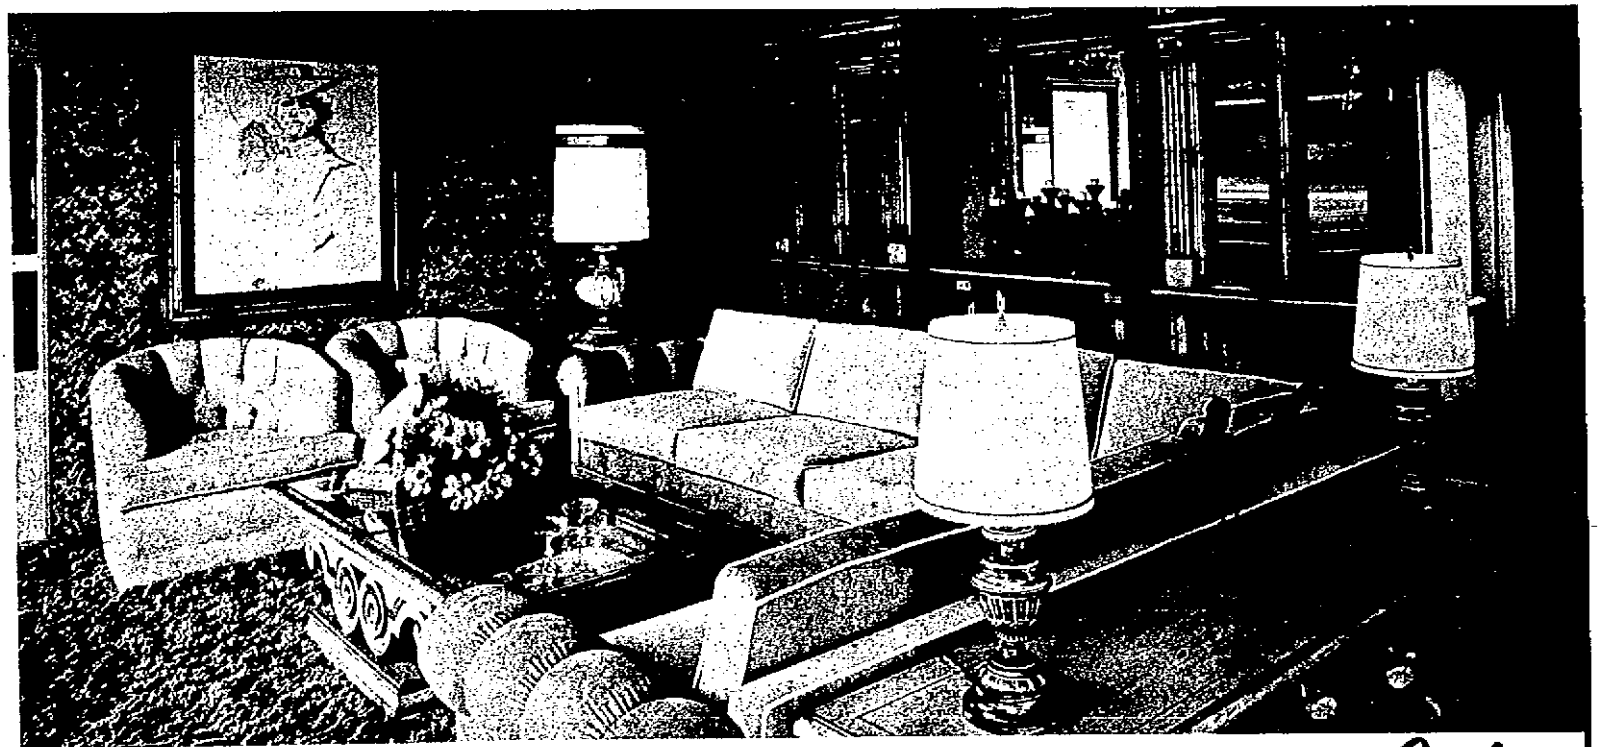

He sits up straight, his fatigue gone and his voice carries the ring of conviction. "I'm going to hang on to my belief that the move is toward greater concern for justice among the American youths, and I'm going to believe it just as long as I can find an excuse for believing it."

If Dr. Spock finds he can no longer believe in the young — in their idealism and their "lifestyle revolution" — then he says he will "give up, go down to the Virgin Islands, sail my boat and let the world go to hell."

Later, at the fund-raising event in the Valley, I suddenly understood what motivates him to run for president — what keeps him from relaxing in well-deserved retirement.

It's the young couple holding hands and listening to him intently; it's the bushy-haired youth who asks him intelligent questions about his party platform; it's the slender girl just back from a Peace Corps stint in Ecuador who wants to know how to get involved politically; it's the many small children who instinctively fall silent when Dr. Spock begins speaking.

They are all Dr. Spock's children. He helped make them what they are, and he believes they are the "only hope of the world." And they believe in him too. Maybe they don't buy all of his political ideas, but that isn't important. The important thing is that he gives them hope that the struggle to be a good person, a useful citizen, is worth it. Observing the rapport between Dr. Spock and his youthful admirers, I doubt that he will be doing much sailing the next few years. □

Without the Facts — Don't

Many homeowners make the decision to go into a major project such as modernization of their kitchen with many of the pertinent facts missing. Had they known all the facts, they might have decided not to have the work done at all. Some of the facts left out can lead into extras that might throw the job completely out of the price range and put a hardship on them for years to come.

Dealing with a reputable Kitchen contractor and one who specializes in Kitchens you will get all of the facts precise and clear; therefore your job costs will be accurate rather than guesstimated. Remodeling can be a truly enjoyable experience; but without the facts DON'T.

the diary of a Male

By CHARLES E. DOWNEY

"Sure, I'll watch the kid a couple weeks this summer," I muttered to my wife early in March.

Three months later, the day before college classes let out for the summer, the child-watching agreement was brought up again.

"What?" I questioned.

"But you promised," my wife said.

"I did?"

"Just as plain as day," she said, "and think of the money we'll save by taking the kid out of the nursery for two weeks."

"O.K.," I said as soon as a point of economics had been touched, "nothing to it, I'll watch him."

Monday, first day of vacation, rolled around and the weight of running a household shifted to my shoulders. I got up early, fixed our breakfast, saw Elsa to the door and handed her a sack containing the lunch I'd managed to put together.

On the second day, I noticed our neighbors across the street peeking through their curtains when Elsa left for work.

"Perhaps it would help if you'd quit wearing your bathrobe and slippers on the porch," Elsa said, whisking off with her lunch sack.

"Maybe they're trying to see if you have curlers in your hair," she said from the sidewalk.

I glanced around the neighborhood for more parted curtains and slunk back into the house.

The house was library quiet and I set to writing checks for bills that had piled from during finals. Ten minutes later, the kid, Thomas, awoke and started muttering a constant something about his mother when he discovered I was his overseer and only playmate for the second day in a row.

"You what?" I questioned, leaning down to see if I could read his lips.

Housewife

(or how I learned to love Women's Lib)

"I wanna talk mommy," he repeated with a pout.

Obligingly, I dialed Elsa's number at work and smiled at the thought of her answering the phone to a 3-year-old's babble.

"Hey, look," Elsa said, "we're having a sales meeting right now. Can't you call back later?"

"Sure, sure, didn't mean to bother you at the office," I said contritely and hung up.

"I WANNA talk mommy," Thomas demanded.

"You CAN'T talk mommy," I said, "she's busy selling transformers."

"I WANNA talk mommy," the kid repeated militantly, tears welling up in his eyes.

While the tears dried, I set out to do a few simple household chores before getting back to the neglected bills.

The curtains across the street were still parting from time to time, so I pulled all the shades and vacuumed the rug. The dishes were piled so I washed them. While I was at the sink, the kid demonstrated his version of the 50-yard dash and left a trail of mud from the front door to the back.

While I recleaned the rug, the lady who lived in the house with the parting cutains came over and knocked on the door.

She introduced herself and wanted to know if by any chance we'd seen prowlers the night before. I stood at the door with a sponge in one hand, a dish towel over one shoulder and Thomas peeking around one leg.

I think she was looking for curlers in my hair.

The lady went back to her curtains and the day passed. Elsa dragged home and flopped into a chair, exhausted. She recounted the day's activities at the transformer company: the accountant had bugged her with his numbering systems, the salesmen were lazy, the boss forgetful, the telephone busy and the freeway frantic.

"And how was your day?" she got around to asking.

The issues on which I could discourse consisted of when and why Thomas cried, how many times he went to the bathroom, what he ate for lunch, where the dirt collects most on the rug and what the lady from behind the parting curtains said.

"Oh, so-so," I said, dismissing the chance to relate my household perceptions.

By week's end, 17 daily trips to go potty had me pacing the floors with a case of cabin fever.

I dressed the kid for a shopping excursion downtown. Because he was hungry, we went into Kresge's, waited for stools and ordered.

"I wanna go potty," Thomas said as I took my first bite.

If he did, in fact, have to answer nature's call and I made him sit there, it would have been unforgettingly embarrassing to have dragged him through throngs of shoppers with his pants dripping. If, on the other hand, we left for a bathroom our lunch would be wasted.

I opted for the bathroom and found he'd been bluffing.

I still wonder if he planned it that way.

The last week as a housewife began with more resolution to get some much-needed desk work done. I gathered my papers together.

"I wanna go play," the kid said as I settled down to the desk. I put the book down and put a coat on him. He gathered 27 favorite toys for the two-minute trip to the neighborhood playground.

I resumed my place in the family ledger as the kid mounted the sliding board. After one descent, he came to my bench and announced:

"I wanna go potty."

"Ha," I snorted, "you must think your dad's pretty dumb to get pulled into that one again."

I returned to my work. Several minutes later, we were on my way home, Thomas trailing drops of water from his pants.

"We goan home potty?" the kid asked innocently.

"Yes," I answered through pinched lips, "we goan home potty."

The changing of clothes was barely completed when the phone rang.

A friend on leave from the Army suggested we spend the afternoon shooting pool.

"Shoot pool!" I shot back as if he'd invited me to go and shoot people. Instant visions swam before me of the kid running amok through the pool room, grabbing pool sticks and drinking everyone's beer, stimulating his already active kidneys.

"Yeah, why not?" my Army friend asked.

"Well," I began reaching for excuses, "I've got a hell of a lot of things to do and er . . ."

Just then, Thomas climbed the phone stand and pulled it over on himself. Like an air raid siren he began an increasingly louder howl.

"What's going on?" my friend asked. "Having a New Year's party already?"

"No, that's just the kid," I said nonchalantly, freeing the trapped climber from the phone stand. "He's staying home from the day orphanage this week."

"Oh, babysitting, huh?" he said bluntly. "Well, I'll call you back when you can get out of the house."

The conversation irked me more than last year's — a year I didn't work — tax return on which Elsa was listed under "Head of Household." My name went under "Spouse."

The world seemed to exist at the other end of the phone.

A photographer friend called about a new type of film he wanted to try. Bill is a self-employed freelance photographer so he's generally home all day while his wife works. Over the years, Bill has become pretty handy at homemaking and household chores.

"I better go," Bill said, "my wash is almost finished and I've got a cake in the oven. It's going to be a burnt sugar creation."

"Sounds good," I said, "I'm doing a dish with beef hearts."

"Oh yeah?" Bill asked. "What's in it?"

"Well," I began, "besides beef hearts, apple slices, mushrooms, curry . . ."

My voice trailed off as I began to suspect and then imagine somebody listening in. We sounded like a real-life version of the Odd Couple killing time between soap operas.

As it became time to enroll for summer classes, I discovered a housewife enjoys about the same titillation and variety of events as a comatose hospital patient.

And, daily happenings had taken on a somewhat predictable pattern: Elsa left for work at 7:40, the curtains across the street parted at 7:41, the kid woke up at 8:12 and had the rug on fire by 8:31. By 4:06, I had heard two old ladies outline recent gallstone operations and recall the particulars of a neighbor who'd suffered a slight stroke while sitting on the toilet.

Housewifery, in short, is like watching the same 1950-vintage movie, all day, every day.

I began to receive a partial insight why most housewives talk only about kids' cute sayings and recipes.

The Sunday before classes started, there was an article in the paper by Kate Millet, the Women's Liberation advocate.

"Listen to this," I quoted to Elsa, who was knitting: " 'Housework isn't compensated, therefore society considers doing chores in a home worthless.' "

I expected a chorus of "Right on!" and upraised fists, but Elsa's clacking needles was the only response.

"How 'bout that," I said, "these girls have really had it with menial household chores handed down from mother to daughter.

"Why," I added as if I'd discovered something profound, "it's a revolt! Housewives are revolting against a form of slavery!"

Elsa mumbled her unqualified agreement and continued knitting.

I continued quoting from the newspaper: "They want FREE child care centers and listen to how this is phrased: 'dreadful degradation of cooking meals, making beds and wiping runny noses'!"

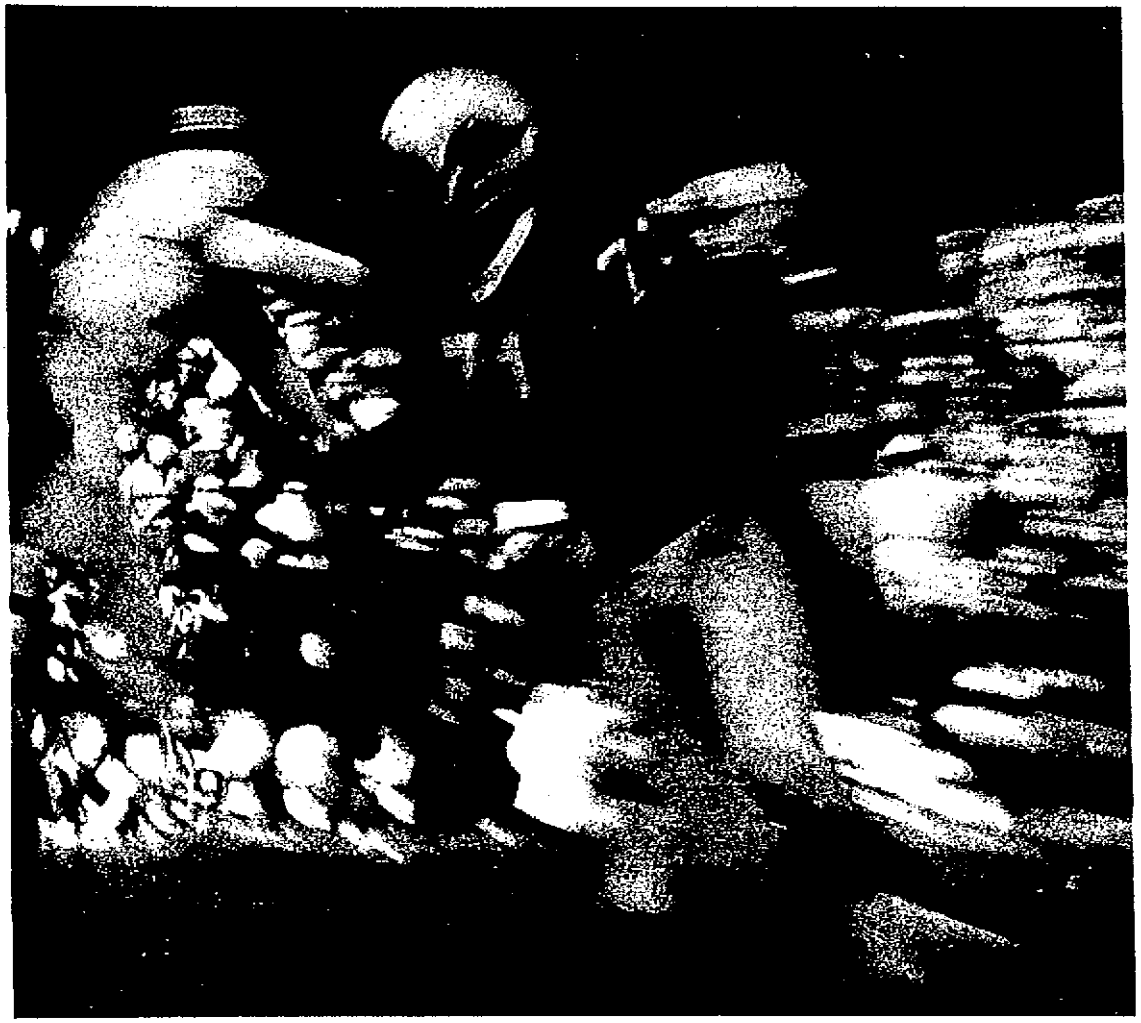

Elsa retained her composure.

"Can't you relate to that?" I asked. "Wouldn't you like to get out and lend a hand to Women's Lib?"

"Oh, I don't know, things aren't that bad," she said without looking up from her knitting.

I re-read the article and found that my jaw had become somewhat set.

"Sock it to 'em, Kate," I mumbled to nobody in particular, hoping Women's Liberation would some day also include men. □

Summer of '72 Not a Good Time for Movies

By REX REED

As the weather turns hot, thoughts turn to swimming holes, county fairs, ice-cold watermelon and air-conditioned movies. Unfortunately, this summer may go down in film history as the summer that didn't happen. Most of what the movie companies have dreamed up (in Freudian nightmares, no doubt) for the Summer of '72 seems designed to do the industry in. Just take one look at the movie ads in your local newspaper, your blood will run cold and you'll save yourself four dollars without ever leaving your house. From where I sit, it looks as though a lot of people are going to be staying home in front of their TV sets.

Except for Robert Redford's funny, moving and enlightening political movie, "The Candidate," a fascinating documentary about the sham, hypocrisy and commercial slaughter of the innocents in the evangelical revival-tent industry called "Margoe," Alfred Hitchcock's fine new suspense thriller "Frenzy" and Goldie Hawn's blank-eyed daffodil performance as an endearing Holly Golightly who loves a blind boy in the bittersweet comedy "Butterflies Are Free," summer viewing at the movies seems specially crafted to appeal to folks with I.Q.'s of 45 or under.

First, there are the horror flicks — so many of them falling out of nowhere like UFO's, it's impossible to keep up with them all. one hideous trend does seem to be rearing its ugly head in all this nauseating flotsam, and that is the new awareness on somebody's part that animals are man's worst enemy. What did the poor critters ever do that we should rip them off this way? In one movie after another, people are getting eaten alive by rats, gummed to death by frogs, attacked by poisonous rattlesnakes and annihilated by armies of chimpanzees carrying machine guns. Now MGM has suddenly announced plans to release something called "Night of the Lepus" in which the world is depopulated by giant rabbits. What can a rabbit do? Hop you to death?

I don't know what you can do to protect yourself against "Stanley," a revolting concoction about a man who sends his pet rattlesnake named Stanley to wipe out half the populace. The movie is accompanied by ads warning sufferers of herpetophobia (deadly fear of snakes or reptiles) to stay away as a health precaution, but what if you have herpetophobia and don't know it? You could suffer a fatal heart attack in the middle of the movie and then you wouldn't get to see "Night of the Lepus."

"Frogs" will probably turn you off frogs' legs forever. It is the latest horror from American-International, a company that has always been there first with themes of topical urgency, like surfing, beach blanket bikinis, psychedelic acid trips and greasy psychotic Hell's Angels. This year the word is "ecology." In "Frogs," nature gets even with Ray Milland, and I can't say there's too much wrong with that. Ray is a redneck Florida good-for-nothing who bosses his family around in the Everglades swamps and makes life just plain hell for all the creepy-crawlies, too. First, it's just a bunch of frogs upsettin' the front porch. But before you can say shucks, the butler finds a snake in the chandelier, the grandson is attacked by tarantulas, gila monsters turn over the insecticide in the orchid house, the daughter is sucked to death by leeches, the son-in-law is eaten alive by alligators, a cousin is devoured by fish and the wife is pulled under by a giant turtle. Under the circumstances, it is difficult to worry about Ray Milland, left alone in the last reel without even the protection of his hairpiece, presumably to be licked to death.

"Ben," which pretends to be a sequel to the dismal-but-bafflingly popular "Willard," is a revolting and embarrassingly amateurish movie about rats that is too dumb to be scary and too boring to be silly. At the end of "Willard," the rat named Socrates was killed, leaving a big black, hairy rodent named Ben to rule the rat empire. Ben reigns over millions of them, dividing their meals between cops and cornflakes, while Ben bathes in the luxury of a suburban house occupied by an obnoxious kid named Lee Harcourt Montgomery, who has obviously seen a lot of old movies featuring Dean Stockwell at the age of 10. While he composes love songs to rats at a grand piano, Ben rides on his electric train between raids on cheese shops and reducing salons. When the cops come running for help, the brat refuses to save the city from being declared a disaster area because he's too busy playing "Moonlight Sonata" on his harmonica. He ends up in the sewer beneath the city's drainpipes (where the movie belongs) where fighting the rats cures his terminal heart condition. You'd think the last thing in the world the people who live in rat-infested slums in Harlem would want to see is a movie about people being terrorized by rats, but in the theatre where I saw "Ben," the audience was composed primarily of blacks and Puerto Ricans who yelled enthusiastic choruses of "Kill those mothers!" each time someone was eaten alive by a fresh squadron of rats. These people paid $4 apiece to see a rotten movie just to feed their basic instincts and, for that reason alone, I think the people responsible for making "Ben" should be arrested.

Finally, last and definitely least, there are the "black flicks" — movies designed specifically for black audiences to identify with in some kind of power fantasy. I'd review them if I could tell them apart, but movies like "Shaft's Big Score," "Top of the Heap," "A Cool Breeze," "The Legend of Nigger Charley" and "Come Back, Charleston Blue" are all so pointless, mindless and lacking in any kind of contemporary relevance that my eyes glaze over just trying to distinguish one from another. Black people need their Cottons and Shafts as heroes, I suppose, just as the French have their Fantomas, the whites their Superman and the Women's Lib sisters their Wonder Woman. But it is sad to see the distortions and lies that are concealed by the skull-crushing black gunslingers and hyperthyroidal sex-fiend black cops in these desperate conjobs.

It is not a good time for movies. With all the bloodshed spilling over on the screen, there's only one thing left to do before going to the movies this summer: be sure your life insurance is paid in full.

GOURMET GUIDE

By JACK O. BALDWIN

If all the people who dined at Rochelle's Restaurant and Convention Center last year were to stand in one line, the line would reach from Rochelle's at the entrance to the Long Beach Airport on Lakewood Boulevard, southward to Ensenada, Mexico, or northward beyond Bakersfield, or eastward to the Salton Sea.

Last year, Ben Rochelle, the guiding force behind the restaurant-motel-convention center, played host to more than a half-million breakfast, lunch, and dinner guests. That is a lot of people! It is mute but dramatic testimonial of the endorsement given by eat-outers to one of the Southland's finest eating establishments.

With its coffee shop, ornate dining rooms, and sprawling banquet rooms, Rochelle's is indeed an establishment.

"We can seat someone who drops in for lunch and brings 699 guests with him," the congenial host at Rochelle's points out.

Rochelle's is geared, equipped and staffed to provide fast service of excellent quality food, served piping hot, including the specialty of the house, Grade AAA, USDA, prime rib, to 1,500 banqueteers.

The number of guests served is bound to increase. Recently, Lorraine McDuffie, who is Ben's feminine right hand, inaugurated the Early Bird Special, served from 4 to 6:30 p.m. every day except Saturday. The E. B. S. presents a selection of six entrees including veal cutlet, roast beef au jus with oodles of au jus, English cut prime rib, broiled northern halibut steak, Guaymas jumbo shrimp or fillet of English sole. With the Early Bird comes a choice of the chef's soup of the day or the French onion or a tossed green salad with a variety of dressing drenchings, plus a choice of baked, mashed or French fries, the vegetable du jour, butter pads to spread on hot rolls, a beverage and a dish of sherbet as a topper. A superb dinner for only $2.95. Quality, quantity, service, and price — an unbeatable combination.

From the regular dinner menu, guests may select, hot from the broiler and cooked as ordered, Rochelle's special steak or a petit filet mignon entwined with bacon, for just $4.25 or select the larger sized filet mignon, the maitre d'hotel New York steak or the appetite-satisfying Australian lobster, top sirloin steak combination, any one of the three for $6.95.

AS THE SETTING summer sun dips toward the horizon, it's an excellent time to head toward Victor Hugo's. Actually, anytime is a good time to head toward Victor Hugo's in the 700-block on East Broadway in Long Beach, but owner Bella Hirsch has created a special inducement for drifting that way between 4 and 7 p.m.

Choose from Bella's Early Dinner menu, pay only $4.95 and enjoy choosing from a selection of jumbo fried shrimp served with tangy cocktail sauce, fillets of Irish Dover sole with tartar sauce, top sirloin steak, baked New York superba, ground sirloin steak, grilled calf liver with bacon or onions, broiled lamb chops with mint jelly, or that all-American favorite, Southern fried chicken.

Be certain to bring a guest with you. That low price for the Early Dinner is for two persons.

For two? That's right!

With the Early Dinner comes a relish tray of chilled garden goodies, a choice of soup du jour or a tossed mixed green salad with a selection of favorite dressings, and steaming hot coffee.

The two-for-one-priced Early Dinner is served Monday through Saturday. Bella and the staff take a breather on Sundays when the restaurant is closed.

Bella's hospitality has made Victor Hugo's the "inn" and "in" place to go for lunch. And little wonder! Luncheons are served from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m. and range in price from $1.45 to only $1.95. The luncheon flyer offers guests a choice of a wide variety of entrees which include short ribs, lamb chops, barbecued ribs of beef, veal parmesan, Cordon Bleu, crepes neptune, crepes Rene, chicken in white sauce, eggs Benedict, lamb shanks or sirloin tips Bordelais. With lunch comes a choice of soup du jour or a tossed green salad which chef Rollie Andrews offers with a choice of Roquefort, Italian, Thousand Island, or French dressing, and of course, coffee.

The dinner menus are hoisted at 4 p.m. Complete dinners ranging in price from $4.25 for Scallapini to $5.95 for lobster flamingo, are served until 10 p.m.

The cocktail lounge is open until the mandatory closing time. □

Medicine & You

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Asthma patients can sometimes be trained to control the severity of some asthma attacks and to avoid other attacks entirely, researchers contend.

One team of researchers says that a form of treatment called "verbal desensitization" can turn off asthma attacks.

Drs. H. G. S. Sergeant and N. Y. Yorkston of Maudsley Hospital, London, England, describe a patient on whom the technique was tried. She has been able to discontinue all drug treatment and has now been "completely free of asthma for over five years."

Briefly, the technique is as follows: Patients are made to relax. Then factors that can provoke symptoms are described to them in precisely controlled steps until they no longer cause a reaction. Later, the patient gradually returns to the actual situations that once precipitated his asthma.

Details are in the Lancet, a British medical journal, and also in Clinical Trends, a medical newspaper.

A new type of X-ray machine is said to be 100 times more sensitive than any other radiologic system invented so far. It is currently undergoing tests at Atkinson Morley Hospital, Wimbledon, England.

Medical researchers say the device promises to revolutionize diagnosis of brain disorders.

The new system combines a digital computer with highly sensitive X-ray detectors. It is known as Computerized Transverse Axial Tomography. The X-ray machine rotates around the patient's head, taking tens of thousands of readings from a narrow band of X-rays passing through the head in a single plane. These are fed into the computer.

The ability of the device to detect minute variations in brain tissue permits such disorders as cysts, tumors and hemorrhages to be clearly viewed.

The report is in Medical Tribune, a newspaper for physicians

Emergency vein-bypass surgery can be lifesaving for some patients suffering acute heart attack complicated by shock (circulatory collapse).

Researchers in Ottawa, Canada, say that the death rate for patients with shock complicating heart attack is 80 per cent or more when medical treatment is used.

In contrast, the Canadian researchers say, aggressive surgery that puts in a saphenous vein (from the leg) graft increases the volume of blood to the heart muscle. This move, they say, restores the heart's contractile function before irreversible heart-muscle damage occurs.

The doctors report in Canadian Medical Association Journal on five cases in which surgery was performed three to five hours after heart attack and three to nine hours after the onset of shock.

Good dental health is highly important for children with congenital heart defects to prevent further complications of their heart condition.

So says Dr. Shadi L. Khanna of the University of British Columbia in Vancouver.

In a report to the International Association for Dental Research he told of a study of 68 children with congenital heart defects—patients at the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston. More than 60 per cent were not receiving regular dental examinations or treatment.

Untreated oral infections, he points out, can bring about an increase in the number of bacteria in the blood stream. This, in turn, can cause subacute bacterial endocarditis, inflammation of the lining of the heart, a condition that is especially dangerous for a heart that is already defective.

No major change in the health of the world is likely without further intensification of medical research, says Dr. M. G. Candau of the World Health Organization.

In a new report, he implies that the concentration of effort in the delivery of health services in many countries is being frustrated by lack of basic knowledge.

Progress in both developed and undeveloped countries has been disappointing, he says.

He points in particular to the great increase of cardiovascular disease among the middle-aged.

Parathion, a widely used pesticide, may cause fetal malformation or death, new animal studies suggest.

Research at Vanderbilt University Medical Center shows that the compound can produce fetal deaths in pregnant mice.

Researchers have found that the drug phenobarbital can protect against the action of the pesticide. Trouble is, the phenobarbital administration is a pretreatment procedure. What is needed is a drug that can be given at time of exposure or immediately afterward.

Such a drug is dimethyl sulfoxide (DMSO). It is currently under study because scientists have found that it protects against parathion in the same way as does phenobarbital.

DANIEL BERRIGAN

DANIEL ELLSBERG

Q. How much did it cost Father Daniel Berrigan and the other defendants at Harrisburg to defend themselves against the U.S.? How much will it cost Daniel Ellsberg and Tony Russo to defend themselves? How much does it cost the government to prosecute these cases?—Ron Miller, Berkeley, Calif.

A. The Father Berrigan defense came to $600,000. The Ellsberg-Russo defense will cost approximately the same. No one knows exactly how much it costs the government to prosecute these cases. A safe estimate is three times the cost of the defense.

Q. What happened to that $500,000 action against Liza Minnelli? She was accused of enticing a band drummer and breaking up his marriage.—Anne Craig, Dallas, Tex.

A. Mrs. Margaret Kulbeth of Houston, Tex., wife of Rex Kulbeth who played with the Bojangles musical group under the name of Rex Kramer, accused Liza Minnelli of enticing Rex to leave her. Miss Minnelli originally denied the allegations of the alienation of affection action. Several weeks ago, however, her attorneys quietly settled the suit out of court.

Q. Three years ago in Washington, D.C., Henry Kissinger told Quaker representatives: "Give us six months. If we haven't ended the war then, you can come back and tear down the fence." How come Kissinger has been so wrong about the war?—Robert Dolan, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

A. Kissinger has tried but has consistently failed to understand the North Vietnamese mind.

Q. Why did the FBI "bug" football star Joe Namath's sex life?—M.N., New Rochelle, N.Y.

A. The FBI never bugged Joe Namath's sex life. At one point Namath's business associates were under FBI surveillance. In the course of that surveillance Namath and his friendship with an airline hostess came under review. The FBI, as an investigational agency, believes in gathering more material than less.

Q. I understand that Andy Griffith, Peter Fonda and Johnny Carson were all recently divorced in the same week. On what grounds?—Paula Travers, Carbondale, Ill.

A. All three were divorced in the third week of June, 1972. Griffith, after 23 years of marriage, lost wife Barbara because of "irreconcilable differences." Peter Fonda lost his wife of 10 years on the same grounds. Joanne Carson charged "cruel and inhuman" treatment after eight years of marriage.

ANDY GRIFFITH AND EX-WIFE BARBARA.

PETER FONDA AND EX-WIFE SUSAN.

JOHNNY CARSON AND EX-WIFE JOANNE.

Q. Did Marcello Mastroianni ever leave his wife for an airline hostess? Is it on the level that this Italian Romeo has all the constancy of a rabbit?—Theresa Novelli, Chicago, Ill.

A. Actor Mastroianni generally falls in love with his leading lady. Several years ago, however, after he finished La Dolce Vita, he engaged in a protracted love affair with a stewardess, flying with her from one European city to another.

Q. Has Oleg Prokofiev, son of the Russian composer, defected to the U.S.?—R.L.L., Washington, D.C.

A. Oleg Prokofiev, 44, artist son of the late Russian composer, Sergei Prokofiev, has been permitted to stay in England for another year even though he has exceeded his Soviet permission to stay abroad. Prokofiev, who has been lecturing at Sheffield University, is defying a Soviet order to return to Moscow, but he has not defected or requested political asylum. His English wife, Camilla Gray, daughter of Basil Gray, former keeper of Far Eastern art in the British Museum, died in Moscow last December after suffering a miscarriage. Prokofiev currently resides with his in-laws in their country home, Long Wittenham, Berkshire.

Q. What's happened to Arthur Murray, the dancing teacher, and his wife? —Mavis Kennedy, Waltham, Mass.

A. Arthur Murray, 77, and his wife, Kathryn, 65, have been married 47 years, live in a Honolulu penthouse apartment. Murray — real name, Teichman — has retired but spends some of his time as an investment counselor.

THE MURRAYS

Q. President Nixon said in a recent press conference, June 29, 1972, that the North Vietnamese never accounted for the 15,000 French prisoners of war they took in 1954. Is that statement accurate? I understand it is not.—W.E., Cambridge, Mass.

A. According to the French government, President Nixon was in error. The Viet Minh returned approximately 9200 prisoners of war after their victory at Dien Bien Phu in 1954. Another 6000 members of the French army who were ethnically Vietnamese, were unaccounted for. But the North Vietnamese say these were allowed to return to their homes, a statement which may or may not be true.

VOTING ROULETTE If you're running for an elective office this year, you will do best if you are a male Scandinavian professor with a nickname positioned in the center of the ballot.

So declare Dr. Gary C. Byrne, an assistant professor of political science at San Diego State University, and J. Kristian Pueschel, a special assistant to U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston (D., Calif.).

After analyzing the research on 3600 candidates who ran in approximately 500 California elections from 1948 to 1970, these political pundits arrive at the following conclusions:

(1) A candidate's occupation makes a great difference. Those candidates who refuse to specify their occupation suffer a 40 percent disadvantage. College professors and incumbents enjoy the greatest occupational advantages, professors by an approximate 75 percent, incumbents by 50 percent.

Engineers and lawyers rank next with a 20 percent advantage. Scientists, businessmen, teachers, skilled laborers, and political officeholders enjoy neither advantage nor disadvantage.

Stockbrokers, doctors, dentists, life insurance agents, housewives, salesmen, and real estate brokers suffer disadvantages ranging from 15 to 25 percent.

(2) Candidates with Scandinavian surnames enjoy a 24 percent advantage over candidates with other names. An English surname offers a slight advantage. An Irish or a Greek surname provides neither advantage nor disadvantage. "However, if the candidate has a Spanish surname, he will be at an 11 percent disadvantage. If he has a Jewish surname he's under a 14 percent disadvantage, and an East European name gets a 21 percent disadvantage. Italians are, by far, the worst off, with a 39 percent disadvantage." This, mind you, applies to the California electorate.

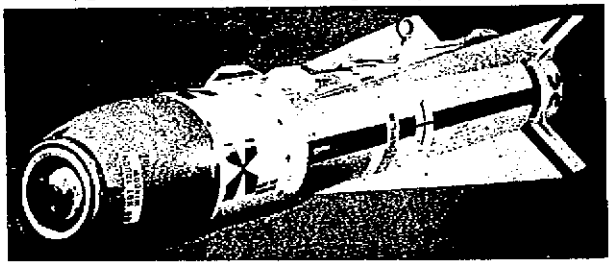

(3) Male candidates enjoy an 8 percent advantage over female candidates.

(4) Candidates who go by a nickname on the ballot -- such as "Red" Jones, for instance -- enjoy a tremendous 79 percent advantage over those who do not.

(5) Contrary to much public opinion first place on the ballot does not provide a candidate with any built-in advantage. In the middle places on a large ballot, there is an increasing advantage ranging from 1 to 25 percent.

A TV camera lens protrudes from the nose cone of the newly-developed Maverick bomb. Pilot can push a button to "lock-on" the nose camera to a target and shoot the missile. While TV "eye" automatically guides the bomb (below) to the target, the pilot can scoot away.

SMART BOMBS Ever since World War II it has been held that air-bombing alone cannot win a war. But that tenet was established new highs for accuracy in Vietnam against tanks and fixed targets, which is why the Air Force has gone all-out in ordering their sophisticated development.

One of the latest TV-guided bombs, scheduled for future use in Vietnam, is the air-to-ground Maverick missile produced at Hughes Aircraft in Tucson, Ariz.

Approximately eight feet long, one foot in diameter and weighing 462 pounds, the bomb is guided by a gyro-stabilized TV camera in its nose.

To lock the Maverick onto target, the pilot sites his TV camera whose picture is displayed in the cockpit before launch. When the target is aligned he releases a button which causes the missile to lock onto the target.

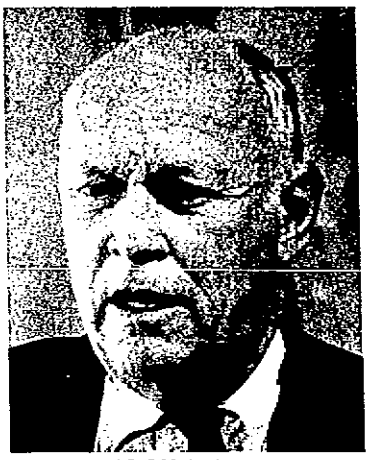

EGEBERG ON DRUGS

Dr. Roger Egeberg, President Nixon's special adviser for public health, believes the solution to the drug problem lies not in halting the heroin traffic but in finding out why people take drugs in the first place.

"I'm not saying," he recently explained in Paris at a meeting of the World Health Organization, "that you shouldn't keep working at cutting off your opium sources. But no one so far has seriously gotten into the question of narcotics use...

"If heroin were cut off from the thousands of addicts in the United States," he pointed out, "most of them would get hooked on something else. We've got to start focusing on the addict rather than the agent who addicts him. It's not a short-term goal, but it's the basic untouched one. Explanations and statistics about why people take drugs are at present superficial and incomplete.

"When you say that somebody is on narcotics," Dr. Egeberg went on, "because he is bored or frustrated or afraid of the future, you are at the same place they were centuries back when they condemned wells. They knew people were getting sick and from where, but they didn't know about bacteria.

"Addicts rarely tell the truth. They tell whatever story they think the interviewer wants to hear. You have addicts going from one center to another telling 80 different stories... We just don't have anything in hand that's definitive on this subject. I think more and more we will be focusing on the individual while continuing the law-enforcement aspects."

REISSUES

Hollywood studios can no longer provide theater exhibitors with the number of films they need to release each year. As a result they are re-releasing old films they have not as yet sold to television.

MGM, for example, which last year re-released: "Gone With the Wind," "2001, A Space Odyssey," "Ryan's Daughter," and "Doctor Zhivago," will do the same again this fall.

Explains general sales manager Bill Madden: "We hope to continue with the idea for years to come. What we are doing is making available four of our box-office winners at a time when theater owners need them the most."

In the old days the typical Hollywood studio would produce from 40 to 50 films a year. Currently each turns out fewer than 10. Were it not for television, Hollywood these days would be a ghost town.

OLYMPIC TELEVISION

Thanks to television and space technology, 300 million people will witness at least some portion of this year's Olympic Games between Aug. 26 and Sept. 10.

Two major developments make it possible to reach this record audience: satellite communication and videotape recording. Events taking place in Munich will be televised worldwide via communications satellites 22,300 miles in space. These fixed space relay stations will carry the Munich events to any of six continents in four-tenths of a second.

Four satellites, two over the Atlantic, one over the Pacific, and one over the Indian Ocean, will be used. In addition to relaying pictures and sound, each satellite has transmission channels for up to 21 commentators, thus offering a capacity of more than 80 languages.

Time and cultural differences make videotape recording the other essential ingredient in reaching the world audience. All Munich events will occur at times inconvenient to viewers in some parts of the world. Without the quick editing and immediate playback of video recording, it would be impossible to schedule television coverage of events at times convenient to local audiences. German authorities estimate that 95 percent of all televised events will be viewed via tapes.

For example, an important track event scheduled for 2 p.m. in Munich would have to be telecast live at 6 a.m. in San Diego or 9 a.m. in New York. Obviously, neither hour would attract many viewers. A videotape recording, on the other hand, can be held until a more convenient viewing time the same day or edited into highlights.

To provide television coverage of the 16-day Olympic Games, a special German television authority, Deutsches Olympisches Zentrum (DOZ), has been established. DOZ has leased 42 videotape recorders (each one sells for $150,000) from the Ampex Corporation of Redwood City, Calif., for its broadcast delay and program editing services.

Not all the equipment used to cover the Olympics, however, will be provided by the DOZ. The American Broadcasting Company of the United States, BBC of Great Britain, CBC of Canada and others will have their own studios for recording and editing program material specifically for their home audiences, concentrating, of course, on their own athletes.

Approximately 2500 television technicians, announcers, and officials will be working the Olympic Games. This represents one television employee for every five athletes.

NO COLD VACCINE

For years the National Institutes of Health has been hopeful of developing a vaccine against the common cold. Hundreds of servicemen over the years have volunteered as guinea pigs in various vaccine tests.

It now appears, however, that the common cold is caused by well over 100 different viruses, and there is little hope of developing vaccines to prevent the infections.

This disclosure was part of the secret testimony given by Dr. Dorland J. Davis of NIH before a House appropriations subcommittee last March 16th.

Weight Problem? Don't Be a Yo-Yo

by Suzanne Curley

BALTIMORE, MD.

Dr. Neil Solomon, the latest Pied Piper of America's obese (one out of five), prescribes no pills, administers no shots, and offers no cure-all regimen for reducing weight.

He promises no speedy results and insists that calories DO count—more than anything else. Yet he claims a 50 percent success rate over a 10-year period in helping patients shed unwanted fat.

Author of a book called The Truth About Weight Control (Stein & Day), which is becoming the Everything You Always, Etc. of weight-watching, Dr. Solomon has spent more than 10 years in obesity research.

He has one primary truth: there is no miracle cure for obesity. There is only one cause for "fat"—the body is not burning up its calorie intake. Once the cause for this is found and controlled, weight loss can begin.

Loss should continue at the rate of one or two pounds a week until the ideal weight is achieved.

"At this point," says Dr. Solomon, "the healthy person should not have to be as obsessed with counting calories as he was during his weight-loss program. His metabolism should be automatically stabilizing his weight.

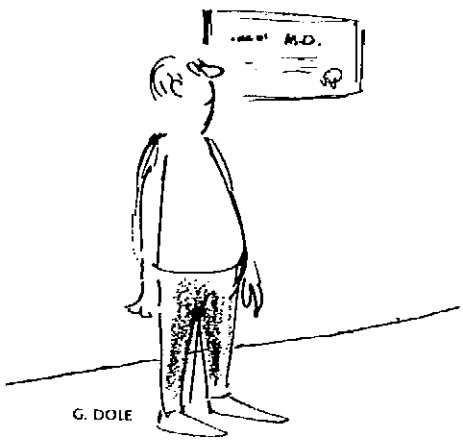

"There is usually a psychological reason," he continues, "why a person begins to overeat—frustration, boredom, an unhappy love affair. But once a person becomes obese, even if it's only a matter of 10 pounds or so, his chances of developing some metabolic imbalance increase, making it impossible for him to lose weight—even if he cuts down on his food drastically. That's when it's up to a doctor to detect the problem and treat it."

Yo-Yo dieters

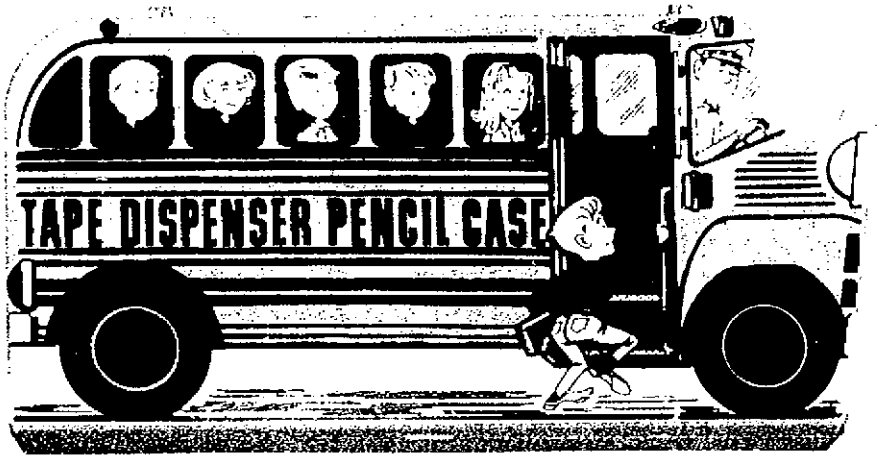

Throughout his years of studying the obese, Dr. Solomon has noted the "yo-yo syndrome." That's what happens to compulsive dieters who continually go up and down in weight.

"Some of my patients," says Dr. Solomon, "look back over the years of being on and off the diet wagon and realize that they've gained and lost their body weight three and four times over."

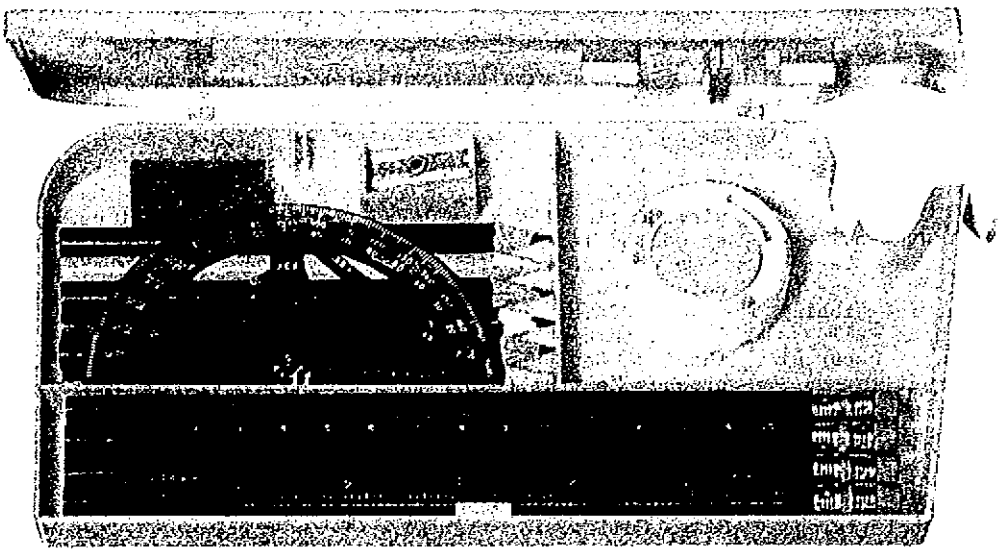

Dr. Solomon has devised a one-week balanced diet of 1800 calories to reveal if a patient belongs in the yo-yo category, and if there is a physiological disturbance. If, after seven days on his 1800-calorie diet, a weight gain is evident, then the body is chemically upset.

The lanky and energetic Dr. Solomon was once a "yo-yo" himself. "I would go anywhere from five to 15 pounds over my ideal weight—until I decided to take my own advice and have myself checked out. I found that I had a minor, easily treatable metabolic disorder. Since then I haven't varied in weight by more than two pounds."

When questioned about fad diets, Dr. Solomon does a quick burn. "There is absolutely no truth whatsoever to the contention that it's healthiest to get the pounds off FAST. The fact is that it's downright dangerous to neglect basic nutrition and thus starve your vital organs—doing them irreparable damage."

Quick-loss diets present a great temptation for the despairing overweights, so Dr. Solomon offers a few suggestions to those who want to begin to lose weight immediately—even before seeing a doctor:

- Abstain from all desserts, between-meal snacks, alcohol and salt.
- Eat half portions of whatever else you normally would eat.
- Drink an eight-ounce glass of ice water five minutes before every meal.
- Keep on hand a good supply of "emergency foods" such as raw vegetables for nibbling.
- Carry a calorie-counter booklet at all times to remind you to think of your calorie allowance. The average daily allowance for men is estimated at 2800; for women, 2000.

"Eventually, if you keep to a balanced diet and a reasonable amount of calories per day, you should not only lose weight, but bring your body's metabolism back to normal," Dr. Solomon says. "But it's not always easy or even possible to do this by yourself. Seeing a doctor who is qualified to diagnose the stumbling blocks and tailor a diet to your specific need is the only sane thing to do."

Exercise certainly is an important part of the Solomon prescription. The doctor himself keeps on the run every day to various jobs as Maryland's Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene, attending his private practice, and teaching at Johns Hopkins Hospital. He is also a husband and father of three.

The best exercise for anyone interested, he says with a smile, is sex. "It burns up approximately 300 calories per couple."

"I'm taking you off sugar 'n' spice and everything nice."

The Abdication of John Mitchell

by Jack Anderson

Martha and John Mitchell in a happy moment when he was Attorney General and close Nixon adviser. She rebelled after he quit to be campaign manager.

Martha on telephone: Her unfettered calls to journalists and politicians night and day—anyone to scold or confide in—first brought her to national attention.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

The sexual revolution notwithstanding, Republicans have proven this summer that the American people still appreciate a good old-fashioned family squabble—especially with John and Martha Mitchell as the combatants and President Nixon playing Dear Abby.

No scriptwriter for TV serials could have served up a hotter political opera. It all began suddenly at midnight with a phone call to UPI reporter Helen Thomas, a friendly ear to Martha over the last three years.

"I was surprised to get the call," Miss Thomas confided, but the veteran reporter told Martha to keep talking. To Miss Thomas' astonishment, Martha Mitchell began spouting political heresy. "I love my husband very much, but I'm not going to stand for all those dirty things going on," said Martha, adding that she would leave her husband if he did not leave the campaign.

Once labeled the Administration's secret weapon, Martha had suddenly turned her guns on the party that, heretofore, had relished her outspoken opinions. To another reporter Martha indirectly attacked President Nixon, himself, who had once cheered her from the sidelines. Sputtered Martha: "I doubt seriously if I want any of the current candidates in the White House."

Honesty makes good copy

"It was my feeling," Miss Thomas told us, "that Martha often said publicly what she heard Administration officials, including her husband, say privately. That's what made her such good copy, her honesty. But those last phone calls were different."

Martha explained that she had been placed under heavy security guard. Calling herself a "political prisoner," she charged that one guard had yanked her telephone out of the wall and that other guards had held her down on her bed while someone "stuck a needle in my behind."

Black and blue, Martha embarked on an escapade that began in California, peaked in Westchester County, New York, and finally concluded in Washington. The main events included: more late-night phone calls, jet flights from coast to coast, an interview in which Martha displayed her bandaged arms, and two crucial morning meetings between Mitchell and Nixon.

Nixon sympathetic

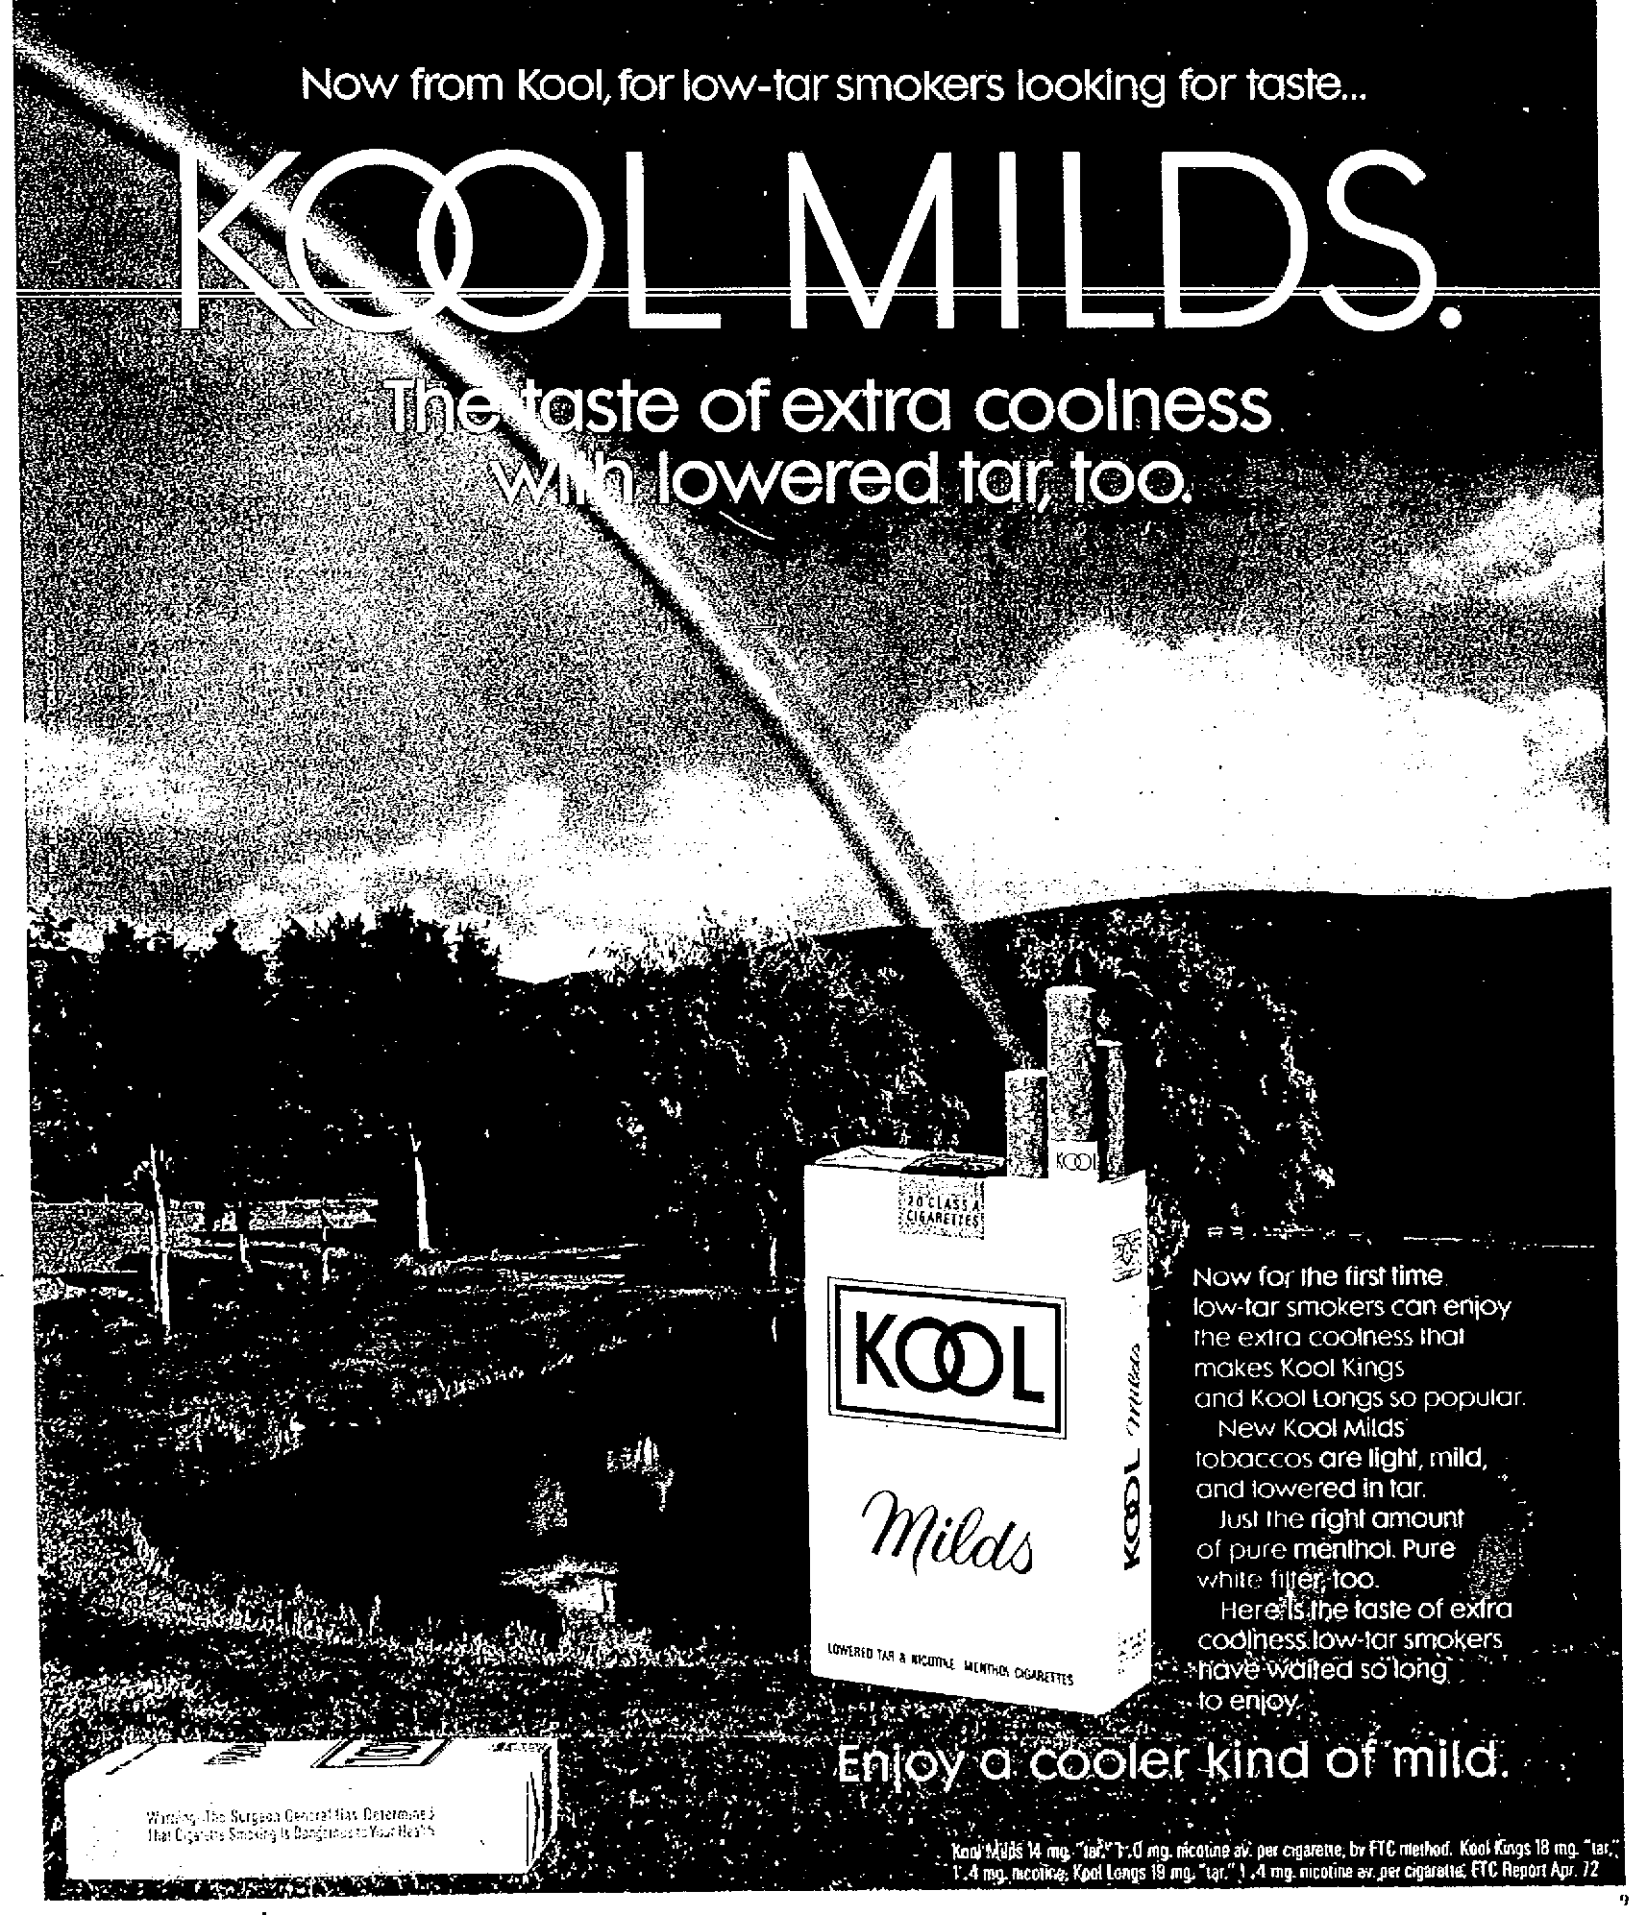

The President was sympathetic. He pledged to stand by John and Martha. In 1962 his own wife, Pat, persuaded him to sign a written pledge that he would quit politics. It was a promise Nixon did not keep.

But Mitchell knew his role as campaign manager was clear: he had to get Martha out of the public spotlight. Another week on the front pages and the loquacious Martha could defeat President Nixon in November almost by herself. Mitchell told the President he would give Martha what she wanted—a full-time husband.

Thus, after 48 hours of deliberation, John and Martha were back together again. John agreed to leave his job as campaign manager, and Martha, apparently, agreed to relinquish her role as enfant terrible on the telephone. The press whimsically compared Mitchell to the Duke of Windsor. Headlined New York's Daily News: "MITCHELL QUITS FOR WOMAN HE LOVES."

Two years ago when Martha Mitchell began her dawn-patrol telephone calls to journalists throughout the country, Walter Scott who heads the Personality

Tension?

Your present medication may be giving you only half the relief you need.

If you suffer from occasional simple tension, chances are your tension is both mental and physical.

Now there's a product that's made to relieve both. It's called Quiet World®. Quiet World is not a tranquilizer, but a simple calmative with a relaxant and a pain reliever. That formula is important. Because unlike other leading calmatives, Quiet World contains a full dose of pain relievers to relieve physical aches, while Quiet World's calmative and relaxant soothe away simple nervous tension.

Non-narcotic, non-habit-forming Quiet World. For occasional simple tension that gets out of hand.

Lt. Jay Jennings, Vietnam vet, son of her first marriage, plans to become a lawyer.

Parade page for this publication, explained that Martha was unhappy and might one day bring her too busy husband to heel.

Scott employed a technique frequently used by the Central Intelligence Agency. He turned over to a trio of leading West Coast psychiatrists a file of clippings on Martha Mitchell. These clips contained her salty quotes: i.e., "The Vietnam war stinks. If it were not for Fulbright we'd be out of it." Also descriptions of her Arkansas background, her first marriage to Clyde Jennings, their son Jay, her subsequent Florida divorce and marriage to John Mitchell in Elkton, Md., on December 30, 1957. The file contained pretty nearly everything in print on Martha.

Prophetic analysis

"We've been getting hundreds of questions per week about this lady," Scott explained. "I've talked to her on the phone several times. She always sounds frank and friendly, but I suspect she's much more deep and troubled than she sounds. Would you read these clips," Scott asked the psychiatrists, "and let me have your interpretation."

The group in turn questioned Scott for an hour, studied the clips, returned the next week with an analysis which turned out to be extraordinarily prophetic.

Thus on November 29, 1970, in answer to a reader's question, "Why does Martha Mitchell call newspaper reporters at outlandish hours of the night and from strange places?", Scott responded with:

"Psychiatrists say Mrs. Mitchell is obviously unhappy with her state in life. Her telephone calls to reporters are, symbolically, cries of help to her husband. She wants the Attorney General to pay some attention to her. By phoning newsmen, what she is saying to her husband is, 'I am capable of making great trouble for you. Pay some attention to me. Spend some time with me. Do not dismiss me. I am capable of wielding considerable power. Here is an example.' Then she makes one of her phone calls, and the Attorney General in response has to dismiss her facetiously as 'My own guided missile'—except that it is unguided."

For nearly three years Martha delighted Republican partisans with her spirited tirades against Administration foes. She called political demonstrators "Liberal Communists." She demanded that The Arkansas Gazette "crucify" Sen. William Fulbright. She claimed that professors and educators "were totally responsible for the sins of our children."

In response, hundreds of letters—nine to one in her favor—began to pour daily into her husband's offices at the Justice Department. Martha started making speeches, granting interviews, appearing on the covers of national magazines.

Crank mail pours in

One indicator of her meteoric rise in popularity: she began receiving as much crank mail as Sen. Ted Kennedy. For Christmas someone sent her a decomposed rat surrounded with holly. Such incidents frightened Martha, and her security was tightened.

But, all told, Martha was ecstatic. George Gallup reported that 76 percent of the American people knew who she was—three times as many people recognized her than recognized State Secretary William Rogers.

But Martha's sunburst of publicity went into sudden eclipse when her husband left the Justice Department last February to become the President's campaign manager. The orderly, disciplined life of Cabinet wife suddenly turned into disarray. Her husband also became involved in the headlines—first the ITT affair, then the break-in of the Democratic Party headquarters.

John spent long hours in the office cooking up political strategy, not realizing that the most potent political stewpot was bubbling at home. Finally, a neglected Martha blew off steam—enough, as it turned out, to keep John in his own kitchen for some time to come.

But Mitchell's abdication may be more a blessing in disguise than a disaster to the Nixon campaign. An examination of his public record reveals that Mitchell was an abrasive campaign manager and a partisan Attorney General.

As the 1968 campaign strategist, Mitchell was more suited to Wall Street than a political campaign. Although he was inexperienced in national politics, he still knew where the power was. His relentless pursuit of money and support in 1968 lost votes. Ahead by 16 percentage points in the national polls at the beginning, Nixon won by less than one percent of the total vote.

However narrow the victory, it was enough to persuade Nixon that Mitchell should serve as his Attorney General and, again, as campaign manager. But he got Nixon's 1972 campaign off to an inauspicious start. He refused to disclose the names of thousands of Republicans who contributed $10 million to the campaign just ahead of the legal deadline which hereafter will require full disclosure.

Political strategist

Even as Attorney General, Mitchell insisted upon retaining his headdress as the President's top political chieftain. Mitchell was a principal architect of Nixon's so-called Southern strategy, carefully courting Sen. Strom Thurmond during the 1968 convention. As Thurmond's reward, Mitchell persuaded the President to appoint Clement Haynsworth and Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court. In an unprecedented move, the Senate rejected one after another.

Mitchell continued to play partisan politics as the nation's top law officer. This raises the question of whether the campaign manager should be in charge of justice, even though there is a precedent for this. President Eisenhower appointed Herbert Brownell and John F. Kennedy named his brother Robert.

The first week Mitchell took office he permitted his department to drop an antitrust case against El Paso Natural Gas, which had paid the former Nixon-Mitchell law firm more than $770,000 over a six-year period. The action was so blatantly political that the Supreme Court, in an unusual move, retook jurisdiction of the El Paso case.

Mitchell sought to delay school integration in Mississippi and oppose crosstown busing at Charlotte, N.C., for political reasons. The Supreme Court again slapped him down—both times.

Mitchell sought to stop The New York Times and The Washington Post from publishing the Pentagon Papers. The Supreme Court ruled against him, six to three.

Fight on drugs and crime

Nixon campaigned hard on the theme that doubling the conviction rate was the best way to stop the rise of crime. But a Justice Department report reveals that there has been a drastic decrease in the conviction rate since Mitchell became Attorney General.

To his credit, however, Mitchell let his crimebusters loose on organized crime and drug pushers. Compared to his predecessors, Mitchell's record in these areas is laudable.

The consensus view of Mitchell as public figure: He was blunt, relentless, often heavy-handed. But privately, his wife Martha knew a different man. She called him "warm and cuddly."

Keeping Up...With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Out of Wedlock

Almost one-fifth of all the infants in Sweden are arriving out of wedlock.

Erland Hofsten, head of Sweden's statistical bureau, declares that nothing like it is happening elsewhere in Europe.

In 1966 more than 61,000 Swedish couples were married. Last year, the number dropped to 39,000, a tumble of 35 percent in five years. In 1960 about 10 percent of all Swedish births were illegitimate. In 1970 it was up to 18 percent and rising.

Quite simply, young Swedes are declining to marry without foreclosing their option to start their families.

In Sweden marriage is rapidly going out of style.

Students Counsel Each Other

Students leaving home for the first time to go to college often find themselves with problems and questions and no one to turn to.

To help fellow undergraduates, a 20-year-old Harvard junior from Brockton, Mass., John Martin, has organized a student-managed counseling center, which he calls Student-to-Student.

The center, as Martin sees it, "is meant to occupy the middleground between a friend and a professional. We will provide," he says, "non-clinical aid to students who are suffering from emotional problems and refer those who require professional attention to reliable psychiatrists and university health service personnel. We will also disseminate information on subjects which concern students such as the draft, abortion, and birth control."

Martin, a social relations major, has modeled his summer program after a similar student-run agency which operates during the regular school year at Harvard. This agency, called Room 13, dealt mostly with "crisis-oriented" individuals, such as potential suicide or abortion cases. Although Martin is working with one of the originators of Room 13, Margaret S. McKenna, now assistant to the director of the University Health Services, he feels that Student-to-Student will have more participants than its predecessor.

"It's a place," he says, "which is oriented towards one-to-one rapping sessions. Complete anonymity is guaranteed. A student does not have to fear that anyone will find out about his problems, and at the same time he does not have to face the stigma which some people feel is associated with seeking psychiatric help."

Supported by a small study grant from a Radcliffe Education for Action fund, Martin operates his counseling service from Friday through Monday. Most of the students he sees, he explains, are suffering "from dissatisfaction and disillusionment with the university."

The Beatles: Dividing the Spoils

In ten years as the world's top musical group, the Beatles earned over $50 million.

The four former superstars have long since parted musical company, but they are still dickering about the division of the spoils—specifically, $17 million in current assets.

"It should be simple," Paul McCartney announced recently in London. "We've all talked about this and I think the obvious solution is a four-way split. The others agree, but they're tied up by legal complications."

The legal complications, however, involve among other things the management—or mismanagement—of the Beatles' phenomenal earnings.

"If all the money due to us had come to us," explains McCartney, who now sings with a new group called Wings, "we'd have been made for life and still have enough to give every person in the British Isles a big share."

Coed Sex Survey

The British Medical Journal recently published the following findings from a sex survey of 1500 freshmen coeds at the University of Aberdeen:

Of the 1500, 684 or nearly half were by their own admission no longer virgin. Few were promiscuous, however: 86 percent reported sexual relations only with a fiancé or "steady."

At the time of the survey, six of the coeds were pregnant and 49 more possibly pregnant; 65 reported a previous pregnancy, 55 of which were terminated by abortion.

Most startling, nearly 40 percent of the girls engaging in regular sexual relations reported that they were not taking proper contraceptive precautions.

"If so much ignorance exists about contraceptives, and if they are used so ineffectively among university undergraduates," the BMJ report comments, "how much more are they a closed book to less privileged young women?"

Many of the coeds surveyed explained their failure to take proper precautions "because they did not like being given a moral lecture by their doctor."

In a message to doctors, the BMJ report concludes: "It is unwarranted to allow a girl to suffer a conflict between fear of pregnancy and her emotional and biological drives in order to press personal moral beliefs."

ROLLING STONES' MICK JAGGER ON TOUR IN U.S.

Backstage with the Stones

Question: What keeps a Rolling Stone from gathering moss?

Answer: Soap.

Before the Rolling Stones set out on their latest record-breaking U.S. tour, their manager sent the following notice to local promoters:

"We know it doesn't happen in America, but in rather barbarian outlands of Europe we have encountered many dressing rooms which lacked towel and soap.

"It would be nice to know that we do not have to worry about this small problem. A clean group is a happy group."

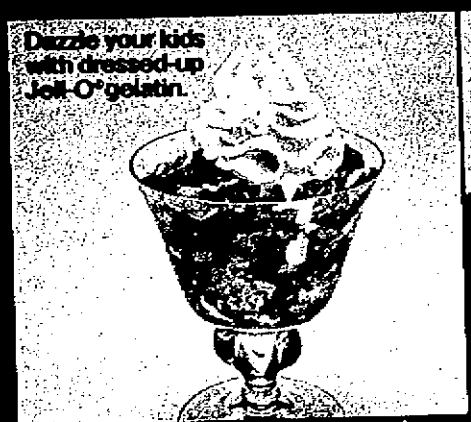

Local auditoriums were also requested to provide the following items backstage to keep the Stones "happy": cognac, scotch, chilled wine, tequila with salt and lemon, fruit, cheese, bread, butter, cold cuts, and Alka-Seltzer.

My Favorite Jokes

by Phil Foster

EDITOR'S NOTE: Phil Foster has never saved his write-ups or kept mementoes of the hundreds of clubs and theaters he's performed in because, he says, "It's tomorrow that counts now." But he would have had a large collection since he's brought his original comedy monologues through all the phases of the comedian's platform—theater, vaudeville, clubs. "When I started entertaining, a variety artist worked in theaters—there were hundreds of them. Low on the totem pole were the nightclubs. Theater was first, vaudeville second."

*Most recently Foster's been in movies (*Every Little Crook and Nanny, and Bang the Drums Slowly, a baseball comedy with thoughtful undertones which should be released in 1973), and now he enjoys living and performing in Las Vegas (late this month he'll be at the Sahara).

A few years back, before the move to Las Vegas, Foster formed a comedy workshop where he shared his knowledge and gave advice freely to many of today's up and coming young comedians. "I would tell them things like, one basic requirement to becoming a good comedian is you must have a beginning and an ending. I don't mean you have to say hello, or goodbye, but you must find a way to express it. For instance I'd finish my act many different ways. Once I walked out with an alarm clock and I told the audience, 'The boss wants me to give 22 minutes, and he's the kind of fellow you don't argue with because everytime he talks to you he has a lit cigar one inch from your nose. So I'm going to set it for 22 minutes and when it rings I'll leave.' When it went off I picked up the clock and left. I did this at the Copa and in Las Vegas."

Here Phil Foster shares some more beginnings, endings, comments on comedy, and jokes with us.

'WHAT ARE YOU, CRAZY?'

One place I worked in was so noisy, no matter what I said they wouldn't be quiet. Finally I said, "Ladies and gentlemen, I would like to give you my impression of an outfielder catching a fly ball." I said, "The pitcher throws the ball and the batter hits it. There it goes to the outfield—and now I'm in the outfield." Then I ran to front stage and began to circle around like I was looking for a fly ball. I ran out, left by the back exit, got into my car and went back to the hotel. The boss calls and says, "What are you, crazy? Come back, they're all waiting for you." So I drove back, went in the back way, got up to the mike and yelled, "Foul ball!"

MY SON THE ACTOR

Jokes I like to do basically have a touch of social significance—the melting-pot type of jokes. Like stories about my mother. My mother could see humor in everything. And this joke is a true story. When I first became a comic I went to see an agent. He said, "What's your name?" I said, "Philly Feldman." He said, "That's not a stage name, you have to change it. How about Lamarr?" "Philly Lamarr," I said, "sounds like a striptease dancer." He said, "All right, where do you live?" "Brooklyn." "What street?" "Blenwood Road." He said, "Well, OK, Phil Blenwood." "No, it's not a bad name, it just doesn't fit my personality." "Any other streets?" he asked. "Argyle Road." My name could have been Phil Argyle except I really didn't know how to spell it . . . Then I remembered Foster Avenue. That's how I got my name.

So now I've left home to be in show business and I'm in Manhattan, living in a hotel for three weeks when I called my mother. She was angry but she said, "All right, so you won't come home. So you won't call. It's all right. But when you need me I'll be here!" I said, "Ma, I'll come see you tomorrow." But she wanted to visit me instead, to see how I was living. We set it for 6 o'clock. At 7 she hadn't arrived. So I called my aunt who lived with her. She said my mother had left at noon. So I went downstairs to look for her. She was sitting in the lobby. She said, "Hello, son. You're looking good." I said, "Ma! how long have you been sitting here?" "About three or four hours," she said. I asked her, "Why didn't you come upstairs?" She said, "I'll tell you the truth—I forgot your name."

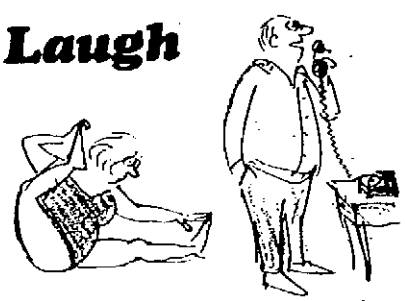

'HEY KID, KEEP TALKING'

After World War II the thing that every comic had to do was to learn to speak English again. The biggest problem we had was we all spiced our conversation with four-letter words. It was such a part of your makeup—it might be hard for those who haven't been in the Army to understand, but if you were eating and you wanted somebody to pass the butter you always told them what kind of butter to pass. So I went to work in a place called Charlie's Tavern. It was a nice crowd, they were talking and I was talking but we didn't bother each other because we were all practicing learning how to talk again. Suddenly a guy shouts right in front of me, "Hey kid, keep talking." I couldn't see him because of the glare lights, but in those days everybody had an answer for a heckler and I said, "Yeah, I'll keep talking. Now that the war's over we can get parts for your head!" Then, all of a sudden I notice people getting up from the tables. The men are going to one side of the room, the women to the other. I said, "Look at this, a square dance in Jersey and I'm the caller!" I shade my eyes to look out front—and it's a holdup!

HAVE I GOT A GIRL FOR YOU!

One of the big moments as a comic was when I worked in the Catskill Mountains. There were certain times a year that mothers came up to marry off their daughters. They knew that all the busboys and bellboys were potential doctors and lawyers. Well, I was telling jokes and during the break a woman comes over to me and says, "What do you do in the winter?" "I put on an overcoat!" "You know what I mean," she insisted. I said, "Well, I do the same thing I'm doing here." "You make a living from this?" I said, "Yes." "By you that's a living, by me it's not," she said. "I got a husband who owns his own place in the garment center and he'll get you a job as a salesman. You're going to make some good living." So I said, "OK, I'll think about it." Now she waited a bit. She'd planted the seed and I could see the wheels turning. Finally she said, "You know my daughter?" "No," I answered. She said, "She's a very good swimmer, a good dancer, a good golfer. She plays tennis, rides horses, smart like you can't believe." I asked, "Is she pretty?" She said, "If she was pretty, would I talk to you?"

The NEW WANKEL

the auto engine of tomorrow that can be yours today!

In the future your cars will probably be powered by a Wankel, the revolutionary pistonless engine that's making headlines now — and will be for years to come in our pollution-conscious era. This is the engine you've read about in newspapers and national magazines — the engine that will probably dissipate the smog problem — the same engine General Motors paid 50 million dollars for production rights — and now you can SEE HOW IT WORKS — in this see-thru kit that's a fully operational 1/5 scale model, including every moving and non moving part. Heavy plastic housing lets you see the triangular rotors turning on their shaft, the flash of spark plugs, the rotating fan blades, the moving rubber fan belt. You hear the powerful hum of the motor, too — all controlled by your hand on the stick-shift on-off switch. This is not a toy, but a finely detailed kit. Complete with all pre-painted parts, motor display stand, easy-to-follow instructions. Runs on two AA batteries. (not incl.)

11489 — Wankel Engine $6.98

DOLORES DEEPSIX'S POLITICAL OPPONENT MAKES A SERIOUS ACCUSATION.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING, LIEUTENANT? STALLING?

DEEPSIX MAY HAVE BEEN IN WASHINGTON, CALABOZO, BUT HER NEW CAMPAIGN MANAGER'S IN TOWN — AND HE DRIVES A BIG, EXPENSIVE CAR, JUST LIKE YOUR WITNESS DESCRIBED.

THEY SAY THAT FLASHY YOUNG SHYSTER, JUSTIN, IS A HOTHEAD TOO! HE SAW MR. NEUTAL WORKING ON THAT POSTER AND ROPE HIM DOWN. YOU GET OFF YOUR TAIL AND CHECK OUT HIS CAR.

YOU HEAR ME GOOD, SANGER KELT! EVEN IF YOU WERE IN CONGRESS NOW, I WOULDN'T LIKE BEING CROWDED. I'M INVESTIGATING A HIT AND RUN — NOT MAKING POLITICAL POINTS FOR TINHORNS!

FOR THE RECORD, I HAVE MEN OUT NOW CHECKING THE BODY SHOPS FOR A CAR WITH FRONT END DAMAGE.

AND GIVING JIM JUSTIN ALL THE TIME HE NEEDS TO GET HIS FIXED!

CALABOZO, THE CONGRESSIONAL ELECTION RIDES ON THIS ONE. HOW WILL YOUR COMMISSIONER LIKE IT IF I CHARGE THE POLICE WITH COVERING UP A POLITICAL CRIME TO PROTECT THE DEEPSIX MACHINE?

IF YOU EVER EXPECT TO COLLECT YOUR PENSION, YOU'LL DO YOUR DUTY. GO GET 'IM, SHERLOCK!

SEEMS OBVIOUS. KELT WANTS TO SMEAR DEEPSIX THROUGH HER CAMPAIGN MANAGER — BUT HOW COME HE'S SO BLASTED SURE?!

WHILE, ABOARD A PLANE ENROUTE FROM WASHINGTON...

JIM'S SO ENTHUSIASTIC — AND HE THINKS HE'S A PRO, BUT IF HE GETS BURNED, IT WILL BE MY FAULT...

"IF A MAN HAVE A STRONG FAITH HE CAN INDULGE IN THE LUXURY OF SCEPTICISM." — NIETZCHE

NOT EVEN A SHADOW COULD SLIP THROUGH THE GUARD WE GOT POSTED AT THIS HOLE!!

AN' THE ORDERS ARE... EVEN IF IT IS A SHADOW — AIM FOR A VITAL PART!!

MASKING HIS TRUE INTENT OF ROBBING THE FOREST OF ITS MINERAL TREASURES, B. SMIRCH POSES AS A PUBLIC BENEFACTOR CONSTRUCTING A "CONSERVATION CENTER"...

OUR UNDERGROUND NETWORK WILL END IN A TERMINAL MILES FROM HERE WHERE WE CAN UNLOAD THE FABULOUSLY VALUABLE ORES, BOSS!

BUT ANNIE ISN'T THAT EASILY FOOLED! SHE SENDS DARWIN, THE AGILE LITTLE MONKEY, TO EXPLORE THE MYSTERIOUS HOLE...

I'LL BE WAITIN' FOR YOU RIGHT HERE, DARWIN!

YEEK!

HE MADE IT!!

THE BOSS SAYS T' WATCH OUT REAL GOOD FOR THAT MOP-HEADED KID AN' HER ANIMALS!

YEAH... BUT I'M TELLIN' YA, IF I SEE THAT MAN-EATIN' LION BEFORE HE SEES ME... MY RESIGNATION TAKES EFFECT IMMEDIATELY!

DEEP UNDERGROUND, DARWIN SEES MINERS DIGGING AWAY AT THE TUNNEL WALLS... AND DEPOSITING THE ROCKS IN A TRAM...

© 1972 New York News Syndicate, Inc. All Rights Reserved

THE CLEVER LITTLE MONKEY TRAILS THE NOW LOADED TRAM THROUGH A MAZE OF UNDERGROUND TUNNELS...

YOU GOT ANY NOTION WHAT'S IN THIS PILE OF ROCKS?

YEAH... ABOUT A MILLION BUCKS' WORTH OF PRECIOUS METALS!

DARWIN'S BEEN DOWN IN THAT HOLE FOR 'BOUT SIX HOURS!! IF SOMETHIN' BAD HAPPENED T' HIM... IT'S GOTTA BE MY FAULT...

IT'S GETTIN' TOO LIGHT OUT FOR COMFORT! WE'D BETTER TAKE OFF! YOU, LOBO... HANG AROUND JUST IN CASE DARWIN SHOWS UP!

THE END OF THE TUNNEL!
